SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Begonias of Lorraine Types.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healty specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

Spiraeas.

The spiræas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiræas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is a question often asked by many growers. As a rule the answer is, "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and summer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots and they must of necessity bring a good figure to make them remunerative. After they are through blooming the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky, add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing. Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant will be the result. After the plants have begun to grow, care should be taken that they do not become pot bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry and it is very easy to over-water, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

Seeds for Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants, that in order to obtain the best stock, it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth, and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants, an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. Lobelias should be sown by February 1 that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year, this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings, and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1, the seed should be sown the last of January. Another useful border plant is Pyrethrum aureum (golden feverfew) and this should be sown early to get good size plants at bedding out time. There are not many cannas these days, grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January. These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now when there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Roy C. Brinton, son of G. W. Brinton, is now with A. B. Cartledge.

PEORIA, ILL.—Alex G. Nagus, who for several months past conducted a flower shop in the Palace Theater building, has closed his doors. Creditors, it is reported, are trying to find out who owns the fixtures, supposed to have been installed by a Chicago concern.

Hydrangeas.

The hydrangeas are among the most popular plants for Easter and spring sales, and during the months of March, April and May, form a very prominent part of the plant display at the florist shops. Large specimens are also quite extensively grown for summer decorations and are very attractive, some of the newer French varieties especially. It is only a few years ago that the old favorite, Otaksa, was the principal variety grown, but now some of the beautiful French sorts are becoming extremely popular on account of their lovely colors, and easy, free-blooming qualities, and as the stock becomes more plentiful, greater numbers will be grown. While the season for these plants is at its height, is the time to take stock and observe the qualities of the different varieties. Then plan to grow such as are suited for your requirements, but there are so many beautiful varieties that it is hard to choose between them and when well grown, they are sure to be in good demand.

CULTURAL METHODS.

Hydrangeas can be propagated from early spring until late in the fall, and grown into good salable plants for the following spring. The earliest progagated stock will make the larger and more bushy plants, while the later stock, though not as large, will, if carefully grown, be very useful plants for which there is always a good demand. The writer has under his charge some very fine plants with two and three large heads of bloom that were late summer struck cuttings of last year, as well as some October struck cuttings now in six-inch pots, with one massive head of bloom on each. These are great favorites and sell quickly. One of the most important factors in the culture of hydrangeas, is never to allow them to suffer for the want of water during the summer. If the season is hot and dry, then the plants need liberal soakings of water every day or two to keep them in active growth. This rule applies to both plants being grown in pots in frames or planted out in the open ground. Some growers grow their plants in pots entirely, plunging them outside in frames during the summer, while others set the plants out in the open ground, lifting and potting them up late in September.

Cuttings put into the sand in the spring of the year, should be potted up as soon as they have made roots enough to properly handle. Then, as the plants make growth, they should be repotted as they need it, and must never be allowed to become potbound during their growing period. Hydrangeas require a fresh, live soil of good substance, but do not treat them to green, fresh manure. Particular attention should be given to see that they get plenty of air and a moderately cool temperature at all times while in the greenhouse.

These plants are very subject to attacks from green fly, which should be kept in check by attending to the fumigating regularly. Those intended for pot culture during the summer should receive their final potting during the month of June, selecting the strongest plants for the larger size pots, and the smaller ones accordingly. After potting, plunge the pots to their rims outside in the frame, specially fitted under lath covering to protect the plants from the direct rays of the sun. The tops of these earliest plants can be used as cuttings, which root easily in a mild hotbed during the summertime, but do not be too severe in cutting up the plants, because the growth they make this year must have time to develop flowering eyes for next spring. Plenty of water should be given while the plants are in their full growth, but at the approach of autumn, the wood will commence to ripen up. Then they will require less water. When the autumn season has reached the time for frosts, preparations must be made to house the plants or protect them from severe freezing. Hydrangeas are not harmed by light frost, but severe freezing will ruin their flowering eyes, and it is always best to have them under protection before frost.

For field culture, plant out the last of May, giving the plants plenty of room so that they can be cared for along the lines of cultivating and keeping the ground clear of weeds. The planting ground should be handy for watering so that the plants can be thoroughly watered as occasions require. Early in September, lift and pot the plants, standing them in a shady place. Syringe overhead two or three times daily until root action starts again, after which they can be given full light and a cool temperature. After the plants have become thoroughly established in the pots, gradually withhold the water from them, to ripen them up so that they remain partially dormant until the time comes to start them into active growth again.

After the first of the year, when it becomes necessary to start the plants into active growth for spring flowering, they should be taken out of the pots, a little of the soil removed from the roots, and repotted into fresh soil. Then start the plants up gradually in a cool temperature, increasing it as they take on new growth. While making their flowering growth, the plants must never be allowed to suffer for want of water, and are greatly benefited by being given weak applications of liquid manure about once a week as the weather will permit. There are few plants that will respond more liberally for careful culture than will the hydrangeas, but they must not be neglected in any manner. Overwatering will cause sour soil accompanied by yellow foliage, and not enough water will blast the buds and cause the plants to lose their foliage. To allow the shoots to become infested with insects will cripple and ruin the flower heads, and last, but not least, unless the plants are grown cool, the shoots and branches become weak and will not hold the flower heads up properly, neither will the flowers last as well.

Among the French varieties, the following are worthy of special mention and general culture:

Avalanche.—A fine white variety with deep green foliage and strong growth.

Vieux Chateau.—Light pink, tinted white. A very fine variety of excellent growth.

Lilie Mouillere.—One of the very best pink varieties; large trusses of beautiful flowers, and a splendid grower.

Mme. R. Jacquet.—Another beautiful pink variety with lots of substance; a favorite with all who have seen it.

E. G. Hill.—A fine pink variety. More upright grower than some of the other sorts, but worthy of general culture.

Trophee.—A magnificent hydrangea, one of the best ever introduced. Color, a beautiful shade of cherry-red; splendid growth and a grand variety in every way.

L. Islette.—A fine, very attractive variety with color hard to describe. One of the best growers.

Baby Bimbinet.—Dwarf grower; fine large, compact heads of the brightest pink. A splendid variety.

Souvenir de Lieutenant Chaure.—Immense heads of deep pink; one of the best varieties.

Radiant.—A fine variety of good growth and attractive color.

La Perle.—Deeply fringed white; one of the best of this color.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard.—A fine variety that will be prominent in any collection; a fine glowing pink.

There are a number of other varieties that are worthy of general culture, and will well repay the grower's most careful attention, and I venture to say that after giving them a trial, you cannot help being enthusiastic about their beauty. C. W. JOHNSON.

National Publicity for Flowers.

We are now entering the fourth year of the national advertising campaign, and the outlook for the year is most encouraging. We are confident that every subscriber to this fund appreciates the value of national advertising. It is difficult to understand why any florist interested in increasing his business has not identified himself with this movement. You must not get the impression that the well-disposed florists, who have subscribed so generously to this fund, will continue to do so year after year, unless you do your part. The campaign is most worthy of the serious consideration of all in the trade.

Subscriptions were received at the end of the year 1920 from:

When Advertising Stops.

The following article appeared recently in the Aberdeen (S. D.) News, and its story is obvious:

"Do you remember Pearline? Once it was the most popular washing powder in America. In 1907 Pearline ceased advertising. Its owners said that advertising was no longer necessary, that Pearline was a good product, and everybody knew it. In 1914 the Procter & Gamble company bought Pearline at their own figure to save it from bankruptcy. They renamed the formula and have sold millions of dollars' worth of it since by advertising. In seven years, the public forgot Pearline, and it dwindled from millions to nothing. Pears Soap once tried the same experiment; noting the alarming slump in sales in six months, they resumed their advertising and did not bust. If people did not die, if people did not move, if new generations did not grow up, if customs and habits did not change, if competition did not compete, if people were not open to suggestion and receptive to new ideas, there would be no need of advertising, and when a business was once built up, it would stay put. But until then, advertising is the surest safeguard for the established product, the most certain hope for the new idea."

The application of the above is just as true to our national publicity campaign, if we permit it to die out, as will be the case if funds are not forthcoming. Undoubtedly, those long-headed, loyal types of progressive florists, who have seen the light of advertising, will continue to give our campaign their moral and financial support. But there are too many who have not as yet absorbed the merit of the above incident, and who, when it is too late, will gather around and say, "What's become of our national campaign and our slogan, "Say It with Flowers?" "

While it is true that "Say It with Flowers" is seen everywhere, the national campaign was responsible for it, and should be the central part of the plan whereby we make our foundations solid and dignify the florist industry to its proper pedestal. Without national advertising, we are losing the efforts of the past two or three years, and any effort later on will have to suffer if we discontinue for too long a period.

We have one year more of voluntary subscriptions to help the campaign fund, and those who have not subscribed in the past can feel that by sending their portion now, they have at least made partial payment for the success it may have given them in the past three years, so that the fourth year will find many on the subscription list who had not given before, but felt that the national campaign had benefited them enough so that we could carry on our campaign for the fourth year as originally outlined.

What say you?

HENRY PENN,
Chairman, Nat. Publicity Campaign.

National Flower Growers' Association.

The time is fast approaching for the first annual meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, which will be held in Washington, D. C., Thursday, January 27. Much progress has been made towards further perfecting this association since the organization meeting held at Cleveland last August. Several of the principal communities have district organizations perfected and working, who will send regularly elected delegates to attend this coming meeting. A few other communities have, so far, only temporarily organized. To the latter, as well as to all growers who are interested in the progress of this movement, we extend a hearty invitation to be present at this first annual gathering. While the actual voting power at this meeting is vested only in the regularly elected delegates, we want it understood that this is to be an open meeting for all growers, and the officers will be glad to welcome suggestions and discussions from any growers who wish to take part in the proceedings.

There is a vast amount of work ahead for a closer co-operation of the producers in our trade. We should strive, first of all, to create a more uniform marketable condition for our stock, not by arbitrarily fixing prices, for this, no doubt, is furthest from the minds of any of those now connected with the organization, but as we are living in an age of co-operative advertising and publicity, we need more and more to give this matter our best thought from the standpoint of the producer.

Supply and demand are and always should be the principal factors in establishing prices for any product. There is a way, however, and it has been clearly proven by statistics from other producers in co-operative advertising campaigns, of stimulating prices by creating an increased demand for the product through judicious advertising. That should be one of the principal factors in the work of this organization. Co-operative advertising of various products has proven not only to increase the demand for such, but it has also proven to be the principal factor in bringing about a uniform grading of those products, which we, as growers, must admit is essential to our business.

Another matter of great importance is finding the cost of production of any article. The more systematically this is done, the better the foundation of that industry. This has never yet been accomplished for our business except among a very few individual interests. By a closer co-operation, and through our organization, we can disseminate information that will give the most humble among our trade a plan by which they can work out an intelligent cost system, and the same can also include a simplified system of bookkeeping for the growers. All this is needed, possibly not for all the individuals, but truly so for the trade at large as well as for most of the individuals, and we must not lose sight of the fact that the individual greenhouse establishments throughout the country will only measure up to what the average of them set forth as a standard. Hence, the more we can improve each individual establishment, the higher will we raise the standard, for we are, after all, organized or unorganized, measured by the standard of the average. It is a proven fact, however, that through organization and organization only, can standard be raised in any profession, industry or production.

As we get along further in this work, we shall undoubtedly find new fields of endeavor, so it is with these few thoughts that we extend to the flower producers of this country again, a hearty invitation to join with us in this new organization with a view of a closer affiliation with other branches of our trade for the betterment of our whole trade, and for the strengthening of the great parent body of all our trade associations, the grand old Society of American Florists.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The first annual meeting of the St. Louis District of the National Flower Growers' Association will be held at the Hotel Jefferson in that city January 18, the morning session opening at 10 o'clock. All growers in St. Louis and vicinity are invited to attend. Following the regular business session, there will be an interesting programme, included in the numbers being an illustrated lecture on "Hybridization," by E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and an address on "Systematizing in Bookkeeping in the Florist Business," by J. A. Cole, of Peoria, Ill. This will be followed by a general discussion for the good of the organization. The present officers are: Walter Amling, Pana, Ill., president; L. Jules Bourdet, St. Louis, first vice-president; Henry Blixen, Edwardsville, Ill., second vice-president; J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, secretary, and W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., treasurer.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society held its annual meeting at Horticultural hall, Boston, January 8. William C. Endicott, the retiring president, delivered a parting address and made several recommendations for the future work of the society. Dr. Frank A. Bennett, president of the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, a Canadian visitor, gave an interesting talk on the work accomplished by that organization, and Ernest K. Thomas, secretary of the Rhode Island Horticultural society, spoke on several timely subjects.

HYDRANGEA BASKET.

PRESIDENT BURRAGE'S ADDRESS.

Albert C. Burrage, the newly elected president, made an earnest plea for the further importation of plants and flowers to beautify American homes and gardens. He said in part:

"I thank you for the great honor you have conferred upon me in making me your president. Mr. Endicott, for myself I thank you for your unfailing courtesy and appreciation, and in the name of the society I thank you for the splendid work you have done for us the past year.

"The art of horticulture is so interlaced with science that it would avail nothing for me to undertake to talk here in a learned way. Neither can I adequately cover its romantic phases, about which so much has been written since man first began, centuries ago, to transcribe his thoughts upon parchment. But your by-laws, very properly, require your president, upon taking office, to deliver a formal address, and it is fitting that anyone so honored, whether scientist or layman, should call attention to those phases of the society's work which particularly appeal to him.

"In what I have to say there will be no rhetoric, no romance—nothing but the plain words of an amateur without great technical knowledge of the subject but with infinite love for the beautiful in the vegetable and mineral kingdoms, wherever found.

"In view of the appreciation which has been shown for my special work, it is not likely that anyone will take exception to my pointing out here the motive which has been behind this work and the aims sought; and this, therefore, is the subject of my appeal.

"Years ago, on my first visit to Europe, after a boyhood spent among the wonderful wild flowers of California, I first learned to know orchids—exotic orchids—and to love them with an admiration which has never lessened. Twenty years ago when I first began to have them in a conservatory, they fascinated me still more, and when, a few years ago, I was fortunate enough to be able to secure them in quantity and variety and to give them the greenhouse care they deserved, they responded nobly and gave me back a rich reward. Still I was not satisfied, because my joy was too much like that of the miser over his gold, and I resolved that others should some time have a chance to see them as I saw them and to know and appreciate these most beautiful of the products of the vegetable kingdom. But my real motive was that the people of this community should get a clearer realization that this country does not and cannot produce, except under glass, any of these wonderful flowering plants so rich in form and color and in romance.

"So, during the past year, you have had, throughout the year, as promised at the beginning, monthly exhibits of orchid plants as they came into flower throughout the different seasons. And nearly 50,000 individuals have seen, studied and enjoyed them. Slowly, unconsciously, but with ever-increasing force, a new life has come into the attendance at our hall—a renaissance of the spirit of our forefathers, who, in their love of plant-life, founded this society and within its home exhibited the best they had.

"How many visitors to these exhibits realized that every one of these scores of genera and hundreds of species of plants came from without the borders of this country and that not one was native to the United States? That all of these plants were imported into this country—every one foreign, that is, exotic?

"Owing to the rocky nature of its surface, Massachusetts has but little real agriculture and this is necessarily becoming each year more and more intensive. But a large part of this surface is wonderfully adapted to horticulture and this, too, should become more and more intensive. Shall this be done only with our native plants, without exotics? Shall we ignore all the inspiration of our past—all the traditions of this society? Shall we be content with the mediocre? Shall our exhibitions contain only average plants and plant-products? Or shall we do the best we can to carry out the purpose of this society, improve horticulture and aid in beautifying the commonwealth in which we live?

"Few people in this country appreciate the fact that a very large part of the fruits, flowers and plants which we most admire and use and which form so large a part of our lives come from without and not within the borders of this vast territory, extending from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from tropical Mexico to frozen Canada. This country is so immense, compared with most other civilized countries, and its flora so rich, varied and beautiful, that we are apt to ignore or forget how much we owe to other countries.

"Few of us realize that wheat, barley, oats, rye, potatoes, peas, onions, turnips, tomatoes, carrots, cucumbers and celery are not native of this country.

"We all know that pineapples, oranges, lemons, bananas, figs and dates are not native to the United States, but not many bear in mind that such common fruits as apples, cherries, peaches, pears, plums, apricots, quinces, currants, raspberries are not native, but originally came wholly from abroad.

"Not many realize that garden roses, carnations, sweet peas, tulips, narcissi, migonettes, snowdrops, dahlias, begonias, are all exotic. Nearly all our so-called wildflowers are really foreign, and there are countless other favorite flowers which originally came from other continents.

"So far as raw materials are concerned, this country has an abundance of almost all except tin and rubber. We are justly proud of our vast resources of coal, iron, copper, gold and other metals; of timber, cotton, wheat and other cereals, and many other articles of necessity; and nearly all of these we have in quantity far beyond any other nation.

"Those who have travelled extensively over the United States understand the marvellous varieties of its topographical and climatic conditions and know why foreigners who migrate here easily find the climate in which they prefer to live.

"On the other hand we are poor as yet in many of the refinements of life. We are still largely dependent upon the old world for many of the things which we prize the most, such as books, paintings, bronzes, laces, pearls, diamonds. Of precious stones alone we import over a hundred million dollars worth a year. Would we be perfectly content to possess only those found or made here?

"Many consider this society an aggregation only of scientists and specialists. This is not so. Many are amateurs, many are cultivators, and some are artists in arranging the plant-products of nature in artistic groups.

"But we have one trait in common—our love for the beautiful. We are all lovers, true lovers of the beautiful in form and color; and in this we recognize no nationality, no artificial boundary, no political demarcation, and we believe we have an inalienable right to secure the finest natural products of the world, provided our use of them injures no one."

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its hall in the Engineering building. Retiring President Henshaw being in a hospital recovering from an operation, retiring Vice-president Knight called the meeting to order. The officers for the present year were installed as follows: I. S. Hendrickson, president; Roman J. Irwin, vice-president; John Young, secretary; William C. Rickards, Jr., treasurer; Percy B. Rigby, Anton Schultheis, Joseph Manda, to serve two years as trustees. Acting President Knight occupied the chair while the officers-elect were being called up and made a good impression. Treasurer Rickards was out of town, but sent a letter promising careful attention to his duties. President Hendrickson, Vice-President Irwin, Secretary Young and Trustees Joseph Manda and Percy B. Rigby, all spoke briefly, but to the point. Previous to the inauguration Trustee Rigby read the annual report showing the club's net balance to be $19,596.92. Accepted and filed. Board recommended that an accountant be employed to audit the books. On motion Rigby was appointed and a remuneration of $50.00 per year was allotted. The following were elected to membership in the club: Wm. Sullivan, 112 W. 28 St.; George Sullivan, 112 W. 28 St.; Jack Bracker, East Williston; Philip Decker, 98 Washington St., Orange, N. J.; John H. Rodman, 43 Conway St., Brooklyn; Bruno Ehrman, Secaucus, N. J.; Otto C. Krift, Washington Ave., Bergenfield, N. J.; Hyman Spitz, 1677 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn; Arthur Poulas, Yonkers, N. Y.; Cornelius J. Speelman, 470 Greenwich St.; Peter Mantgoras, 33 Cortlandt St.

For the inauguration of officers, President Hendrickson was escorted to the chair by F. H. Traendly and A. L. Miller; Vice-President Irwin by Joseph Manda and Wallace R. Pierson, Trustee, and accountant Rigby made a hit when he said he would act as watchdog to bite off useless expenditures. Trustee Schultheis was unavoidably absent. President Hendrickson spoke feelingly of Ex-President Henshaw's illness. Secretary Young reported that he had sent him flowers in the name of the club, and had received a cheerful letter in response. Arthur Herrington reported that he had called on the "skipper"—he was a lieutenant commander in the navy—and that he was sitting up in bed and cheerful.

Clifford Lowther of the transportation committee for the carnation convention, reported applications for reservations coming in slowly. The New York party will leave the Pennsylvania Terminal at 12:15 a. m., January 26, arriving in Washington about 6 a. m. Applications for reservations should be sent as quickly as possible to C. Lowther, 100 Times Square Station, New York.

Arthur Herrington for the Flower Show Committee, which had met in the afternoon, said that the outlook was "rosy," more so than last year. Space is being well taken and the outlook is for a better show than has ever yet been staged in the Grand Central Palace. He called on the club members to boost the show. Secretary Young followed in the same vein and said that 250,000 posterettes had been distributed.

Several of the new members were present and were called to the platform. There were five applications for membership. On motion a budget committee was appointed to report at the next meeting of the board of trustees. R. J. Irwin for the annual banquet committee recommended that it be held at the time of the flower show and motion to that effect was carried.

Roman J. Irwin exhibited for the Bound Brook Greenhouses a vase of a new pink carnation, Arabella. It scored 80 points.

Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., exhibited a vase of sweet pea. Miss Jennie Mamitsch. Preliminary certificate.

NEW YEAR'S DEMAND UNUSUALLY BRISK.

An unprecedented demand for New Year's has been reported by the florists from all parts of the city. There was a fairly good supply of cut flowers to be had, but the prices of this stock was advanced to such a high figure before New Year's that many of the stores pushed the sale of plants in preference. This is not intended to mean that a large stock of cut flowers was not disposed of, as a large amount was demanded by New Year's buyers. Azaleas and ericas were the most popular flowering plants and sold extremely well. Pink Pearl and Van der Cruysen were the leading azaleas offered. Poinsettias sold well, also. There was not much of a stock of cyclamen left after the heavy Christmas demand. Begonias, too, were scarce. Glory of Mordrecht fern was probably the most popular foliage plant, the sales in some stores running into the hundreds. Pandanus, cibotiums, aspleniums and made up baskets of crotons and primulas about completed the offerings of foliage plants. There was a greatly increased supply of roses for the New Year's market, but prices asked were as high as the previous week. The quality of the offerings was of the best. American beauties were hard to obtain. Russell was in good supply, as were all the red varieties. Ophelia was plentiful, but few Columbia were to be had. Very good Aaron Ward added to the variety. Quite a few white roses, chiefly Kaiserin, were to be had, but were rather short stemmed. The supply of orchids, which consisted almost entirely of cattleya, trianae was quite large and seemed to meet with a much more ready sale than they did at Christmas, despite the fact that they were held at $3 each. The arrivals of cypripediums continue steadily. There was a good demand for chrysanthemums and a few fairly acceptable whites and yellows were in the market. There was a limited amount of winter flowering sweet peas to be had, but the quality was poor. Roman hyacinths came in, but did not meet with much favor as the stock was very commonplace. Narcissi were plentiful and cheap. There was the usual large supply of violets with no noticeable change in prices. Carnations were plentiful and cleaned out at $6.00 per 100 for average stock. Laddie brought from $10 to $12. All varieties sold well. Lily of the valley sold out completely.

Roman J. Irwin.
Vice-Pres. Elect New York Florists' Club.

NOTES.

Ferarri Bros'. greenhouses are now producing heavy cuts of roses daily. Manager Victor Ferarri says that the Christmas demand for cut flowers was the heaviest ever experienced by his firm. The large orchid range is giving a fine supply of cattleyas at present. Carnations are also being largely grown here this season.

In the basket department of the Francis Floral Company, Manager Frank Shlauthauer has a force at work on his novelty baskets. He reports a strong demand for them from eastern points.

At the coming session of the state legislature a bill for the combination of all horticultural laws of the state into one concisely comprehensive act is to be introduced.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, is visiting the trade in this city. He reports the holiday trade in his town to be the best ever experienced.

While ferns seem to be scarce with most of the growers, the Schiwern greenhouses are still producing a heavy daily cut.

TRADE CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

During the past week market conditions have undergone little change. Favorable weather for growers has increased the cuts of sweet peas and violets.

THREE INTERESTING MEETINGS.

In order to take advantage of J. F. Ammann's knowledge as secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, and George Asmus' good advice on publicity, three meetings were held January 6, and each brought out a very good attendance. At 2:30 p. m. on that day, the local growers who are still unorganized, met at Kurtz Bros., and there listened with great interest to Mr. Ammann, who made strong propaganda for the National Flower Growers' Association, and cited a few instances to show what could be done if such an association was properly organized and conducted. He also dwelt at length on national publicity, and explained that it is the plan to raise the national publicity fund on the Milwaukee plan. From among the strongest statements made by George Asmus, he proved how the grower, who had all the investments, ran the risks, and put in long hours, is at the mercy of the wholesaler or retailer to bring remunerative prices, yet by judicious advertising and creating a demand, half of the battle was won and the way cleared for a successful future.

At the special meeting of the board of directors of the local florists' publicity association, which followed a six o'clock dinner at the Blatz hotel, nothing of special interest transpired. Both Messrs. Ammann and Asmus dwelt at length on the subject of publicity and lauded the local craft as being the pioneers of the only feasible plan to raise the national publicity fund on an equitable basis.

The third meeting, or that of the florists' club, was held at the Calumet club, following the one at the Blatz hotel. An exceptionally good attendance was on hand, and much good news was disseminated. The treasurer's annual report proved that the financial end of the club has progressed considerably. The secretary, in his report, showed a gain of 17 new members for the past year. The trustees reported having bought a $100 Liberty Bond. The entertainment committee's last venture, the theater party the forepart of December, netted the club $85.34. The state fair committee handed in a final itemized report of the 1920 fair, which also showed a neat balance in our favor. President Henry Welke honored J. F. Ammann by asking him to be master of ceremonies and install the newly elected officers for 1921. Although a perfect stranger, he performed his duty in a manner which was both interesting and instructive. Too bad President-elect Fred Gutermuth, who was ill, thereby causing his absence, missed these doings.

NOTES.

Chas. A. Koch, of the Wauwatosa Floral Co., is still nursing a sore left hand, which was badly injured, December 25. A piece of sharp wood, which he intended to throw into the boiler, went through the hand, and was removed with difficulty at a hospital.

The funeral of S. Schlessinger, January 6, gave some of the local craft good-sized orders. Gimbel Bros. had the family order, which consisted of a casket cover made of orchids and violets. Several Chicago florists made auto deliveries for this occasion.

The A. F. Kellner Co. was very busy the last few days of the past week decorating at the Auditorium for the National Retail Shoe Dealers' convention, which took place January 10-12.

GENERAL ADVANCE IN MOST LINES.

The market for this week has been about the same as to the amount of stock arriving. Prices have advanced considerably on everything, owing to the increased demand. Weather conditions have been very favorable, but there is still quite a shortage of stock for design work. Roses and carnations have advanced about 25 per cent and carried all other stock with them in the upward swing. Callas and Easter lilies moved more freely than they have for some time, also white narcissus. A few jonquils came in this week, and were quickly bought up at $16 a hundred. Freesias are also arriving and clean up quickly at $10. Violets are coming in good quality, but are not in demand as corsage flowers as they used to be. Orchids are still scarce and very few Trianæ are to be seen. Sweet peas are of good quality, but move slowly at the prices asked, good Spencers bringing $4 to $6 a hundred. There has been quite a number of roses brought in from other markets this week, which probably kept prices from soaring to the heights never seen before on the local market, even during the influenza epidemic.

CLUB MEETING.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club of Boston, January 4, at the City Club, the following officers were installed: B. Letson, president; Frank Gibbs, vice-president; Frank Edgar, financial secretary; W. J. Thurston, secretary; F. E. Palmer, treasurer. The meeting was very well attended, but not enough so to please those present. They feel that a good many are losing interest. There was a committee appointed to increase the membership; also a committee of retailers and a committee of growers to get together on what stock should be eliminated and what should be increased in production.

PRINCIPAL DEMAND FOR FUNERAL STOCK.

The first week of the New Year has passed without anything startling happening in the florist business. The supply, with few exceptions, has been equal to all demands, and the principal call has been for stock suitable for funeral work. American Beauties are in short supply, and no doubt will be that way for some time to come. The supply of roses runs mostly to the long fancy stock, with the demand calling for short and medium. Premier, Columbia, and Butterfly are seen only in the longer grades, and while the quality is good, at times they are hard to move. One thing noticed this season has been the call of the trade for Pink Killarney, but with few exceptions the growers have discarded it for the new varieties. Ophelia, Sunburst, Hilda, Maryland, Richmond and Double White Killarney are arriving in limited quantity and clean up daily. The supply of Easter lilies is on the increase and find a market waiting on them. Carnations are still in short supply, and it looks as if this condition would last all season. Jonquils made their first appearance last week, and proved very popular, as they sold on sight. Sweet peas are coming into their own, the bright weather of the past two weeks causing them to improve greatly, both in quantity and quality. The quality of violets is very good, but they drag and are hard to move. The least said about Paper White narcissi the better, as they are selling at prices that cannot possibly let the grower out with a whole skin. Baby primroses and calendulas are in oversupply and meet with an indifferent demand. The quality of the lily of the valley now coming in is the finest seen in years, with a call that absorbs it all. The plumosus supply has been short since Christmas, but is fast getting back to normal.

NOTES

The Frederick Flower Shop, of East Pittsburgh, was completely destroyed by fire, January 6, caused by an overheated gas stove. The family living over the store had a hard time escaping with their lives, and from all reports, so far as the store is concerned, everything is a total loss.

The McCallum Co. is again receiving consignments of Primula malacoides plants from H. D. Rohrer, of Lancaster, Pa. They handle these plants every year and have built up a large demand for them.

DeForest Ludwig, of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., is again able to be about after a two weeks' illness.

E. C. T.

Cincinnati, O.

MARKET GETTING BACK TO NORMAL.

Market conditions show little change over the previous week. Roses are cleaning up well, but other offerings seem to be moving slowly, lilies included. At the beginning of the week, there was a fair demand for them, but they languished at the close. Carnations are now down to normal, selling at $6 to $8 per 100 for the best. Sweet peas have shown no great increase as yet. This is due to cloudy weather during the past two weeks. Stevia is about over, but spring bulbous flowers are arriving, which helps the situation. Daffodils and Roman hyacinths are to be had in limited numbers. Greens are plentiful and move well.

NOTES.

Miss Betty Ferdinandsen, of the H. W. Sheppard store, is spending some time at Urbana, Ill., on a visit to her mother, who has been ill.

T. Ben George, of East Walnut Hills, reports a heavy week of funeral work, his staff working several nights to keep up with orders.

Wm. Gear, of Upper Vine street, has been kept busy during the week with wedding orders.

Irwin Gebhart, of Tromey's Flower Shop, reports a banner week in pot plant sales.

Visitors: Fred Rupp, Aurora, Ind.; Julius Dilloff, New York; W. C. Hughes, Zanesville, O.

GOOD MOVEMENT IN ALL LINES.

Trade during the past week has been brisk, with a good demand for all stock offered. Roses are shortening up, but the supply is equal to requirements. Carnations were never better and violets sell well. There was a good call for all flowering plants, with sales on sight. Weddings, dinners and design work have kept all of the stores on the jump.

NOTES.

The Crown Hotel Florist, M. Lippman, proprietor, has closed his establishment, and will open later in more commodious quarters.

The stores are now beginning to make preparations for St. Valentine's day and anticipate good business.

Johnston Bros. have had excellent windows the past week which attracted favorable comment.

The Colonial Flower Store is featuring good window displays and reports excellent trade.

OBITUARY.

F. Percy Newton

The funeral of F. Percy Newton, who was a faithful employe of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., at the time of his enlistment in the armed forces of his country, serving with gallantry in the 2nd Battery, Field Artillery, and was buried in the historic cemetery at Gironda, France, having fallen on the field of battle, September 21, 1918, was held at Painesville, January 7, the remains being in charge of military escort and accorded full military honors. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery, and his last resting place was covered with many beautiful floral offerings, a final tribute to this young hero, who was greatly liked and admired by all who knew him.

Mr. Newton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Newton, also connected with the nursery establishment, and in charge of the store. All of the employes of the Storrs & Harrison Co., who were able to leave their duties, attended the funeral.

Robert Sandiford.

Robert Sandiford, well known florist and pelargonium specialist, died at his home in Mansfield, O., December 29, age 77 years. The deceased was born in England and received his early training on the estate of Joseph Lister in that country. He came to Canada at the age of 25 years and a few years later moved to Cleveland, O., going to Mansfield soon after, making that city his home ever since.

Mr. Sandiford originated the first pure white pelargonium, Mrs. Robert Sandiford, named for his wife, among his other introductions being Sandiford's Best and Sandiford's Beauty all of which met with much popularity. He is survived by several brothers and sisters all residing in England.

Ernest H. Mazey.

The many friends of Ernest H. Mazey, widely known as the Society Florist, of Minneapolis, Minn., were greatly shocked by his sudden death from pneumonia January 7. He died at Hillcrest hospital, having been ill only a few days. Mr. Mazey was born at Baginton, England, May 17, 1882, and came to America when 21 years old. He had resided in Minneapolis practically since coming to this country, where he founded and built up the highly successful floral business with which he was identified.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Agnes S. Mazey, and relatives in England. The funeral services were held January 10, with burial at Lakewood cemetery.

John T. Rutledge.

John T. Rutledge for the past five years assistant manager at the store of Edward Sceery, Passaic, N. J., died January 3 of pneumonia, at St. Mary's hospital, that city, age 20 years. He was born in Passaic and his pleasant disposition had won for him a host of friends. His father, mother, and three sisters survive. He was an active member of the Royal Arcanum. Funeral services were held January 7, with burial in St. Nicholas cemetery.

John Urquhart.

The death is announced of John Urquhart, for many years the highly successful head gardener at Hoddom Castle, Dumfreeshire, Scotland, at an advanced age.

BOUQUET GREEN.—Our note on the increased use of bouquet green in last week's issue, stating that at least 200,000 pounds were marketed in 1920, referred to dyed green.

WE are in receipt of the premium list of the American Carnation Society for the Washington exhibition January 26-27. Copies may be had on application to Secretary A. F. J. Baur, Thirty-eighth street and Rockwood avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Personal.

Sir Harry J. Veitch, formerly head of the firm of James Veitch & Sons, London, England, which discontinued business some time ago, has been honored by the French government with the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in recognition of his services in the devastated regions in that country.

Dr. L. H. Bailey is in South America on a tour of investigation.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Mrs. George Asmus, president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, has appointed the following directors to serve for a period of two years: Mrs. Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.

MRS. ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

F. T. D. Expansion.

The F. T. D., with its large and rapidly increasing membership, was a great factor in the florists' Christmas trade. Quantities of orders were sent and received in all the large stores through this organization. The retailer who exploits and features this country-wide, instantaneous service continually, through his own store, will add greatly to his prestige and volume of trade.

Washington Meetings.

There will be a great gathering of the trade in Washington, D. C., January 26-27, when the National Flower Growers' Association meets for permanent organization. Two days previous to which time the executive committee of the Society of American Florists will also convene. The annual convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society will also be held at this time, which all carnation growers of the eastern, middle and southern states should arrange to attend, and where they will see all the best and latest introductions of their favorite flower. Bring along your sports and seedlings. They will add greatly to the interest of the exhibition.

Society of American Florists.

President Thomas Roland authorizes the call for a meeting of the executive board of this society, at the New Willard hotel, Washington, D. C., January 24-25, 1921.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, has called a meeting of the national flower show committee, to be held during the same week.

Henry Penn, chairman of the publicity committee, has summoned the members of his committee to meet at the same time. As practically all of the members of these committees would be in Washington during the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, it was considered advisable to hold all of these meetings at the same time.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Say It With Flowers.

Macon, Mo.—In a florist's window here several placards bear the familiar "Say it With Flowers."

A stranger stepped into the salesroom yesterday morning. He wore a long, shiny black coat and a muffler around his neck. His grayish hair was long enough to dust his coat collar.

"Just reading your signs there," he smiled as a young lady appeared to see what he wanted. "Fine sign—'say it with flowers'—I like that."

"Mr. White uses that on all his advertising," remarked the young saleslady. "It has attracted some attention."

"To be sure it has—it's good advice," nodded the stranger approvingly; "wish they'd all adopt that. It's so much nicer than saying it with vegetables—tomatoes, onions, carrots, eggs and things like that, don't you think?"

The young lady look mystified. She thought the man was "joshing" her.

"Is that a joke?" she asked coldly.

"No, it's my solemn conviction," he said earnestly. "You see I'm an actor."
—Kansas City Star.

Carnations Wanted in Egypt.

Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich., secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, in calling attention to the communication below received from Stamm Bros., P. O. Box 291, Cairo, Egypt, members of the F. T. D. in that far distant country, calls attention to the possible opportunity for American carnation growers to develop foreign business:

"Is it possible for us here in Cairo to obtain, through parcel post or sample post, from America, living small carnation plants? Who of our American colleagues and F. T. D. growers are willing to study this question and make the trial at the proper time?

"The dormant period of vegetation in this section lasts from the middle of November until the end of February.

Fat and Prosperous.

The prosperous condition of the trade as shown by the usual and, in many instances, record-breaking volume of business at Christmas, should inspire all branches of the craft with confidence in the future. While there was tremendous expansion in many industries directly interested in manufacturing war materials, and great prosperity in many lines, florists, as a trade, were greatly handicapped in the loss of labor and the higher and almost prohibitive costs of all kinds of necessary supplies. Expansion was out of the question; retrenchment was the rule, and now, when most other industries are making great sacrifices in striving to get back to normal, the business of raising plants and flowers, having had no inflation, is prepared and ready to increase its facilities for the greater demand as it develops.

LIGHT DEMAND FOLLOWS HOLIDAYS.

Following the phenomenal business during the holidays, the florists are not surprised at the lull in demand at the present time. Even with conditions as they are, the trade has had some activity since the passing of Christmas. There can be no doubt that Christmas from the retailer's point of view was one of the best periods on record in this city. Among the growers the cloudy weather around Christmas and the days following, held back stocks, but during the past week the weather has been ideal. Now, as for the past two or three weeks, or perhaps longer, carnations of all descriptions, especially the high quality flowers, are hard to get. One large firm of growers here were able to supply only two local retail houses during the holiday season. Pot plants had a good sale for gifts, and even after the giving period, are in demand. Cut flowers, especially chrysanthemums, have had heavy calls. Roses have been quite hard to get, but the quality appears fair. Paper Whites, sweet peas and calendulas are having good sales.

NOTES.

Plans are being completed for the annual meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association, to be held in the Gatling Gun Club, on North Illinois street, January 12. Officers will be elected for the coming year and other business transacted. The meeting will convene at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the official business transacted. The business session will be followed at 6:30 o'clock by a dinner and after this, a "stag" entertainment will be given. Reports from various parts of the state indicate a large attendance.

Announcement has been made that Bertermann Brothers Co., 241 Massachusetts avenue, has completed negotiations for a 12-year lease on the building now occupied. The firm has been in the same location for 38 years, with the exception of two years when a change was necessary to make possible some extensive improvements to the building. More improvements will be made, Irwin Bertermann says.

Otto J. Riemann, 51 years old, a florist in the southeastern part of the city, was seriously injured recently when struck by an automobile. He was removed to a hospital where it was found that a number of ribs in the right side were broken and that a serious injury to his neck had been sustained, causing the exposure of a large vein. He will recover.

The Davis Gardens, at Terre Haute, Ind., grasped the "Say It with Flowers" idea this year, and Manager Keith Owens made it possible for Terre Haute people to express Christmas cheer with cyclamen plants which were grown in the Davis houses

Bauer & Steinkamp, of this city, are getting out a new catalogue which they believe will be so artistic in its general make-up that it will just naturally sell goods.

CLUB MEETING.

Officers were installed and the annual dinner enjoyed at the January meeting of the florists' club. The officers installed by the retiring president, Edward P. Tracey, are: Samuel Hansen, Troy, president; H. E. Eberhardt, Schenectady, vice-president; Louis H. Schaefer, 102 Hudson avenue, Albany, secretary-treasurer. The report of the secretary-treasurer, L. H. Schaefer, showed the club has 90 members in good standing as compared with 65 on January 1, 1920, a gain of 25. In 1920, the club received 23 new members, as compared with 11 in 1919, a gain of 12. The treasury on January 1, 1921, showed on hand, the sum of $628.67 in cash and Liberty bonds. The receipts during the year were the largest in the history of the club, $1,086.30. The report was received with applause. Two applications were received to be acted upon at the February meeting, and five applications received in December last were voted upon favorably. The new members taken in are: C. M. Hoskins, Watervliet; Thomas Kelliher, Albany; Clifford F. Collier, Albany; A. Hillery, Poughkeepsie, and Ethan A. Coon, Rhinebeck.

The secretary read a letter from John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, announcing the appointment of Frederick Henkes, of Newtonville, one of the vice-presidents of the national organization. Mr. Henkes will represent northern New York state on the board of officers of the S. A. F. Secretary Schaefer also announced the presentation of certificates of merit to a list of growers and retailers who made exhibits at the club show on the night of November 12 last. Club certificates were granted to the following: H. E. Eberhardt, basket of cut flowers; Samuel Hansen, chrysanthemums; Edward P. Tracey, basket of cut flowers; Henkes Brothers, carnations in ordinary and pompon varieties; William Hannell, group of assorted plants; Albert Jenkins, gardener, Menands, group of plants; Frederick Goldring, Slingerland, cyclamens and ferns; Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, chrysanthemums; George A. Person, Catskill, (Samuel Goldring, Gr.) individual specimens of chrysanthemums and vases of carnations, and William Christie, gardener, Menands, a large collection of chrysanthemums, particularly pompon varieties.

Thomas F. Tracey, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported on preparations for the annual dinner. Mr. Tracey said that arrangements had been made to have the dinner at the Hampton hotel after the meeting, at a charge of $2.50 a plate. The report was accepted, and arrangements made for the entertainment of about 70 members and guests. In behalf of the club, James J. Karins, traveling salesman for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., presented to Edward P. Tracey, the retired president, a gold fountain pen and pencil in a leather case. The secretary read a telegram from Roman J. Irwin, New York, expressing regret at his inability to be present at the annual dinner. Mr. Irwin said the date was the same as the one set for a dinner to the president of the New York Florists' Club, which he had planned to attend some time before.

After the meeting, all went to the Hampton to enjoy what the entertainment committee had provided. After the meal, Thomas F. Tracey was named toastmaster by President Hansen. Mr. Tracey called upon Frederick A. Danker, Frederick Goldring, and Frederick Henkes, three past presidents of the club, who told of trade conditions, and the benefits to be derived from organization. They had also complimentary things to say about the good record of the club for 1920. Others who spoke were: H. E. Eberhardt, James J. Karins, James Barrett, of Troy; James Snyder, of Rhinebeck; Morris Cohen, of New York, and Secretary Schaefer. One of the dominant notes in the addresses was the thought that the florist and allied lines of business are at their beginning, and the outlook for them is most encouraging. Speaking after a retrospect of 40 years, Frederick Goldring summarized the addresses of the evening, in a remark as follows: "The florist business is growing, but it must be pushed steadily to the end that florists may produce in quantity, quality and price, such flowers that the public will be encouraged to be steady buyers." One of the features of the night was the entertainment. A clever vaudeville team, two men, were there from Schenectady to sing and dance; Dennis McCarthy, an old friend of the club, was on hand with songs and some new stories that kept the members laughing immoderately for several minutes after the echo of McCarthy's voice had died away. The dinner was voted by the members to have been one of the pleasantest functions held by the club.

NOTES.

John T. Travison, who for 10 years has conducted a retail florist's shop at 335 South Pearl street, has taken his brother, Michael, into partnership. The two have enlarged the store to include Nos. 335 and 337 South Pearl street. Before going in business for himself, John T. Travison was in the employ of Fred A. Danker, 40 Maiden lane. Michael Travison has for some time been working for his brother in the South Pearl street store.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

A SPHERE OF PURE WHITE PETALS

THE seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908, George J. Ball, a Sweet Pea and Aster specialist, selected a plant among his Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that from eight to ten flowers only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in ¼-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds, at $3.00 per trade packet.

MR. GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, November 9th, 1920.

Dear Sir—We feel impelled to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your White Asters. In addition to its magnificent form, it also has the advantage of being an excellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have to offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing as it is superior to any White Aster. Very truly yours,

STOCK IS SCARCE.

Stock has been scarce all week in practically all items and the market at times during the past few days was cleaned up completely. Short and medium stemmed roses are exceedingly scarce, which has strengthened the demand for the fancier grades. The quality of the roses in general is exceptionally fine, especially Columbia, Premier and Mrs. Charles Russell. Double White Killarney are arriving in splendid condition. Sunburst, Ophelia, Butterfly, Montrose, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Crusader, Dunlop, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Cecile Brunner and Nesbit are included in the offerings and are disposed of each day. Carnations are holding their own and clean up early at good January prices. Lily of the valley is more plentiful and prices have not been as firm as they might be. Orchids are having a good call and so are gardenias. Sweet peas are seen in larger quantities and the supply of violets is steadily increasing. Freesias are seen at a few of the stores and so are jonquils and hyacinths. Stevia and mignonette are to be had, together with calendulas, daisies, snapdragons and other miscellaneous seasonable stock. Lilies are having a good call, and callas are cleaning up daily. White and yellow narcissi are quite a factor in the market, and are commanding good prices. The retail stores are featuring plants in their window displays, especially cyclamens, hyacinths, primroses, jonquils, etc. Business has been fairly good the past week, with a good call for wedding and funeral work.

Stock never was so scarce in this market in January as it is at this writing, nor did it ever sell at such high prices. The wholesalers are finding it impossible to fill all their regular orders, and it is likely that the present shortage will continue for several more weeks.

NOTES.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a fair supply of roses, which is enabling them to take care of all their regular customers. Mr. Washburn predicts that the present scarcity will continue at least a couple of weeks.

Some of the wholesalers in the Atlas building whose leases expire May 1, 1921, have been notified of an increase in rent amounting to 100 per cent and more. One firm on the second floor now paying $1,000 per year is asked to pay $3,200 and another paying $1,000 is asked to pay $2,000. The question in the minds of the wholesalers is the present market district becoming too expensive? Some think the location cannot be equalled.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has installed a new coal conveyor, at Plant B, costing about $6,000. Miss Gladine Rummell, of the supply department, is wearing a diamond engagement ring. Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Randolph, January 6, President Waters in the chair. There was a good attendance, the feature of the evening being the installation of officers. The retiring president expressed his thanks to the committees and all members for the support given him during his administration, Mr. Waters stating he had derived much pleasure from wielding the gavel during the past year.

P. J. Foley, Jr., was then requested to escort President-elect Kohout to the chair, who in accepting the office, said he would have some suggestions to offer later as to the work of the club. Vice-President Pyfer, Treasurer Schneider and Secretary Lautenschlager were also duly installed, Mr. Schneider giving an interesting account of the club's early days.

James Morton told of the work of the garden committee, and the transportation committee announced the club party for the Washington meeting of the American Carnation Society and the National Flower Growers' Association would leave from the Union Station, Canal street, on the Pennsylvania railroad's Manhattan Limited, Tuesday, January 25, at 10:30 a. m., due Washington the following morning at 9:28 o'clock.

President Kohout announced the following committees: Good-of-the-club—T. E. Waters, Paul E. Weiss, Wm. Weinhoeber, J. E. Pollworth, Chas. Erne, Paul R. Klingsporn, Ed. Goldenstein and E. A. Ollinger. Chrysanthemum Society of America meeting and exhibition—N. J. Wietor, F. Lautenschlager, W. N. Rudd, C. C. Pollworth and A. H. Schneider. Transportation—M. Barker.

On account of St. Valentine's day, it was arranged to hold the next meeting one week earlier than usual, on February 3, with the regular novelty exhibition, and a dance for the ladies. All club members and their friends are invited.

Applications for membership were received from F. R. Kilner, 508 South Dearborn street, and A. F. Thal, Lakeside building.

Secretary Lautenschlager reported the membership increased 27½ per cent last year.

There was a brisk discussion on artificial flowers, Peter Pearson, Otto Amling, T. E. Waters, Hans Jepsen and others participating.

PRESIDENT KOHOUT'S ADDRESS.

President Joseph Kohout, in his installation address, which was listened to with much interest, said in part:

"At this opportune moment I wish to express my appreciation of the support you have rendered this organization in the other officers you selected with your president. Vice-president A. T. Pyfer can be recommended because of the things he has done in the activities of the organization, and is most capable to preside when I am not present. Our treasurer, A. H. Schneider, represents ideals that makes the successful florist a credit to the community and to our organization, and without doubt, will be a worthy successor to our retiring friend. Our offical recorder of our proceedings, overworked and underpaid, is a secretary who makes good at every opportunity that we entrust to him. When he is sent out to do the work that we ask of him, he always finishes up his labors with a report to which we can all say: "Well done, faithful servant." Our re-elected trustee, August Poehlmann, to whom we lean for his protection, because whatever he does to uphold his own responsibility or to make money, also helps us along. As I need no introduction, I shall be the convenient football to "kick," etc., so I hope to see good fellows at our meetings to assist me in a difficult situation and support some of my recommendations.

"We have four individual specialized groups of the trade outside of the jurisdiction of the Chicago Florists' Club; organizations that would make, spokes of strength in the wheel of the organization, the retailers, growers, wholesale distributors and miscellaneous allied tradesmen. In our own membership we represent all of these trades, but have to represent them in our business activities, hence the organization of the so-called competitive separate trade organizations failed. We cannot have too many trade organizations, provided their work is efficient. These new local trade bodies made more certain the necessity of reorganizing the Chicago Florists' Club in order to begin the movement towards their centralization. Our meetings in the future will be somewhat more general in interest since the wholesaler has become directly interested in the affairs of the grower, and the latter has taken a greater interest in the distribution of his products through both wholesaler and retailer. Great as is the work done by these local organizations, vastly more can be accomplished by the combination of these organizations with the Chicago Florists' Club.

"Separate organizations will soon find that the co-operations of the other organizations will be needed to perfect and to extend their own individual work. We include in our membership all of the men necessary to meet the issues in each division and settle smoothly all of their individual problems for the best of all concerned. Our membership under proper trade divisions can form a legislative body to enact trade laws for the trade betterment that will meet all of the problems of our various interests. By centralization, we can lay out a course to pursue, applicable to all of our particular needs. Our accomplishments will multiply and our influence spread nationally and raise the Chicago trade to its proper prestige.

"Why should we continue to sustain separate organizations within the floricultural industry when each of these local bodies represent only a part of the structure we contemplate to complete?

"Who will deny that when we create trade divisions within the Chicago Florists' Club, that each trade division will first serve itself and then serve us in the same way as has been shown by those of our members serving the Allied Florists' Association? If they, as directors, have demonstrated to us what can be accomplished in one direction toward publicity, that is just what we propose to do in all directions. When each trade division of the Chicago Florists' Club places their valuable time at the disposal of each other and follow within the Chicago Florists' Club the same example of service, then we shall also show accomplishments of the highest order."

BETTER SUPPLY AND MOVEMENT.

The chrysanthemum season is entirely over. Roses have been off somewhat, but are now arriving in better shape and demand has increased. Extra fine stock brings from $3 to $10 per dozen at retail. Carnations are more plentiful, with a greater call for pinks and white. They are disposed of easily. The market is flooded with narcissi, and jonquils of excellent quality are also seen. Retailers are pressed to meet the demand for this flower. A limited supply of violets of fine quality is available. Sweet peas are abundant at $1 to $2.50 per 100. There is a small supply of callas, but Harrisii lilies are plentiful this week. The stock is exceptionally large flowered. Calendulas are also splendid property. Very good Roman hyacinths are seen at $5 to $6 per 100. Cattleyas, in limited numbers, are offered at $1.50 to $2. Pussy willows are featured in many of the store windows, but there is not much call for them. There are no gardenias, and Asparagus plumosus is in short supply. The stock of Sprengeri is ample.

NOTES.

The gardeners' club held its meeting at the municipal greenhouse, Forest Park, January 5, which was attended by 40 members. Lectures of instructive nature will be given during the coming year. The feature of this, the first meeting of the year, was a talk by George H. Pring, well-known horticulturist, on "The Relation of Botany to the Gardener," the Latin names being translated into English by means of a blackboard.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. is doing a brisk business in decorations and is now making preparations for St. Valentine's day trade.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, appears to be doing a great business, judging from the quantities of his flowers on this market.

C. A. Kuehn is cleaning up easily on roses and expects a greatly increased demand during the coming week.

IDEAL WEATHER AND GOOD BUSINESS.

Weather during the past two weeks has been about as favorable as could be wished for as far as business is concerned, the thermometer at no time making delivery difficult. Trade in general has been satisfactory, with social events more numerous than at any time since the war, weddings, receptions, etc., crowding one another, consequently the florists have little to complain of. A lull came on Saturday, which was welcomed as an opportunity to rest. Several events of importance are scheduled for the coming week, however. Roses in all the better grades are plentiful, but short stock is in limited supply, and this is also true of the small flowers, such as Butterfly. Ward and Ophelia are also among the scarce items. Orchids, lily of the valley and sweet peas are plentiful. Jonquils and some good iris are seen in several of the stores, also lilac. There is a fine showing of cyclamens, begonias and primulas.

NOTES.

Palmer's, Anderson's, Scott's and the Colonial Flower Shop have been unusually busy with orders for social affairs and many orders were also filled by other stores. All report excellent holiday business.

There have been rumors of a meeting of the florists' club but they proved false. However, we have not given up all hope that we may have one this year.

Henry Kraus, of S. A. Anderson's, is laid up with pneumonia, but is well on the road to recovery.

W. J. Palmer is now serving on the grand jury, and J. B. Wiese is also on jury work.

The Holland bulb men are with us in force—three and four a day.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND IN BALANCE.

The concensus of opinion on the week's business appears to be not a whole lot doing, and only enough flowers to supply the demand. The only encouraging sign is increasing shipments of carnations, which, however, while some are high grade, are, for the most part, below the standard for the season in quality. Rose crops are mostly off and prices hold firm, particularly for medium grades. Sweet pea shipments are swelling, the mild, bright, sunny springlike weather so unusual for the season, being very favorable to their growth. Stevia is still plentiful, but cannot last much longer. Calendulas are becoming a factor, but the percentage of specials or perfect flowers is small, there being far too much single and short stemmed stock that is hard to move. There appears to be enough single and double violets, and lily of the valley. Lilac, all of good quality, cleans up well at top prices. Cattleyas are now in excess of the demand, while gardenias are being offered by the street men. There are very good Trumpet Major daffodils, which sell well at quoted prices. Paper Whites, however, go begging, as they are sold in the street for 25 cents a dozen sprays. Southern asparagus is backing up a little. Easter lilies are still bringing $25, while good callas sell readily for $4 per dozen. All the wholesalers' coolers were almost entirely clear of stock, January 8, which shows that supply and demand are running neck and neck, as the wholesalers say they have been able to fill all orders. The first well-flowered Primula malacoides have been offered this week, and for the next two months will be largely in evidence. They are unquestionably one of the best of the winter flowering plants.

January 10.—The market this morning favors the sellers, there not being one-third enough stock to go around, particularly in short to medium stemmed roses, stock with stems six to ten inches in length bringing 15 cents. Growers report houses very much off crop, a condition likely to last for the next two or three weeks.

NOTES.

The S. S. Pennock Co. has installed a new automatic cold-storage system for keeping their various cooling rooms at any desired temperature. A 25-horsepower motor for running the compressor and pumps, and motors of lesser power, are all controlled by thermostats, which start and stop the various machines. A large submerged tank, 8x16x7 feet in depth, is filled with brine, which is kept at a low temperature by a great number of pipes, through which ammonia is forced as required. The brine from this tank is pumped through pipes in all the cooling rooms, each of which has a separate connection, controlled by a thermostat, which will automatically start or stop the flow of brine within three degrees of the desired temperature. All the machinery is situated in a basement room, 30x30 feet. It is a most complete installation. Formerly ammonia was pumped through the pipes, which was dangerous, as the smallest leak would allow the escape of fumes that would ruin the contents of the room in a few minutes. One drop of ammonia is said to expand 1,600 times. The plant has also a daily capacity of 20 tons of ice; half a ton is all that is necessary at present. The system and machinery in all its features is most complete, and is the last word in cold-storage equipment.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons had the decorations for the first assembly ball, held at the Bellevue-Stratford, January 7. This is one of the most select functions of "Philadelphia's Four Hundred." The large ballroom was turned into a fairyland of beauty. Large pyramid azaleas splendidly flowered, magnificent cibotiums and stately palms, together with novel electric light effects, gave a splendid garden effect. Tall floor vases, filled with American Beauties and other long-stemmed roses, added their grace and fragrance. Other flowers were used in profusion. John Habermehl declared it to be one of the best decorations of the season.

The members of the florists' club feel they are much indebted to Chas. S. Strout for his fine display of carnations and his very practical talk at their January meeting. A few more such enthusiastic carnation growers as Mr. Strout would soon move this old favorite to the front. The carnations were in such fine condition that some graced the meeting of the florists' club of Reading, January 6. A portion were sent to Lancaster, while quite a display was made in the show window of T. Nelson Geiger. The splendidly flowered Primula malacoides staged by C. U. Liggit were grown by Harry K. Rohrer, Lancaster, Pa.

Many carnation growers report the condition of their plants below par, due, it is thought, to the very wet weather of last summer, at which time most growers fill their houses. There was continuous rain throughout eastern Pennsylvania the last of July and early August, and while the plants made a fine growth in the field, they did not move well, there being heavy losses from stem rot in the houses. Growers who transferred their stock before the middle of July have made a much better showing, losing but few plants, and have been cutting good stock all season.

It has been discovered now, that winter-flowered, orchid-flowering sweet peas can be cut back to advantage. The entire top to within three or four feet of the ground may be removed, when the dormant lower eyes or shoots will break out in a healthy, strong growth and soon produce a fine crop of flowers.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., are now busy with their Valentine novelties. Sydney Bayersdorfer is busily engaged in working up new ideas for this trade, which is rapidly increasing.

The Jos. Heacock Co. is cutting fine Pilgrim. This looks likely to become one of the standard forcing varieties.

White lilac and cattleyas are features of the Leo Niessen stock. High grade carnations are also leaders.

Edward Reid is handling superb Premier from David Anderson, Garrettford, Pa.

FAIR CALL FOR MODERATE PRICED STOCK.

There was a fair business during the past week in the cheaper grades of stock, but all specials were slow. As roses are always the leading offerings, it was noteworthy that long stemmed special teas were hard to move. The society fad at the present time is raising funds to send to Europe, and one well-known society woman, Miss Anna Morgan, chairman of the executive committee of the American Committee for Devasted France, has arranged for a prize fight to take place at an early date. A local newspaper of January 6 announced that: "Society met real pugilists last evening in the ballroom of the Hotel Commodore, when boxes and ringside seats were auctioned for the coming fight in Madison Square Garden." One of the pugilists is to get $40,000 out of it. As high as $500 was bid for a box, and there were other bids for $300. The writer's opinion of prize fighting would not be suitable copy for a horticultural journel. Neither do we criticize those who are helping the poor of Europe. The foregoing is written to illustrate how great sums of money are being spent, while the florist and various other lines of respectable business are languishing. The clear and mild weather of the past week tended to increase the supply of stock. There was an abundant supply of sweet peas and carnations, with weakening prices. Orchids also were plentiful, with C. Trianæ ranging from $1 to $1.25 per flower, wholesale rates, and hybrids, $1.50. The supply of gardenias was not heavy, but there was no scarcity. There was a moderate supply of lilies and other bulbous stock. Violets came in larger volume than could be handled with satisfaction to the wholesalers, $1 per hundred being top price for the best. In stevia, wallflowers, pansies and other minor offerings, there was a good supply. To one interested in the sale of natural flowers, it is almost discouraging, in going about this city, to note the increase in the number of stores dealing exclusively in artificial stock. There are also numbers of retailers, that by courtesy are called "florists," whose principal stock is artificial and preserved.

January 10.—With a moderate supply of stock, roses are about all that show much life, and that is in the shorter grades. Orchids and lily of the valley are slow, the latter particularly so. There is a heavy supply of sweet peas and more violets than can be cleaned up.

NOTES.

President Hendrickson, of the florists' club, gave an informal dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania on the evening of January 6, to officers past and present, committee chairmen and press representatives. It was a good dinner, the president being at the head of the table, and after the viands were disposed of, calling on each one present for remarks. There was a general pledge of support and loyalty to President Hendrickson and his administration. Those present were: President Hendrickson, Vice-President Irwin, Treasurer Rickards, Arthur Herrington, Charles Knight, Joseph Manda, Chas. H. Totty, A. L. Miller, Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., J. H. Pepper, Percy B. Rigby, Peter Gerlaird, A. Fight, A. T. De La Mare and C. Lowther. THE AMERICAN FLORIST representative, being unavoidably absent, sent regrets. A telegram of sympathy and good fellowship was sent from the table to A. M. Henshaw, who is in a Summit, N. J., Hospital.

Charles Abrams, who conducts the flower department in the store of Abraham & Strauss, Brooklyn, has recently had completed, by the Lord & Burnham Company, a fine greenhouse on the roof of the A. & S. store. It is in the form of a square, of iron-frame construction, with concrete floor, comprising 5,000 square feet, and is being used for the growing of and care of plants.

Calling recently on Seligman & Stein, dealers in florists' specialties, we found the irrepressible Sam fat, saucy and prosperous. He said we didn't look at him the last time he saw us on the street. We leave it to the trade to decide if it would be proper to get run over by an automobile just for the sake of looking at Sam.

Calling recently on the Geo. W. Crawbuck Co., Inc., 151 Lawrence street, Brooklyn, we found them well located in the wholesale business, and they report a fair share of trade.

On account of it being impossible for the club to secure the larger room in the Engineering building for the night of January 10, and also on account of the illness of retiring President Henshaw, the "ladies night" reception and dance was postponed to the February meeting.

Chas. S. Strout and wife, of Biddeford, Me., were in the city, January 4, and called on Secretary Young and a number of members of the trade. They continued on to Philadelphia for the club meeting that evening, and exhibited their fine stock of carnations.

Secretary John Young is distributing large numbers of stamps, suitable for the back of a letter, or package, advertising the spring flower show, which will be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-20.

Peter Rush, a retail florist of Detroit, Mich., was in the city during the past week visiting his relatives, Leo Klein and wife of Lexington avenue and 60th street.

The fourteenth annual ball and entertainment of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at the Hotel Commodore, on the night of March 2.

President Hession, of the retail florists' association, has had a severe cold and a touch of influenza, but is now much improved in health.

AT a recent meeting of Dutch bulb growers and British horticulturists it was explained that Germany's imports from Holland were down to 10 per cent of 1919, which was the main cause of the surplus the past season. Prices next season, it was said, are expected to be low.

Onion Seed in the Canary Islands.

The onion-seed crop, 80 to 90 per cent of which always finds its market in the United States, furnishes the greater part of the exports from the Canary Islands to the United States, and is therefore of more interest to American importers and growers than the leading crops of the islands, according to Consul Frank A. Henry at Teneriffe. Bananas and tomatoes account for more than 80 per cent of the exports of the islands, but these find their markets almost exclusively in Europe.

PRODUCING REGIONS—CROP SEASONS.

Onion seed is for the most part grown on the island of Teneriffe, and exported from the port of Santa Cruz de Teneriffe by merchants of this island. Some seed is also grown on the island of La Palma, and further small amounts are produced on Gomera and Hierro. Production varies considerably from year to year, depending upon contracts placed the year previous by American seedsmen as well as upon natural conditions.

Planting is done in October and November, and harvesting in June, July and August. Exportation to the United States usually begins early in July, and should be completed soon after the middle of August so that it reaches Texas onion growers in time for their fall planting.

CONTRACTS PLACED IN ADVANCE.

A great part of the crop is always contracted for in advance so that it is well for intending purchasers to place their orders well ahead of the planting season. The three classes of seed grown for export are known as yellow Bermuda, crystal wax, and red Bermuda. The bulk of the crop consists of the yellow Bermuda. The crystal wax commands a higher price, but is especially sensitive and subject to damage during the growing season.

As exports of the 1920 crop are entirely finished, it is now possible to give some final figures in regard to it. As had been predicted, the yield was small and below the average in both quality and quantity. Exporters were in many cases obliged to reduce the amounts called for by their contracts. The size of the crop was due to small plantings followed by unfavorable weather conditions.

UNITED STATES AND PORTO RICO EXPORTS.

Exports to the United States during the year (including a few small shipments to Porto Rico, amounted to 63,014 pounds valued at $103,360, the average value per pound being $1.63. The quantities and values of the different classes of seed were: Yellow Bermuda, 53,341 pounds at $82,359; crystal wax, 8,651 pounds at $19,598; red Bermuda, 1,052 pounds at $1,403.

As of interest in this connection the following figures showing declared exports to the United States and Porto Rico for the ten previous years are given:

Years	Quantity Pounds	Value
1910	37,205	$36,509
1911	34,699	32,347
1912	61,197	75,437
1913	95,516	86,578
1914	42,552	45,841
1915	40,749	41,800
1916	76,487	84,387
1917	128,620	139,501
1918	94,045	99,036
1919	71,630	76,586

The annual average of declared exports for the 10-year period was 68,270 pounds with an average value of $71,802, so that judged by these figures alone the 1920 crop was only slightly below the average in quantity, and has been exceeded in value only by that of the record year 1917.

PROSPECTS FOR THE 1921 CROP

The high prices received during 1920, together with the fact that onions for planting have been much lower in price than a year ago, have undoubtedly stimulated plantings. The weather has so far been favorable, so that it is not unreasonable to anticipate a decided increase in the yield for next year. It must be borne in mind, however, that the crop is an uncertain one and subject to damage from disease and weather. Contracts for next year's seed have been made on the basis of about $1.30 f. o. b. Teneriffe for yellow Bermuda, and $1.75 for crystal wax.

Unless a regular, direct line of steamers to the United States should be inaugurated in the meantime, shipments will probably continue to be routed to New York via Liverpool as in the past season. It will also be possible to ship to New Orleans via Habana by several Spanish lines which call here. While in theory this would seem the most direct route for Texas shipments, in practice it has not given as satisfactory results as transshipment in England. Expenses from Teneriffe to Texas including freight, insurance, etc., work out at not far from $0.20 a pound.

Bolgiano Bankruptcy Proceedings.

The United States district court for Maryland has issued notice of a meeting of the creditors of the firm of J. Bolgiano & Son to be held at 3 p. m., January 18, in the United States district court room in that city for the purpose of considering a proposition made by unsecured creditors of the firm to purchase from the trustees all of the assets of said firm, or such as they may be legally entitled to.

The creditors having unsecured claims amounting to approximately $500,000 in a signed communication to Waldo Newcomber, William Ingle and Albert D. Graham, trustees in bankruptcy, have offered to purchase the assets on the following conditions: To pay therefor a sum in cash which will be equal to a net dividend of 40 per cent to all unsecured creditors whose claims shall be proven in law, providing the maximum sum so to be paid shall not exceed $260,000. If the offer is accepted, a corporation will be formed to which all assets of the business will be conveyed and which corporation shall, as long as may be deemed advisable continue the business for the purpose primarily of liquidating the same in the interest of those creditors who become stockholders, such creditors whose claims are now unsecured and who have signed the agreement, agreeing to accept common stock in lieu of cash. The subscribers to the agreement also agree to pro rate in proportion to the respective amounts of their unsecured claims and to furnish on demand all cash that may be payable to the trustees with the understanding, however, that no cash shall be paid to said trustees on account of 40 per cent dividend payable to those creditors who elect to take stock in the corporation. It is further understood that the corporation so to be formed shall issue its eight per cent cumulative first preferred stock in an amount equivalent in par value to the cash so advanced by the subscribers thereto, said preferred stock to be redeemed by the corporation at its par value out of the first funds available therefor. The new corporation shall also have no preferred stock other than that required as above stated.

Forty-sixth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June, 1921.

BURLAP prices have advanced considerably the past week.

THERE will be established shortly at Forest Hill, Placer County, California, a plant for the extraction of oil from pine needles. This oil is used for medicinal purposes.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Under the auspices of the roseway committee of the Portland Ad. Club open house for the public was held in Mount Tabor Park, January 4, for formal inspection of the 40,000 roses that are being grown in the gardens to be used in the roseway project of the club.

Trees in Winter.

At the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America's exhibition, under the auspices of the Chicago chapter, at the Art institute, the live-minded person is surprised at the number of things in nature that he knew existed, but had forgotten since he had come to the city and had spent his time looking down while he "watched his step." "Trees in Their Winter Form," shown by Willard L. Clute in the club room, were a revelation to the art students that happened to be there. Nearly everyone who looks at trees at all knows that the elms droop gracefully, that birches are always lady-like in their poses and that lombardy poplars hold up their arms to show that they have not stolen the pot of gold from the end of the rainbow, and that the thorn trees spread their branches horizontally as wide as they like because nobody would dare to ask a thorn to get out of the way. If just a few, like the sinners welcomed in heaven, will hereafter enjoy the "Trees in Winter Form" as pictures against gray skies, then the W. F. P. S. of A. and Mr. Clute will be repaid for the wonderful lecture given freely in the club room this afternoon.—Miss Lena McCauley, in Chicago Evening Post.

Park Monopolies Attacked.

Enos A. Mills, of Long's Peak, Colo., known as "the father of the Rocky Mountain National Parks," is waging a campaign against what he refers to as "the bureaucratic monopolies in our national parks." He urges that all national parks be brought under laws of Congress. "Travelers who are seeing America will pay tribute to monopolies if they visit our national parks," said Mr. Mills. "The various statutes and enabling acts creating these parks endeavored to safeguard the rights of the public by preventing exclusive privileges. But all of the leading national parks are more than 90 per cent monopolized.

"These parks are under the control of the director of the national park service. He manages these parks through rules and regulations. In other words, our national parks are not under the control of the laws of congress, or of the people, but under the dominion of a bureaucratic official. This official, the director of the national park service, is appointed by the secretary of the interior. He cannot be removed by the public; his rules are not reviewed by the courts.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNSETTLED.

With stock all disposed of, the conditions of the local market are rather unsettled. Spring flowers, such as daffodils, narcissi, freesia, calendulas, etc., are arriving, and hyacinths are also available. Harrisii lilies and callas are again with us. Stevia and Paper Whites are abundant. Roses of all kinds are exceptionally good and carnations are also offered, but the supply is short. Lily of the valley is plentiful but the price is high.

NOTES.

The annual meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society was held here this week, at which several interesting addresses were made, and officers were elected as follows: H. E. Wellman, Kendall, president; T. E. Cross, Lagrangeville, vice-president; Roy F. McPherson, secretary-treasurer.

John Dunbar has called together his committee on nominations for officers for the florists' club for 1921, and the names will be announced soon.

George Keller is now cutting excellent callas, but the present week will see the end of his stevia.

J. M. Keller Sons have an unusually fine lot of cyclamens in all colors and of large size.

John Vollmer arranged a fine decoration for a prominent wedding during the week.

Vaughan's Giant Pansies

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture

This is a mixture made by ourselves from 20 different and distinct varieties of this type. While the flowers of this strain do not grow as large as those of the Giant Pansies they excel them by a much greater number of flowers to a plant.
Trade pkt., 25c; ¼ oz. 50c; oz. $1.80.

VAUGHAN'S INTERNATIONAL PANSIES

Vaughan's International Pansy Mixture was first offered by us in 1889. We import from all the best European sources. Each year has added to the quality of its flowers and variety of its colors. We buy every year novelties of known merit to improve the mixture; it is always complete, always the latest and always the best mixture. We add to all Pansy Mixtures which we now buy more than 50 per cent of the choicest named kinds obtainable, each in correct proportion. This is one of the Specialties that has established the reputation of Vaughan's Flower Seeds, and one which we maintain most carefully.
Trade pkt. 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.50; ½ oz., $5.00; oz., $10.00.

Vaughan's Giant Pansy Mixture

Embraces, besides all the separate shades and colors, five special strains not listed elsewhere, and which can only be had in this and our International Mixture. This mixture includes the richest reds, coppers and bronzes, together with the most delicate rose and pink shadings, all the distinct colors of Trimardeau and the splendid, Cassier strain.
Trade pkt., 50c; ⅛ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00; ¼ lb., $18.00.

Vaughan's Cut Flower Mixture

This mixture is put up by ourselves and contains mostly light colored sorts. We have sold this mixture for several seasons to some of our Chicago cut-flower growers, who have realized big returns from the sale of flowers. Pansies are as easily grown as violets, require less care and bring better results.
Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz., 60c; oz., $4.00.

New Early-Flowering Giant Pansies

The new strain produces its giant flowers about four weeks earlier than other known types. In March, when the old type pansies hardly show any buds the plants of the new strain bore from 3 to 5 of their giant flowers.
Early Flowering Giant White, with eye, Yellow, with eye, Light Blue, Dark Blue, Jupiter Purple, Mars cornflower Blue, North Pole pure white, Wodan black, and Mixed (eight colors). Trade pkt., (500 seeds) 25c; ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

Vaughan's P. P. (Popular Price) Mixture of Pansies

This mixture, like all "Vaughan" mixtures, is made up by ourselves from separate colors and strains of the Giant and Chicago Parks Bedding types and will furnish a large variety of colors with a good proportion of giant flowers.
Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz. 50c; oz. $3.00.

Cold Lettuce Houses.

Recently we have become acquainted with several greenhouse men who claim to use no coal whatsoever; instead of using a fireless cooker, they operate fireless greenhouses. At first glance, this statement seems absurd, but these growers insist that they have done well by their methods. One grower told us that they kept accurate figures to compare with a neighbor who fires day and night to produce all the lettuce possible, and the result is that there is not much difference in favor of the heating. The extra lettuce produced is almost offset by the expense of labor and coal. These cold growers plant their houses very late in the fall, and permit these houses to freeze up with the weather. They say that while the lettuce does turn red and brown, and often loses some foliage, when warm days come in the spring, this lettuce does recover surprisingly; that, owing to its powerful root growth and slow progress, great weight is produced. One grower stated that one whole house averaged above one pound per head, with the price at 30 cents per pound. We have not seen these places ourselves, but the fact remains we have sold these growers plants for years, and believe the statements are true. Another grower does not plant his houses at all until March 1, and then has no fire whatever. We understand that all these parties came into possession of greenhouses by accident—either by purchase or lease—and not being regular growers, they did not care to bother with firing these houses all winter. This information may be of value to someone under present circumstances. From our own experience outdoors, we would say that 20° is about the safe line for lettuce; much below that has always proved fatal, and we do not believe lettuce would withstand much more inside than than outside with this difference—indoors, there is no cutting wind to cause damage. Very often what we know as frost damage in hardy plants is nothing but injury from high winds while in a frozen condition. MARKETMAN.

USUAL JANUARY DULLNESS FELT.

Trade has been rather quiet since the holidays, but there is still a fair amount of business. Stock, however, has accumulated until there is now a supply sufficient for all needs. Funeral work has been active, and all kinds of entertainments are of daily occurrence, which, with weddings, help the situation materially. Roses are blooming well now and are of fine quality. Columbia and Russell are, particularly good, with Premier and Milady not far behind. Carnations are better and more abundant, while Paper Whites are used largely as cut flower features and designs. There are still a few chrysanthemums in bloom.

Geny Bros. did not have great success with their Roman hyacinths, which they grew at considerable expense, and the result was a loss in sales. They have fine roses, and report excellent trade during the holiday season.

The Joy Floral Co. is growing splendid roses at this time, especially Columbia and Premier. They have been able to supply the Chattanooga and Atlanta branches, as well as the local demand.

QUIET BUSINESS OPENS THE YEAR.

Trade the first week of the year was a little quiet, which was expected by retailers generally, but on the whole sales were satisfactory. One of the reasons is the fact that orders are not for as large amounts as formerly, but on the other hand, there is an increase in the number of orders, and as a result the volume of business is equal to that of the corresponding week in 1920. Funeral work has been especially active. There has also been quite a number of small social events, and this is always a source of orders for florists. Prices have again declined to the levels which prevailed previous to the holidays. Roses are the principal offering now on the market. They retail from $4 to $10 per dozen. There is also a good demand for carnations at $3.00 per dozen. Violets, sweet peas and narcissi are also selling fairly well. The supply of flowers of all kinds is adequate, and as a result there is no increase in prices anticipated. Pot plants are selling fairly well. They are mostly begonias and cyclamens. Other varieties will soon be on the market. The tone of the trade is generally good, and a rather active demand is expected for the coming six weeks.

Oliver Ray McKellar, age 36 years, a florist in business with his brother, James McKellar, at 24 North High street, died recently after an illness of several weeks from diabetes. He lived at 540 Keifer avenue and had only been married for six months. He leaves besides his widow and brother, two other brothers, Albert McKellar of Louisville, Ky., and Charles W. McKellar, of Chicago. Several sisters also survive.

The inauguration of Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, as governor of Ohio, January 10, was occasion for the sale of many flowers. Several florists of the Buckeye capital received large orders for that day. One of the features was the big inaugural ball, which meant the sale of corsages.

THE RETAIL TRADE.

Out-of-Town Customers.

Paper by Edward Williams, Grand Island, Neb., read at the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society at Lincoln, January 8.

Mr. President and members of The State Florists' Society.

Gentlemen:

I assure you that I appreciate being here with you today. If it is anyone thing that makes me feel good, it is to be among a crowd of my co-workers.

You have assigned to me a paper on "The Out-of-town Customer." In my judgment, I believe that the out-of-town customer requires more care in the handling of their orders than the city or home trade does, for the reason that when you fill an order for shipments, more care should be used in selecting the stock, packing same, as upon its arrival in good condition depends upon your future business, for in a small town, when Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Jones entertains, the "four hundred" of that town will all be there, or for funeral purposes, the flowers are taken notice of above all things, and the remarks that are passed concerning them either helps your further patronage or hurts it.

Catering to the same people year in and year out is much different than catering to transient trade, for possibly you only get them once. The people living in small towns are not so out-of-date as one might think, for they keep posted through reading in journals and magazines. They know what flowers are in and out of season. In case you have to substitute, it is well to enclose a note, explaining the reason with your regrets at not being able to fill the order as wanted. I realize that, at times, one cannot always do as they would like to, but a little explanation goes a long way towards making them feel that you did the best you could.

Whenever a complaint comes, look after it. Make it right, even if you lose by the transaction, for it will come back later. Ignoring a complaint is about the worst thing one can do, for it will harm you more in the vicinity that it comes from, than 10 times the value of the order. We discourage parcel post shipment, excepting the rural routes out of the city, for the express company will make good any damage or delay, and our Uncle Sam will not do so.

I believe that there is one mistake that we all make, and that is in filling an order for out-of-town when it happens that we have an oversupply, in putting in an extra bunch, for as a rule most orders received, specify in dollars amount wanted, and in putting in extras, they sometimes think that they are just getting what they ordered, and the next time they order, they will cut the amount down, and you will just give them what they ordered, and then they will wonder why they did not get more for their money. I have done this. I have selected a few of my best customers at different times when we had an oversupply, and sent them a box with my compliments and it has done a whole lot of good. We find that to keep our agents in good humor is a lot of grief. "You sometimes get an agent that will overcharge. He is not satisfied with the 20 per cent commission you allow him. I have received several complaints of this kind, and have had to change agents, at the same time putting a notice in that town's paper that so-and-so is not acting as our agent any more, and we have tried eliminating agents, but find that we must have them if we continue soliciting out-of-town business, for there is a lot of people that would prefer going to an agent and placing their order with them, saving the bother of ordering direct and looking after getting same from depot, and we had a lot of complaints when we cut the commission from 25 to 20 per cent, but we stood pat, and that is a thing of the past now. Once during the year, I make it a point to visit personally all of my agents and talk over matters with them, and I find that it does a lot of good, for they get acquainted with you, and you get to know them. We mail out a weekly price list to all agents every Monday morning for that week during the season from September to the end of June, so that they are posted on prices and what we have in stock, so that they can take an order intelligently. We allow our agents to run a few locals in their paper, say about five or six times through the season, the bill for same being paid by us. We also endeavor to take care of our out-of-town customers at the sacrifice of our home-trade, for you can explain to your home customers the reason for shortage or whatever it may be, and the out-of-town customers depend on you filling their order and have no time to order elsewhere, for with us, we have to reach out for all we can get, for the home trade would not satisfy our ambition. We figure that three-fourths of our yearly business is from out-of-town orders.

The care of out-of-town trade can be well taken care of, if these few points will be adhered to: First—Select the best you have in filling your order; second, tie your flowers to box so that they will arrive without broken necks; third, pack good; fourth, get your orders out on time; fifth, entertain all complaints; sixth, all orders from parties not known, ship C. O. D., for after the occasion is over with, the flowers are forgotten about, and also your money.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Have you planned for the business of the coming week? You will be surprised at the many things that can be done to interest and attract the attention of the public. There should be no letup after a busy period; expenses go on almost the same, and there must be business activity to meet them. The master business men who manage the large department stores, made a great bid for trade at the holidays, which resulted in an enormous volume of business. They did not rest, however, but were immediately to the front again, January 3, with their white goods sales and special offerings in many other departments. In February, there are the annual furniture sales, which have become great features. These events, well advertised, draw enormous crowds and are most beneficial to all branches of their business.

A walk through these large marts of trade should be an object lesson to the average florist. He leaves his quiet store with a few customers, and in a short time is in the midst of a pushing, eager throng, who appear intensely interested in the great variety of goods of all kinds, most attractively displayed, and arranged to show to the best advantage. Explanatory placards, giving information and prices, are seen on every hand and are often the determining factor.

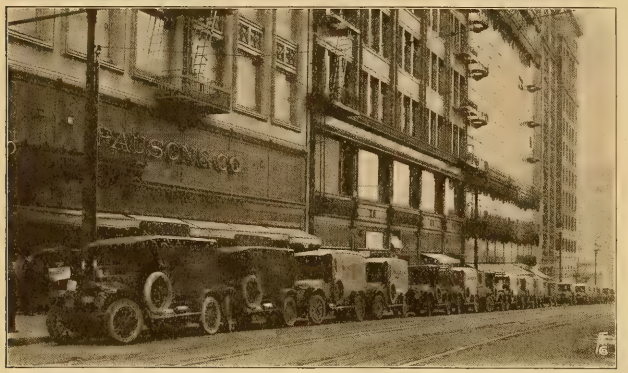
In proportion to his volume of trade, the same interest can be created by the active, progressive florist, who will use the first of the various plants and flowers as they come into season and feature them so as to secure the attention of his customers, and the public generally.

A window display of the best of the cut roses now available, a half dozen or more to a vase, each properly labeled with a neat, legible card, will be found wonderfully attractive. While the beauty of the flowers might get only a passing glance, the addition of the names holds the observer, who invariably reads each one and tries to connect it with the rose.

The calendula is not as popular a cut flower as its beauty warrants. Its light and dark orange shades are unusual, and can be used to advantage in color effects in vase baskets and for table decorations by itself or in combinations. A window of all calendulas will be very striking. Arranged in small vase baskets with pussy willows, or by the aid of glass block holders in shallow bowls, with others in small, odd-shaped vases, there are likely to be many sales.

Feature foliage, and especially flowering plants, as giving life to the living rooms of the house, and particularly as cheer for the sick. Available now are cyclamens, begonias of the Vernon type, Primulas sinensis, malacoides and obconica, and pots and pans of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and freesias. All these will be made much more salable or attractive as gifts, if featured with various moss, paper, or mat coverings for the pot, and tied with narrow tape, fibre or silk ribbon or tasseled cord the color of the flower. Pussy willow sprays can also be used to advantage as a decorative feature and to give additional fullness to the plant.

Sweet peas are now an important factor, and for the next three months will be at their best. They are most popular with all lovers of flowers, and can be used to advantage in gift boxes,



CHRISTMAS DELIVERY OF PELICANO, ROSSI & CO., SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

Christmas Delivery in San Francisco.

The accompanying illustrations will give our eastern brethren an idea how San Francisco, Calif., "says it with flowers" on Christmas morning. The pictures show 26 delivery cars lined up on Sutter street, being loaded to capacity with flowers and plants by Pelicano, Rossi & Co., of 123 Kearny street, for delivery to their customers on that day. It was probably the largest delivery of plants and cut flowers made by a single firm in the west for this occasion. Angelo J. Rossi, speaking for his firm, advised that notwithstanding the extraordinary amount of business handled by them, their delivery service was as near perfect as it was possible to be.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

CHRISTMAS DELIVERY OF PELICANO, ROSSI & CO., SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

corsages, table decorations, sprays, designs, vase baskets, etc. They can be presented attractively and handled in quantity in gift boxes or small vase baskets which are quickly filled, with but slight disturbance of the bunches. A window of these can be disposed of in no time. When there is another display for the window, the featuring of this flower should be continued in the store on the counter or show tables. They will be found attractive when the bunches, wrapped separately in a cornucopia of waxed paper, with the flowers well exposed, are placed in a large bowl or low basket with a price card. The shorter stemmed stock, when priced for quick selling, can be handled in quantity when featured in this way. The wax paper gives a decorative effect and makes the bunches look larger.

The single bud tube or vase, which holds but one, or possibly two half-blown roses, is sure to attract attention. One or two of these at the writing desk is pleasing to lady customers, and calls to mind where they could be used in their own home or that of a friend.

Pussy willows are good stock to carry. The short to medium lengths work in well in all arrangements of sweet peas, daffodils, freesias, etc., and with short roses in vase baskets. A few sprays, with a flower or two, give an artistic outside finish to the gift box when ready for delivery.

Push the "Wear a flower" idea. It has great possibilities.

The Ivy Wreath.

With the introduction of the galax leaves, and later the prepared magnolias, both of which are now so largely used in the making of wreaths and other designs, the old ivy wreath has become almost obsolete. It is not, however, totally a thing of the past, as there is nothing more appropriate or suitable for the funeral of an aged person than a wreath or cross of ivy leaves. The plain design of all leaves, with possibly some small, well leaved sprays used in relief and tied with a purple ribbon, makes a most appropriate emblem. When a touch of color is desired, almost any of the popular flowers may be used, arranged on one side if the wreath be round, or if a crescent, in the center of its broadest diameter. Calla or Easter lilies, lily of the valley, or white roses, used separately, are all good and red roses tied with a foliage green ribbon are effective. Lavender asters, lavender sweet peas or the same colored pansies or violets are all good, while orchids, as in the illustrated wreath, with or without lily of the valley, add a finish that is rich and well worth the necessary extra price.

The cross of ivy the full length of the casket, with a center of any of the above flowers, is an important piece that generally will command a good price. The cross arms, as well as the whole frame, should bevel toward the sides so as to lie firmly when placed on the casket. All frames for ivy work should be mossed rather full as the leaves are short stemmed, and should have a good foundation to make them stand out. They can be fastened on with greening pins, which gives rather a flat effect, or stemmed on toothpicks or stemming sticks, several leaves together, the effect when made up with these being looser and fuller, which is further enhanced by the addition of sprays or small shoots.

A standing cross of ivy, when nicely made, is well worth the time it takes; it at one time was very popular for cemetery decoration. Well leaved sprays of ivy are used to good purpose when combined with white roses in a loose cluster. A good sized knot of dark violets and a purple ribbon give this a very good finish.

THE IVY WREATH.

Cost, the Vital Factor.

The old adage, "A penny saved is a penny earned," should be the rule for every transaction in the florist business. To know how to buy to the best advantage, is just as important as getting the highest price for the product, when offered for sale. Economy in buying reduces costs. In the many lines of goods that go to make up the stock of the flower shop, there are standard articles of everyday demand, such as prepared foliage and other like materials, cycas leaves, wire frames, pottery, etc., that if purchased in quantity, show a considerable saving in cost, over that of the small lots bought for the daily or weekly needs. This applies to all the expense items—wire, string, wax and wrapping paper, cut flower boxes, foil, stemming sticks, moss, store stationery, shipping tags, etc., all of which are good until used. The quantity discounts on these goods if taken advantage of in all purchases, will lessen the costs and add considerably to the profits during the year.

Delivery costs are an important item that can be studied to advantage. In the excellent report of the F. T. D. committee, read at the Indianapolis Convention, on the "Cost of Doing Business," a summary of the business of nine of the prominent retailers and grower-retailers of the country, the average cost of delivering a package was shown as 25 cents. A system of hourly or four times-a-day delivery, if it can be carried out, will bring this cost to a minimum.

Rent is a fixed expense. There may be savings in the careful use of light and heat. Salaries or wages are an important item, in which frequently the owner and working manager, particularly of the small shop, does not count his living as salary, or an item of expense. This omission is a great mistake; he should draw a salary, just as if he were working for some one else. Far too many in business for themselves, are working for a bare living, who, if they took a weekly salary that would be charged to expense, might find it necessary to get a little more for their flowers, so as to show a profit at the end of the year. No business should be conducted "just to make both ends meet." In the exhaustive report of the F. D. T. committee, the average net profit of the nine firms who have kept accurate records, was 10 per cent of their gross amount of business. This shows that it is possible, and should be the aim of every florist, to be able to put aside at least $100 out of every $1,000 worth of his gross business.

Many retailers fix their prices on a basis of 2 to 1, asking $2 for every article or quantity that costs $1. This is even carried by some to "made-up work", allowing $5 worth of flowers for a design that is to sell for $10. The F. T. D. committee found, that in successful stores, the rule was that flowers for design work should not cost more than 30 per cent of the selling price of the finished piece, and loose cut flowers, one-third of their selling price, while with plants the cost price should not be over 35 cents for the one dollar sale. Every retail storekeeper should find out exactly what the percentage of his overhead expenses amount to. Many will not believe that it costs 25 cents to deliver every package, but if any one will keep a careful account for a normal week, he will find this is not far out of the way.

The F. T. D. committee found that cut flowers and plants in four of the large concerns, cost 47 to 50 per cent of their gross business, yet, in order to make a net profit of 10 per cent, they found it necessary to get a gross gain in their selling price of 200 per cent or $3 for every $1 invested.

One of the most expensive items in the florist business is labor, the F. T. D. committee's average for salaries and wages being about 20 per cent. There is great economy in making the most of the store forces during the comparatively dull periods of summer, when by careful preparation for the busy season ahead there is added a stock that will inventory in value an amount far greater than the cost of production. Planning ahead and being able to take advantage of opportunities as they present themselves, in demand for prepared stocks, is splendid economy. To secure and prepare supplies to fill orders at short notice, frequently incurs additional expense which is avoided with the articles at hand.

There are many other economies in the conduct of the business, one of which is to influence customers to take the stock on hand, instead of orders for flowers that have to be bought. In many stores, it is the custom to have an experienced maker-up, select all the flowers for the various orders of this character, which are then arranged by the designers, with the result that the cost of the finished piece is exactly known. Far too often, work of this character is prepared and declared finished only when it appears to look good enough, without any account having been taken of the flowers used.

It is always possible to get a fair price that shows a reasonable profit, and something more when quality and artistic arrangement call for such recognition.

Red Violets.

A case of "red violets" came to our attention at Wichita, Kan., the past week that perhaps will justify publicity. A chain-store corporation planned the opening of a store in this city, and the local manager asked us to quote prices per 1,000 for carnations for favors. We did so after wiring Kansas City and Chicago for market quotations. We were then informed by the customer that the Chicago buyer for their firm had a quotation of $60.00 per 1,000, and named the wholesale florist's firm making the quotation. We then wired the wholesale florist, named by him, and promptly received a quotation of $100 per 1,000—and our prospective customer placed his order by wire with his Chicago buyer at $60.

Possibly fluctuations in the market could account for variation in quotations, but it will not account for a violation of ethics, especially with a market condition as now prevailing, with stock cleaning up at top prices.

The Public Forgets.

People will not buy what they do not know about. Flowers are advertised too little; they should be reminded of more often. The public forgets. If you cannot afford a large ad, use a small one, but be persistent in its use. In the long run, it will keep your name and your business before the public, so that when the time for purchasing does come, they automatically will think of you in connection with flowers. The successful advertiser is the one who sticks to it continually. Spasmodic advertising is not healthy.

Most florists are content with the fact that good flowers and good window displays are all that is necessary, but the third link—advertising—brings people who do not pass your shop, and who do not see your windows, and remember, the masses are those to cater to. This also gives your shop added prestige that helps considerably when you have the other two mentioned factors.

Yale university made a canvass among the leading advertisers in the following industries, in order to learn what percentage of their total sales was being used for advertising, and this is what they found:

Automobiles	3.3%
Automobile accessories	4.2%
Food products	4.6%
Fountain pens	5.3%
Building materials	3.4%
Office supplies	5.1%
Optical goods	7.3%
Paints and varnishes	4.0%
Candies and chewing gum	8.1%

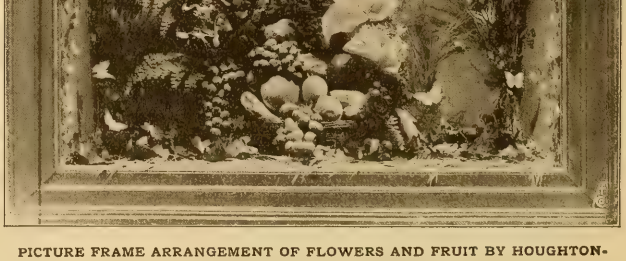
The last item appeals to us as a factor in determining what we ought to expend. If it takes 8.1 per cent appropriation to sell candy, what should we do to advertise flowers? Or, shall we call it merchandising and marketing flowers?

The best kind of advertising is that which tells the simplest story, and especially is our business adapted to the radiation of things that make for good cheer and pleasure to all concerned. When words fail, "Say it with flowers." What an applicable slogan to our business.

Poor Richard says: "Plow deep, while sluggards sleep," and we may take heed by going stronger into our campaign locally and nationally. Our national campaign, while simple, has caught the whole country as you well know, and at the same time, has added dignity to our business generally. Peculiarly, our advertising campaign has had the effect of uniting all the florists into one large family group, which in itself, has been a great factor, and has already created another seed, that of organizing the new national growers' association, which will help the business in many ways towards higher development.

No one can succeed with advertising who could not succeed without it, and conditions today in all lines that are falling back 40 and 50 per cent proves the efforts the florists have made have helped a great deal in keeping our sales at a better average than would have been possible without the campaign. We must acknowledge this: John Wannamaker's first day's profits were devoted to advertising, and throughout his entire career, he had been devoted to it to a large degree. John N. Willys started life as a bicycle repairer in a country town, and has become one of the largest automobile manufacturers in the world, principally attributing his great success to his faith in advertising. As he personally said: "I may not have been quick to see some things, but at least, I saw very early in life, that the road to prosperity was coated with printer's ink." When Cyrus K. Curtis bought the Ladies' Home Journal, he borrowed several hundred thousand dollars to put it on a paying basis, and nearly every cent of it went into advertising that paper. Later, he spent almost a million improving and advertising the Saturday Evening Post. Curtis had an unshakable faith in the power of advertising, and today these two papers are more profitable than a gold mine.

Faith — Hope — Optimism. Babson, the statistician, says we need to regard the periods of depressions and prosperity. Sheldon says we need to inject more religion into business, one of confidence, the Golden Rule kind, etc. And particularly, in times like these, should our efforts be stronger along the lines of the printed word.



PICTURE FRAME ARRANGEMENT OF FLOWERS AND FRUIT BY HOUGHTON-GORNEY FLOWER SHOP, BOSTON, MASS.

We should tell the public that for gifts of dignity and personality, nothing will reflect the character of the giver, or will appeal to the sentiment of the recipient, as well as do flowers and plants, regardless of the amount expended, be it small or large.

Why not appeal to this type?

REGISTRATION DEPARTMENT.

The following varieties have been offered the registration committee of the society, and unless objections are received by the secretary within three weeks of this publication, the registration will become permanent:

Name: Miss Amelia Gude. Class, hybrid tea forcing. Parentage, Columbia x Sunburst. Description—Habit of plant is very vigorous, foliage a handsome dark green, free growing, though its hardiness has not been tested. It is a medium sized flower, with deep yellow center shading to cream, outer petals reflexing; of moderate fragrance and long pointed bud. Its petalage is 35 to 40, blooms freely and is a very good keeper. The rose is similar to Sunburst, but differs in free winter blooming habit and is superior because of its smaller bud, making it ideal for basket and corsage work. Offered by Fred H. Lemon Co., Richmond, Ind.

Description—The plant is vigorous and upright, with foliage of dark green and is free from disease, a reliable grower, but hardiness untested. The flower is large and full, white, with cream-tint center, somewhat similar to Premier, and moderate in fragrance. Petelage, 40 to 45, a free and lasting bloomer and a good keeper. The flower is similar to Kaiserine Augusta Victoria, though being more double and superior, blooming in winter and keeping longer after cutting. Think it will ship well. Offered by Fred H. Lemon Co., Richmond, Ind.

Name: Rotarian. Class, hybrid tea forcing. Parentage, Ophelia pollen, parent not known. Description—The plant's hardiness has not been tested, but it has vigorous, upright foliage with dark green tipped with red, and is a free grower. TRADE NORMAL AFTER LULL.

The usual lull in business that follows the opening of the New Year was experienced by the trade during the early part of last week. Toward the end of the week, however, normal conditions were again assumed. There has been a noticeable decline in the supply of cut stock, which resulted in a stiffening of prices all along the line. Roses are again high, after a short drop in prices. The strong shipping demand for this class of flowers keeps the market cleaned up early in the day. Good Russells are now bringing $2.50 to $3.50 a dozen. There is not sufficient stock for all needs at these prices. American Beauties are particularly scarce and sell quickly. None of the other varieties of roses are in large supply and prices are being well maintained. Cecile Brunner is very scarce. Even at this late date we still have some very good Colonel Appleton chrysanthemums. A few fairly good whites continue to arrive also. Carnations have taken a jump, and ordinary varieties are selling at $3.00 to $4.00 per 100. Laddie still is in strong demand at $12 per 100. The splendid quality of this carnation makes it a great favorite. Enchantress is still the most popular of the other varieties. The cold frosty weather of the past week has shortened the violet supply to some extent, and there is no surplus of this flower. Shipping trade is still strong for it, however. There is a good demand for cut erica, Melanthera being the principal variety used. Basket work consumes a lot of this flower. It is a noticeable fact that it is enjoying a greatly increased demand over former years. Only a small cut of winter-flowering sweet peas is coming in. They bring $3.00 per dozen bunches. Daffodils are in brisk demand, bringing $6.00 per 100, wholesale. Freesias have increased greatly in supply, and prices have dropped to $2.00 to $3.00 per 100. Colored freesias are also coming in, and bring higher figures than white. Roman hyacinths of poor quality are offered, and move slowly at $2.00 per 100. Lily of the valley is more plentiful and holds up well in price. Gardenias are in more liberal supply now and of the best quality. Cattleyas continue to come in freely at slightly lower figures. Paper Whites are very plentiful and cheap. Free-flowering plant azaleas in variety are easily the leaders. Erica melanthera, mediterranea and obvota, are also in strong demand as pot plants. Cyclamens do not receive much attention from buyers at present. Bostons continue to sell well. There is a strong demand for cut asparagus, both for the local and shipping trade. Ferns continue to be in short supply.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association held an important meeting in Native Sons' hall, January 6. There was a large attendance, and great interest in the proceedings was manifested by the members. P. Vincent Matraia, chairman of the advertising campaign committee, reported that over $2,000.00 had been collected to date. The society voted to keep its stores closed all day Sunday hereafter. On motion of Angelo J. Rossi, it was decided to launch an extensive advertising campaign, to last throughout the year. It was also decided that the association affiliate and meet with the Better Business Bureau of the San Francisco Advertising Club. At the February meeting of the association a talk on advertising will be delivered by an expert furnished by the advertising club. As a result of the membership drive conducted by P. V. Matraia, Angelo J. Rossi, Albert O. Stein, J. F. Kilroy and Alfred Serveau, nearly all the local retail florists have joined the association. The election of officers was conducted and the following were chosen to serve during the ensuing year: Albert O. Stein, president; Chas. W. Brown, vice-president; James T. Lynch, secretary; Angelo J. Rossi, treasurer. A committee of 10 members was selected by President Stein to meet with the advertising club at its monthly luncheon. It was also voted that the society hold a "get-together" banquet in the near future. A special meeting was called for January 12 to hear the report of the Sunday closing committee.

The Brown Bulb Ranch, at Capitola, has a large force of men at work planting Spanish iris, miniature gladioli, daffodils, tulips, etc. The planting stock was purchased in Europe and the Channel Islands by James A. Brown during his visit last fall. This firm has been forced to purchase additional land during the past month in order that adequate space for planting the increased stock might be had. This enterprising firm has now over eighty acres devoted to bulb culture and is rapidly becoming one of the foremost concerns in the bulb growing business in the west. W. C. Roberts is superintendent of production at this establishment.

Building operations on the state nursery at the farm school, at Davis, are to begin in the spring, according to the state engineering department. At this place, deciduous shade trees, to line the entire highway system of California, will be grown under state supervision. European sycamore, maple, ash, Lombardy poplar, elm and black walnut will be the principal trees grown in order to meet the requirements of certain altitudes and climates.

The body of John Jacob Kissel, a florist and landscape gardener, was found in his home, January 8, by his son, Louis, when the latter came home. Kissel is believed to have committed suicide, due to continued ill health. He was in business here for many years, and had a large circle of friends. Mr. Kissel was a native of Germany, aged 62 years. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has issued his dahlia catalogue for the coming season He is introducing a fine decorative variety this season, called Millie Rodgers. It is a beautiful color of old gold with a soft diffusion of amber. It has a fine, stiff stem and is a great exhibition variety. He is also introducing a fine new set of pompons. All these are grown at his nursery on Guttenberg street.

The Van der Cruysen azaleas that are being furnished to the trade here by Ferrari Bros.' greenhouses are the finest stock we have seen in years. They are a mass of flowers, and are just the right size for the retail trade. They are also furnishing a fine cut of orchids. Manager Victor Ferrari sent his check for $150.00 to the advertising fund of the retail florists' association.

J. A. Axell, the Bush street wholesaler, says there has been no decline in the shipping demand following the holidays. He is receiving a fine cut from his growers of nearly all items in seasonable stock. Since opening up this business a little over a year ago, Mr. Axell has seen it grow so rapidly that he is now one of the largest distributors of cut flowers in the west.

The Bulletin of the Dahlia Society of California has been sent to all members by Secretary F. C. Burns. It gives a very comprehensive report of the activities of the society and also the fall dahlia shows. Treasurer Frank D. Pelicano's report shows the society to be in splendid financial condition, having a treasury balance of over $1,200.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. reports a strong demand for plants and trees this season at its nursery at San Mateo. The firm has several large planting contracts upon which it has many men employed. At the Powell street retail store, Manager Louis Capuro is well satisfied with the way trade is keeping up.

B. M. Joseph says there is a great rush of wedding decorations of late, now that Lent is approaching. He notes a strong demand for orchids and lily of the valley for this work. Mr. Joseph was among the large contributors to the advertising fund for the retail florists' association.

Eric James, of Elmhurst, has been the recipient of much commendation for the quality of his holiday plants this year. His stock of Glory of Mordrecht fern scored a decided hit with the retail trade.

Since the issuance of his new catalogue, Richard Diener, of Kentfield, says his force has been kept very busy filling orders. He reports the demand for his new hybrid gladiolus is unusually heavy.

The orchid range of John Carbone was a large factor in the holiday supply of cattleyas. Percy Ellings, who is in charge, had a great cut of Trianæ just right for the Christmas and New Year's trade.

Brown & Kennedy have added a fine new delivery car to their service department. This firm says the New Year's trade called for a large amount of flowering plants, much more than last season.

A. Nicolini & Co., proprietors of the Colma Nursery, are fortunate in having a fine offering of asparagus during these days of short supply. Their large daily cut is disposed of in this market.

Frank R. Mills, the well known carnation grower of Palo Alto, experienced his best Christmas trade this year His carnation houses were in full crop and of excellent quality.

Beginning January 9, all flower stores here will be closed all day Sunday in accordance with the resolutions passed by the Retail Florists' Association.

The annual election of officers of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society will take place at the meeting held this month. JAS. T. LYNCH.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

More than 100 florists from all parts of Indiana attended the annual meeting in Indianapolis, January 12, of the above named association, which was one of the largest ever held by the organization in point of attendance. The meeting was called to order in the afternoon and was followed by a banquet in the evening, after which several fine displays were made and certificates of merit awarded.

L. E. Hitz, of Madison, was elected president for the coming year. Other officers were chosen as follows: E. E. Temperley, Indianapolis, first vice-president; L. A. Coles, Kokomo, second vice-president; Oscar Carlsted, Indianapolis, secretary, and Arthur Heidenreich, Indianapolis, treasurer. The former president of the organization was Anders Rasmussen, New Albany.

Visiting florists said the displays of cut flowers and pot plants were the largest they had ever seen at a state meeting, and also were of the finest quality.

In connection with business matters pertaining to the state association, it was decided to use every effort to get a course in floriculture at Purdue University. The question depends, it seems, entirely on whether an increased appropriation is granted the state university by the legislature, now in session. The state organization will leave the question of lobbying for the increase entirely to the school officials, and already an active effort is being made by Purdue, in connection with the two other state schools, for an increase in finances.

The association also went on record as favoring a larger display at the state fairs here. For some years these events have been taken as a matter of course by florists, and at times the displays have not been representative of the industry in Indiana by any means.

Both the rose and carnation trophies went to W. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, who recently returned from a tour of Europe, gave an interesting talk on the way the florists in Ireland, England and France are recovering from the effects of the war. In his opinion it will not take the industry in these countries long to readjust themselves to changed conditions. Harry F. Dietz, of the state conservation department in the sub-division of entomology, chief of greenhouse diseases and pests, gave a talk.

Temperley's Florists had a display of cyclamen and begonias, and Fred H. Lemon, of Richmond, displayed a new white rose, The Angelus, which won a certificate of merit. John Eitel & Son, of Greencastle, displayed a rose pink sport of Enchantress Supreme, and also won a certificate of merit.

F. Dorner & Sons Co., of Lafayette, displayed a new red carnation called Happy Day, and Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis took another certificate of merit on a new carnation, Edna, a promising scarlet. The same company also displayed a seedling carnation of light pink.

L. E. Hitz, of Madison, showed a vase of violets, Governor Herrick, and a new chrysanthemum was shown by Hartje & Elder.

Honorable mention went to H. Rieman & Sons, of Indianapolis, on a display of orchid cut blooms and a collection of plants, including fringed cyclamens, double Primula obconica and begonia plants.

Bertermann Brothers Co., of Indianapolis, received honorable mention for a display of blooming plants, including cyclamens, new Primula obconica and three varieties of begonia.

Special mention was given A. Wiegand & Sons for a display of cyclamens and Narcissus Golden Spur.

A certificate of merit of special culture was issued to Temperley's Florists for blooming plants of cyclamens, obconica and Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine. E. B.

APPOINTMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS.

President Craig has appointed the following directors for a term of three years: William Gray, Rhode Island; William Hertrick, California; Albin Martini, Iowa; Thos. Hatton, Connecticut; Thomas W. Head, New Jersey; Robert Weeks, Ohio; W. H. Griffiths, Michigan. Montague Free, New York, was appointed to succeed George H. Pring, Missouri, whose term expires 1923. General committee for the 1921 convention to be held in New York are: Alexander Michie, Locust Valley, N. Y., chairman; J. W. Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; George R. Hale, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.; William Graham, Tarrytown, N. Y.; M. J. O'Brien, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.; A. Bieschke, Noroton, Conn.; Joseph Tansey, Tuxedo, N. Y.; William Brown, Morristown, N. J.; William H. Waite, Rumson, N. J. Committee on training young gardeners: M. C. Ebel, New York; Montague Free, gardener, Botanical Garden, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Geo. H. Pring, horticulturist, Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis, Mo.; H. Ernest Downer, horticulturist, Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Committee on Quarantine, 37: The committee appointed by ex-President Jensen last year, consisting of W. N. Craig, Massachusetts; M. C. Ebel, New York, will be continued.

President Craig, in his annual message, urges that co-operation should be the association's watchword. It should co-operate with similar organizations, either private or commercial, as its interests run on very similar lines, and many of the association's problems are those of other organizations also. He feels that the association should co-operate in every legitimate way with other bodies, aiming to advance horticulture, repressing existing injustices such as Quarantine 37 has caused, and handling other problems where individual efforts might be unavailing, but where in union there would be strength.

President Craig refers to the plant quarantine committee, which has been actively engaged in a quiet way to bring about needed changes, and hopes in the very near future to make an important announcement of what has been accomplished. He states that the outlook for modifications are certainly brighter than they have been at any time.

There is every assurance that the present year will see the movement to interest young men in the profession of gardening, well under way. Two of the foremost estates in the country are now preparing to receive a number of young men, where they will have opportunities for both practical and theoretical training, and if plans now afoot materialize, the association will have a school of gardening started by one of the largest horticultural institutions of this country, where young men, after two or three years' training on an estate, can secure a year or two of scientific training to help round out their work.

In the campaign inaugurated at the St. Louis convention against the sign board nuisance, the committee has been somewhat disappointed in the lack of interest shown by several organizations that promised to co-operate if the gardeners' association took the initiative. The Garden Club of America has indorsed its action, and has voted its co-operative support. An active national campaign to bring about an abatement of this national nuisance along our highways will be started very shortly.

The service bureau, Mr. Craig says, is becoming nationally known, and that positions have been filled not only in the east, but in the west, middle west and south. There is no doubt that country estate owners are recognizing the association as the source from which they may obtain their efficient and trustworthy gardeners.

President Craig directs attention to the next convention, which is to be held in New York in the fall, and asks members to make plans for their vacation at that time, and come to the Empire City, which is sure to extend a cordial welcome.

A committee of the executive board, composed of Peter Duff, Thomas Proctor, Robert Williamson, J. W. Everitt and Joseph Tansey, met at the office of the association in New York, January 10, to act on charges filed against H. L. Crane, recently superintendent of Hubert T. Parson's estate, Shadow Lawn, West End, N. J., of making false statements and submitting a bogus copy of reference in his application to the service bureau for a position. The evidence presented to the committee duly substantiated the charges made. Crane, who was invited to be present at the meeting, did not appear to disprove the charges against him. After careful deliberation, the committee voted unanimously to expel him as a member of the association.

Evansville, Ind.

The William Blackman Floral Company, which occupied the building at 522 Main street for 10 years, has moved to 518 Main street. The store at 518 Main was taken as temporary quarters. The firm received peremptory orders from the owner of 522 Main street, demanding it vacate the building by January 1, or re-lease the premises for five years at double the rent. The Blackman company bought a cigar store a few doors away, sold the stock and fixtures, and took possession. The Christmas trade of the company was said to be extraordinarily good. Sixty per cent of the business was with out-of-town trade.

Walter Blackman, son of George, is on the sick list.

OBITUARY.

Fred Sander.

Fred Sander, well known horticulturist of St. Albans, Eng., and Bruges, Belgium, died at the latter place, December 23, following a serious operation. The funeral took place at St. Albans, December 30. Mr. Sander was long prominent in the world of plantsmen and his famous establishment at Bruges received considerable attention during the late war as one of the camps of the German army. The following account of Mr. Sander and his work is taken from our issue of November 24, 1900:

"Fred Sander, the famous orchid expert and plantsman, was born at Bremen in 1847. Early in life he was apprenticed to Karl Schubert, of Weemar, a landscape gardener of renown;

The Late Fred Sander.

later he went to Carl Cropp, at Erfurt, subsequently joining Peter Smith's forces at Hamburg. In 1867 he remove to England, becoming identified with the establishment of Messrs. Carter, at Forest Hill, where he remained six years.

"Benedict Roezl, the great collector, often visited Carter's. He delighted in orchids, but at that time there was not even a livelihood to be gained by collecting them. Such as he gathered he consigned to Messrs. Ortgies, at Zurich, sending only miscellaneous plants and seeds to the English nurserymen, at whose place he met the young German and took a fancy to him. Roezl after a time offered to withdraw his orchid consignments from Ortgies and send them on favorable terms to Sander.

"This entailed a great responsibility but with his agency in prospect, Mr. Sander opened business at St. Albans. Shortly afterward the Roezl consignments began to pour in. There was at that time no talk of the extermination of orchids. They came by hundreds of thousands, in such receptacles as came to hand, many of those on the outside perishing but serving as a protection for those inside. Mr. Sander had no place to store them in safety, and then, too, he had to sell to get some money with which to meet his daily needs. But after a while the result of the large supply was a brisk demand. Roezl, who had lived from hand to mouth for a lifetime, was enabled to retire in five years to spend his old age in peace at Prague. Other collector, scarcely less noted than Roezl, kept up the consignments of orchids for some years, when Mr. Sander put his own men in the field.

"Prior to 1873 Mr. Sander had no greenhouses, but in that year he built one with his own hands for the care of the consignments of orchids. In 1881 he built the first of the houses now famous, just outside St. Albans, and now has five acres of glass and is the largest collector and importer in the world. In recent years Mr. Sander established a depot at Bruges, Belgium, to supply his American and continental patrons with palms, azaleas, bay trees, etc., which he grows there on twenty-five acres of land on which are over 100 large greenhouses, the largest nursery of the kind in Belgium.

"One feature of Mr. Sander's success worthy of special mention is that connected with the cultivation of hybrids, begun in 1878. His results in crossing different species of orchids have been remarkable and have afforded the horticultural world many splendid subjects and at the same time brought the experimenter a substantial reward. Notable among the many hybrids are Lælio-cattleya Arnoldiana, which has twice obtained the gold medal of the Royal Horticultural Society of England: Lælio-cattleya Rothschildiana, Lælio-cattleya Fred. Boyle, Epidendrum-lælio Hardyana, and dozens of others. He has gained many international honors and innumerable medals and certificates by his skill as a plantsman."

Mrs. Sander, three sons and one daughter survive.

George R. Butchart.

George R. Butchart, a well known florist of St. Joseph, Mo., died in a local hospital, January 7, age 48 years. He was born in London, Eng., came to America when a young man, and had been a resident of St. Joseph for about 14 years, conducting a flower shop at the time of his death at 821 Frederick avenue. He was a member of numerous fraternal organizations and was highly respected among a large circle of friends. A widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

CUT FLOWER scarcity and high prices prevail over a wide territory.

ROSES are roses now; it will be three weeks or more before supply catches up to demand.

WASHINGTON and Congress appear to have declared the inaugural ball and parade off again.

DO NOT cut prices to increase your business; raise the standard of quality and service; let every step be progressive; lead in excellence, and appreciation will lend a helping hand.

DECORATIVE greens, formerly shipped as second class express, was placed in the first-class, January 10, with an advance of about 33 per cent. The old rate was $2.54 per 100, 85 cents less than the new charge of $3.39.

Coal Prices.

COAL price reductions, ranging from 25 cents to 75 cents a ton, were announced by two large retail coal companies at St. Louis, Mo., January 18. This is the second such reduction announced by the companies in the last month.

GROWERS who are looking for opportunity will find it in their bench space, every foot of which must be pulling all the time. The quicker the rotation of crops, the greater the return.

THE retailer who does not keep his customers and prospects constantly informed as to the varied and good qualities of his stock is losing golden opportunities. Suggestions lead to sales, without which there is no progress. Shout it as from the house tops that you have flowers to sell and people will crowd in to see what it is all about.

Plant Propagator Examination.

The United States civil service commission will hold an open competitive examination for plant propagator, throughout America, February 23, 1921. A vacancy in the bureau of plant industry, at $1,800 a year, at Chico, Calif., is to be filled, as are other vacancies requiring similar qualifications at higher and lower salaries, from this examination. Satisfactory appointees may be allowed the increase granted by congress of $20.00 per month. Applicants must show that they have had at least five years of practical field experience, including greenhouse, in the propagation, cultivation and handling of new and rare plant immigrants and the making and filing of records of field work. All statements will be accepted subject to verification. Applicants must be between the ages of 25 and 69 years. The subjects are: 1, practical questions on handling and propagation of new plant immigrants and field station problems, 40; 2, thesis on best conditions for successful propagation and after-care of new plant introductions (to be handed the examiner on the day of examination), 20; 3, practical experience and training in the propagation of new and unusual plant immigrants, 40—total 100. Both men and women may enter this examination, though the appointing officers have the right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles. Application blanks may be obtained from the local secretary of the United States civil service board at any postoffice.

Traveling Men Ask Lower Railroad Fare

At the meeting of the International Federation of Commercial Travelers at Chicago recently, delegates representing more than 100,000 commercial travelers urged the adoption by railroads of interchangeable mileage tickets, good for one year, and sold at a flat rate of 20 per cent under prevailing passenger tariffs. These tickets were to be in denominations of 3,000 or 5,000 miles, which would prevent the general public from availing itself of the reduced rates to any appreciable extent. Railroad representatives went into session immediately after adjournment of the meeting, but announced later no decision would be reached for some time.

SUPPLY SHORT AND PRICES HIGH.

Flowers in general this week are in limited supply, and prices advanced accordingly. The call for roses is far greater than the supply and such varieties as Premier, Russell, Ophelia and White Killarney are now selling at $10 per 100 for shorts to $40 for long grades, wholesale. They retail, according to variety, from $3.00 to $4.00 a dozen. Carnations are in great demand, and there is a decided scarcity of this flower at $8.00 to $10.00 per 100, colored being the favorities. Roman hyacinths are plentiful this week. Sweet peas are of excellent quality, and are coming in larger supply. Jonquils are on the market and there are also large flowered snapdragons. Callas are to be had at $15.00 per 100. A few California-grown violets are offered at $1.50. Narcissi of first quality is also selling. Lilium Harrisii brings from 20 to 25 cents each. Lily of the valley is plentiful and the demand good. Calendulas are offered in quantity, and there are a few gardenias on the market. A moderate supply of cattleyas is seen.

NOTES.

The florists' club held an official meeting January 13, which was attend by 65 members. Among the visitors were Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind., who addressed the club, and Mr. Lee, formerly in the government service, who spoke on "Income Tax Returns". He imparted much valuable information. J. F. Ammann was called upon and addressed the members on the subject of the National Flower Growers' Association of which he is secretary. He also dwelt upon the work accomlished by the national publicity committee of the Society of American Florists.

The annual orchid show at the Missouri Botanical Garden opened January 16, with decided improvement of the arrangement of displays over former years, the plants now being placed on old trees and stumps, as found growing in their native habitat. Orchids of terrestrial habit are seen growing underneath the trees in irregular beds. In addition to the splendid orchid display, other plants make a fine showing.

There were about 200 present at the tackey party given January 14, at Westminster hall by the florists' club. Contrary to the rules, however, very few were dressed in tackey fashion. The hall was decorated artistically with smilax and there was excellent music in plenty by a jazz orchestra. An abundance of splendid punch was served—minus the "kick."

The Bourdet Floral Co. is moving out its winter stock to excellent advantage.

H. J. Berning is cleaning up in roses, carnations and violets.

C. A. Kuehn's books show a nice increase in orders.

Visitors: Julius Dilloff, New York; Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.: Mrs. Heath, Columbia, Mo. R. D. M.

SPARTA, WIS.—The range of Z. K. Jewett & Co., 40 years in the family, has been sold to N. W. Ellis, with a Mr. Robinson, formerly of La Crosse, as manager. The Jewetts retain the sphagnum moss and nursery business.

SOUTH LYON, MICH.—C. Robert Ross and son, Miller, have purchased the Southerland greenhouse in the new subdivision in Plymouth, and the property will be known in the future as Sunshine Acres nursery. Mr. Ross is science and mathematics teacher in the Plymouth high school, and is well known here, having been a resident until two years ago.

Burpee's Sweet Peas

There is always a ready demand for good Sweet Peas. Well grown flowers realize most remunerative prices, and it is doubtful if any other crop will bring the florist greater profits, considering the outlay for stock and the ease with which the crop is handled.

To ensure flowers of highest quality and at a time before the market is glutted with ordinary stock, the seed should be sown during January or February in pots. Start them in a cool house or even a cold frame, and so have first-class sturdy plants for setting out in the open field early in April. This method will give you flowers in late May, and much superior to those sown directly in the open.

When ordering ask for our leaflet on Sweet Pea culture.

The House of Burpee is recognized the world over as American headquarters for Sweet Peas. Burpee's Sweet Peas are grown and developed on Floradale Farms, our California seed ranch, and our strains are unsurpassed for high-class quality and "trueness" to type and color.

Good Sweet Pea seed is scarce this season, due to short crops, and as our stocks of some varieties are limited, we suggest early ordering.

The following list includes only such varieties as we know to be of value for market work. For fuller descriptions and classified list of all varieties, including many novelties now offered for the first time, write for Burpee's Annual which is sent free upon request.

Vaughan's Giant Pansies

VAUGHAN'S INTERNATIONAL PANSIES

Vaughan's International Pansy Mixture was first offered by us in 1889. We import from all the best European sources. Each year has added to the quality of its flowers and variety of its colors. We buy every year novelties of known merit to improve the mixture; it is always complete, always the latest and always the best mixture. We add to all Pansy Mixtures which we now buy more than 50 per cent of the choicest named kinds obtainable, each in correct proportion. This is one of the Specialties that has established the reputation of Vaughan's Flower Seeds, and one which we maintain most carefully.
Trade pkt. 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.50; ½ oz., $5.00; oz., $10.00.

Vaughan's Giant Pansy Mixture

Embraces, besides all the separate shades and colors, five special strains not listed elsewhere, and which can only be had in this and our International Mixture. This mixture includes the richest reds, coppers and bronzes, together with the most delicate rose and pink shadings, all the distinct colors of Trimardeau and the splendid, Cassier strain.
Trade pkt., 50c; ⅛ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00; ¼ lb., $18.00.

Vaughan's Cut Flower Mixture

This mixture is put up by ourselves and contains mostly light colored sorts. We have sold this mixture for several seasons to some of our Chicago cut-flower growers, who have realized big returns from the sale of flowers. Pansies are as easily grown as violets, require less care and bring better results.
Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz., 60c; oz., $4.00.

New Early-Flowering Giant Pansies

The new strain produces its giant flowers about four weeks earlier than other known types. In March, when the old type pansies hardly show any buds the plants of the new strain bore from 3 to 5 of their giant flowers.
Early Flowering Giant White, with eye, Yellow, with eye, Light Blue, Dark Blue, Jupiter Purple, Mars cornflower Blue, North Pole pure white, Wodan black, and Mixed (eight colors). Trade pkt., (500 seeds) 25c; ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture

This is a mixture made by ourselves from 20 different and distinct varieties of this type. While the flowers of this strain do not grow as large as those of the Giant Pansies they excel them by a much greater number of flowers to a plant.
Trade pkt., 25c; ¼ oz. 50c; oz. $1.80.

Vaughan's P. P. (Popular Price) Mixture of Pansies

This mixture, like all "Vaughan" mixtures, is made up by ourselves from separate colors and strains of the Giant and Chicago Parks Bedding types and will furnish a large variety of colors with a good proportion of giant flowers.
Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz. 50c; oz. $3.00.

Providence, R. I.

BRISK BUSINESS; SUPPLY SHORTENING.

Trade during the past week has been quite satisfactory, with a diminishing supply of stock noticeable. Roses are advancing in price daily and are now bringing good figures. Carnations are moving well, with supply and demand about balancing. Violets are having a good call, and Paper Whites, which have been almost at the glut stage for several weeks, are now going well. Easter lilies and a few small flowers are making their appearance in larger numbers and sell freely. Several weddings the past week have helped in the cleanup.

NOTES.

Mr. Scott, formerly of the Westminster Greenhouses, has returned to this city and is opening a store at 777 Broad street, where he will carry a full line of flowers and plants. He has the best wishes of the trade.

The seventy-fifth annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society and election of officers for 1921 will be held in the public library, this city, January 19. A report will also be made on Quarantine No. 37.

Olney Williams is now cutting good Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri.

HEAVIER SUPPLY LOWERS PRICES.

The market held firm at the opening of the week, and prices were about the same as at the close of the previous seven days. After midweek, though, quotations slumped somewhat, especially on roses and carnations. This, in all probability, was due to shipments coming from other markets to the wholesalers. The demand has been for stock for floral work, short roses being especially in demand, the No. 1 and No. 2 grades clean up quickly, and the longer offerings then drag, and are usually bought up at the flat price. The extras and longer grades all bring about the same figure. Carnations dropped from 10 to 12 cents to six and eight cents. There is nothing new coming to market. Jonquils and freesias are seen in large quantities, but seem to hold their price. Ophelia roses, which have been very scarce, seem to be coming on crop again. Very few American Beauties are available.

LIMITED SUPPLY MOVES FAST

A visit to the wholesale houses last week did not show any change over the previous period. Stock is scarce, and when it does arrive, is immediately sent out on orders, and while the wholesalers claim that January will show a volume equal to last year, the retailers are complaining of slack business. The rose supply has been the chief source of worry since the holidays, as the arrivals has run chiefly to the long fancy grades with a decided shortage of the short and medium lengths, and it is true that the retailer does not like to pay 35 and 40 cents for roses and then cut them down for funeral work, as some of them have had to do. The supply of carnations is on the increase, and with a few more bright days, the carnation problem should be solved for the rest of the season, for once they start coming right, they should continue through to the end. Easter lilies have been good property and cleaned up daily at good prices, while callas are in short supply and sell on sight. Sweet peas are on the increase, and while the supply is still short of the demand, it should not be long until both are equal. The one bright spot in the market last week was the advance in the price of Paper White narcissus, and it was a treat to get away from the starvation figures that have prevailed since Christmas. Violets also met with a brisk demand, and brought better returns. The supply of lily of the valley and orchids was about equal to the call, and we want to say that the former is the finest seen here for a long time. Other seasonable flowers arriving include baby primroses, calendulas and mignonette.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the retail florists' association was held at the Seventh avenue hotel, January 13. The speaker of the evening was Dean Walker of Duquesne University. He gave a very interesting talk on organization and what the members of the association would have to do in order to make it a success. George Wessenauer, of Sewickley, Pa., also spoke on advertising, and brought home some facts that cannot be ignored; that is, that an ad must be attractive, and in order to carry weight, you must keep at it all the time, not only when flowers are plentiful, but also when they are scarce. Mr. Wessenauer must know whereof he speaks, as he has built his present large business through advertising, and then, doing as he advertises. The question of the present rose shortage was also brought up, and what could be done to prevent it in the future, but the only remedy for that is increased production and new building. The trouble is, in order to get enough for Christmas, all the growers planned their crops for that day, thus creating a shortage during January, as there has always been. Again, the demand has increased faster than production and the newer varieties of roses do not run to quantity but to quality, thus cutting down the supply, and if we want to keep them with us, they must realize higher prices than the old-timers. As to the shortage of other flowers, this market used to depend a great deal on the small growers within a radius of 100 miles, who used to ship their surplus to the wholesale houses. Today, these growers find the demand for cut flowers in their own district, great enough to use practically all they can produce, thus leaving them nothing to ship to the market, and even at times they have to call on this city for stock to help them out. This is the result of advertising, and the condition will be no better until production is increased.

NOTES.

The florists of McKeesport, Pa., have taken up Sunday closing in earnest, and since the first of the year, have remained closed. More power to you, McKeesport, and may the rest of them in this district follow suit.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

A SPHERE OF PURE WHITE PETALS

THE seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908, George J. Ball, a Sweet Pea and Aster specialist, selected a plant among his Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that from eight to ten flowers only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in ¼-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds, at $3.00 per trade packet.

MR. GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, November 9th, 1920.

Dear Sir—We feel impelled to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your White Asters. In addition to its magnificent form, it also has the advantage of being an excellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have to offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing as it is superior to any White Aster. Very truly yours,

THE CHICAGO FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

NO CHANGE IN THE MARKET

There is no great change in market conditions since last week, and stock in general is in exceedingly short supply, with the exception of a few items to be mentioned later. The wholesaler is finding it impossible to fill anywhere near all the orders, but is doing his best under the very trying conditions to give each of his regular customers some stock to carry them along. The buyer is glad to secure stock at any price, and while some believe the cost of a few items is too high they realize that supply and demand govern same, and are making the best of the situation. The present shortage of stock is the greatest ever experienced in this market in January, even during the "influenza," and prices are considerably higher than they were at Christmas or New Year's. Roses, particularly, are in short supply, with prices on good stock ranging all the way from 25 cents to 75 cents each, and in some instances more or less, depending upon the quality. To make a long story short, there are dozens of customers for every rose, and the same practically holds true for carnations, with choice stock selling at $8 per 100 and up. Lilies and callas are good property and find ready buyers. Paper White narcissus is in strong demand and is bringing very satisfactory figures. Some short stemmed tulips are selling at $8 and even $12 per 100. Jonquils are being sold in the better grades at $12 per 100. Sweet peas are in fair supply but are disposed of early. Violets are a trifle more plentiful. Lily of the valley is one item that is within the reach of every buyer, and fancy stock was offered the past week as low as $6 per 100. Orchids are more reasonable in price, but an advance may be expected in all corsage flowers in the near future over those of last week. Calendulas, stevia, daisies, pansies, mignonette, Romans, etc., are included in the offerings and have a good call. Blooming plants are having a brisk demand with cyclamens and primroses the principal offerings. Funeral work has been plentiful, and there has been a good demand for wedding flowers. Everyone is deeply interested in how long the present shortage will continue, and from all reports received, so far, it appears as if it will be another week at least before any great change for the better will be noticeable.

GOOD DEMAND WITH SUPPLY LIMITED.

Stock is scarce, and there is a good demand for everything offered. There are but a few hundred roses arriving daily and these are distributed among four wholesale houses. The stock, however, is of very good quality, but none of the short stem to be had, prices ruling in most cases from 15 to 50 cents each. Carnations are not available. Sweet peas are more plentiful than usual while Paper Whites and stevia are the principal offerings and are shouldering the bulk of demand, especially in funeral work. There are quite a few violets offered. Pot plants are good property, being plentiful, and in many cases, used in place of cut flowers.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes has had a heavy week of funeral work and was fortunate in having a heavy cut of narcissi. He has also had several good orders for decorations which kept him busy.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. has had a heavy run on funeral work with several good decorations also booked. Made-up baskets are going well here.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. reports a carnation famine, with roses little better. Stevia and narcissi are the mainstays.

H. Barbee reports good business, but a scarcity of supply in nearly all items except narcissi.

A. Mohr is sending to this market some very nice cyclamens that find eager buyers.

H. Kusik & Co. report their only difficulty is in getting enough cut stock to fill orders. E. J. B.

LIGHT DEMAND FOR STOCK.

The demand for flowers and pot plants during the week ending January 15 was fairly good for the time of the year. It is usually a quiet time, immediately following the rush of the holiday season, and the present year is no exception to the rule. Florists generally say that the volume of business so far in January compared very favorably with that of previous years, and as a result they are very much encouraged. Funerals have not been numerous, and this is reducing the volume to a certain extent. Weddings, parties and receptions are also rather quiet at this particular time, but there are some social functions scheduled in the near future which are expected to stimulate trade. Corsages are selling fairly well. Pot plants are going well, as the supply is rather reduced. They consist largely of primroses, cyclamens and begonias. Roses, carnations, narcissi and violets are the best feature in the flower section. The supply is reduced because of the many dark days which have prevailed. Prices are steady at the levels which maintained just prior to the holidays. Prospects for the future are considered fairly bright. One of the changes is the fact that orders do not average as much as formerly, but on the other hand, there are a larger number of orders which make up for the smaller lots.

Local lovers of flowers were invited to visit the State Hospital for the Insane in this city recently to see what was claimed to be the best lot of blooming cyclamens ever shown in Ohio. More than 1,000 plants were in full bloom, with an average of 25 blossoms to each plant. The colors varied from pure white to deep red, and double and single blooms were shown in many cases. The plants were grown by T. J. Blinco, the florist at the institution, who is an expert in that line. One entire building was filled with blooms from cyclamen.

The inauguration of Harry L. Davis as governor of Ohio was the signal for a large number of flowers to be sent the incoming executive. Floral designs were shown in the state capitol, where the inaugural ceremonies were held. J. O. Mills, Franklin Floral Co., and many Cleveland florists were represented. J. W. L.

Hartford, Conn.

It has been one of the writer's unofficial jobs to boost Hartford, and tell his friends if they wanted to see a beautiful city, to visit this one. There are, of course, degrees in beauty that accompany the degrees in temperature. Hartford, in June, with the rose garden of Elizabeth park in full bloom, and all the other parks in full dress, is somewhat different from Hartford in the middle of January. About that time, we ran into an amateur snowstorm that later developed a full grown wind and rainstorm. Nevertheless, other cities and towns had a similar visitation.

A person who has an eye for the beautiful, and whose fad is in visiting retail flower stores, should be delighted to call on Spear & McManus in their new store, 242 Asylum street. It is as near the "last word" in retail stores as concrete, marble and plate glass can make it. Near the front entrance, a handsome fountain has been installed; the counters are of marble, and rows of large mirrors adorn the walls. A neat and well constructed greenhouse has been erected on the roof. There is a large and well fin-

Welch's Flower Shop, A. W. Welch and Mrs. E. M. Welch, proprietors, is an exceptionally fine store at 197 Trumbull street. The Welch family have long been favorably known in the Hartford trade, having been located for a number of years at 180 Asylum street.

The Coombs stores, 741 Main and 364 Asylum streets, are prosperous. Mention is made in our New Haven notes of their new store in that city. John Coombs, the head of the house, continues active at his greenhouses.

A venerable florist who for 60 years or more has watched Hartford grow, is Robert Marchant, now 87 years old, head of Robert Marchant & Sons, 13 Huntington street. He recites many interesting incidents of his early years in Hartford.

Our old friend, George G. McClunie, keeps on deck with a good store, well stocked. He is greatly interested in a florists' club for this vicinity.

STOCK SCARCE IN MOST LINES.

In the main, the scarcity of flowers continues; there are a few more carnations, sweet peas are increasing, and calendulas are improving in quality. Callas are scarce, and Easter lilies about equal to the demand. Cattleyas, of fine quality, are now down to $1.00, and even less. Lily of the valley has come to stay. Several growers are sending in sprays of good quality from pips of last fall's importation. Roses are still shy, particularly the shorter grades; nothing is too short now to bring 15 cents. There are superb long Premier, 24 to 30 inch, which clean up at 40 cents. There is but one opinion about this rose, which is that it has made good. Those who failed to plant, are now envying those who did. Ophelia, one of the greatest of the winners of the past four years, is now marked for the discard, while there is a great scramble for its sporty offspring, Butterfly. Double White Killarney, which has been tabooed by many, is still a winner with others, and has been one of the best sellers of the winter. Freesia is now seen in quantity, a number of growers seeming to have hit the market at the same time. The usual variations in quality prevail. Trumpet Major narcissus has found a ready market. There are a few tulips, but they have very short stems, as yet. All kinds of green are plentiful, notably southern asparagus.

January 17.—Flowers were very scarce this morning, particularly roses, 20 cents being low; carnations selling at eight to ten cents. Although there was the two days' cut, yet everything cleaned up at record prices.

SOLUTION OF SHORT STEM ROSE PROBLEM.

Edward Reid proposes the following plan, which he claims will solve the short stemmed rose problem at Christmas: "All wholesalers to join in a compact to cut out the dahlia after October 10, without which competition the greenhouse-grown stock, particularly the fall crop of roses, would have a clear field, and could be sold at a price that would pay the grower to cut and not pinch. The plants would then come on, with another crop of moderate length stemmed stock for the holidays. It is not fair to the legitimate florist, who supplies the market the year round, and who has many thousands of dollars tied up in his plant, to have his agents bring in and handle a field-grown stock, a by-product of dahlia root or tuber growers, and crowd out a fall crop of roses grown under glass. For this reason, I have always refused to handle dahlia flowers, confining my efforts in its season entirely to greenhouse-grown stock."

PAPER WHITES.

A good judge of the market accounts for the overstocked condition this season on Paper Whites to the forcing of the same by every retailer with a bit of a greenhouse, who had every spare foot of space filled with these bulbs, producing flowers at a cost of from one-half to two cents more a spike than they could buy them for in the open market. He thought if retailers would devote all their energy to perfecting methods of featuring and displaying their goods, and increasing the efficiency of their sales force, they would soon create a demand that would take up the surplus and rush the growers to the limit.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD.

Alfred M. Campbell, the successful grower and commission man, lily and rose expert, etc., etc., whose progress in life seems to have been one big success after another, increased his pace on Saturday last, and bringing matters to a focus, purchased the properties 1510-1512 Sansom street. For a number of years, he has occupied the half-basement store at 1510 for his wholesale business. His purchase now gives him control of this valuable parcel of

NOTES.

J. Otto Thilow is one of the busiest of men in the profession. As store manager of the retail seed department of Henry A. Dreer, 714 Chestnut street, he is most energetic and efficient. He is also a talented speaker and lecturer on horticultural subjects, devoting his entire spare time to visiting the native habitat of plants for greenhouse and garden culture in all parts of the world, where with camera and notebook, he obtains valuable information that is afterwards presented to horticultural societies, garden and florists' clubs, and other such bodies. On January 22, in company with George H. Strohlein, also of Dreer's, he sails for Porto Rico, where he will revel for a time among the palms and flowers of this tropical clime. Robert Craig, together with Henry C. Geiger, are both spending the winter on the island. Frank M. Ross and wife and Miss Mooter are also spending a winter vacation there for a month.

A carnation grower, who has had great success with his plants this season, prepares his soil in the field through intensive culture to have it contain as much nitrogen as possible. After it is placed on the benches, a coating of bone meal is raked in and watered. In two weeks it is ready for planting. There is no topdressing until the plants appear to need a stimulant. Then dried blood is given, which, when skillfully applied, appears to be very beneficial.

Eugene Bernheimer invited A. B. Cartledge, Carl Corts and Mr. Crawford to accompany him on an auto trip to the Florist Gardens at North Wales, January 13. An inspection of the mammoth houses showed the stock, all roses, to be in fine condition, although somewhat off crop after the strenuous cutting at Christmas.

At the Battles Century Shop, they are featuring an abundance of stock at low prices. On Monday last their large window contained over 50 vases of cut flowers, all priced. These made a fine showing, which in addition to quickening sales at this time will bring the store to mind when stock becomes more plentiful.

Chas. Henry Fox's window display of standard rose trees, made of miniature wooden roses, set in single rose tube vases, was very attractive. Charles is certainly up front when it comes to novelty.

Cattleyas, white lilac and choice Lily of the valley are features of the Leo Niessen Co.'s stock. American Beauty roses and carnations are quantity items. K.

TRADE VARIES FROM GOOD TO POOR

Wholesale trade, in some lines, was fair during the past week, but in others it was slow. The supply of roses was light, and the short and medium grades quickly cleaned up. Special stock was slower. The larger retail stores do not seem to be doing a heavy business, and consequently special roses and orchids are hard to move at asking prices, orchids being particularly slow. Violets have also been slow at all kinds of prices, from 30 to 75 cents per 100. The supply of carnations was light, but there was enough to supply the demand. Yellow narcissi and tulips are arriving in considerable volume and go well. Lily of the valley is slow. White lilies, marigold, mignonette and various minor stocks keep moving. There is a good supply of gardenias, with only a moderate movement. With the present languid condition of business, there is plenty of stock in all lines to supply the demand. While there has been an occasional storm of wind and rain, the winter, thus far, has been moderate.

A fair supply of stock is arriving, and there is about the usual Monday morning movement. Yellow narcissus, tulips and freesias are in considerable demand and the rose stock is likely to clean up. Carnations are on the increase and lower prices may soon be expected if the weather continues moderate and clear.

NOTES.

Among those who will attend the carnation convention at Washington are Secretary John Young, who goes January 22, to attend a previous meeting; Frank Traendly, Roman J. Irwin, Joseph Manda, W. J. Reimels and wife, Mrs. Traendly and Mrs. Manda are also likely to be of the party. C. Lowther of the transportation committee, has been on the sick list, but is again at his desk.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society was held in this city, January 10, to discuss plans for the next exhibition, which, like the last one, will be held in the roof garden of the Hotel Pennsylvania. President Vincent and George L. Stillman remained after the meeting, and attended the session of the New York Florists' Club.

The sweet pea, Miss Jennie Mamitsch, exhibited at the January meeting of the New York Florists' Club by Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., is a sport of Rose Queen, and appears to be a fine production. It originated at the Mamitsch range.

Miss Agnes A. Kessler, eldest daughter of Philip Kessler, of the Cut Flower Exchange, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Washington Square hospital several weeks ago, has so far recovered as to be able to return to her home.

It is rumored that a new retail store will soon be opened at Seventh avenue and 11th street, which is in the Greenwich Village neighborhood, quite a resort for long-haired men and short-haired women.

Charles A. Dards sailed for Europe on January 8. He will be absent about four months, visiting, for pleasure, England, France, Italy, Spain and probably other countries.

In relation to the Golden Spur narcissus, it seems early for their arrival, but D. J. Pappas, of the United Cut Flower Co., is receiving several hundred a day.

Miss Flora M. Lins, well and favorably known in the wholesale district, will open a retail store about February 1, at 126 East 41st street.

L. A. Hauser, a veteran salesman of the Cut Flower Exchange, has been confined to his home for two weeks with influenza.

J. K. Allen, in the 18th street market, is receiving a fine stock of buddleia and freesias.

BETTER SUPPLY BUT DEMAND LIGHT

There has been a falling off in trade the past week, although there has been a consistent call for funeral work. Carnations are improving each week and roses are showing the beneficial effects of the sunny weather. Ward, Ophelia, White Killarney and Columbia are the favorites. Freesias, daffodils and jonquils are increasing in numbers daily and the same is true of Paper Whites and calendulas. Cyclamens, primroses, Dutch hyacinths and pot tulips are among the offerings. A few azaleas are also coming to this market.

NOTES.

The ladies' florists' association met at the home of Mrs. Edward Frey, January 11, and elected officers as follows: Mrs. John Dunbar, president; Mrs. H. P. Neun, vice-president; Mrs. A. Kent, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Suhr, secretary. A social afternoon was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The annual election of officers of the florists' association was held January 14, and resulted as follows: James Sproat, president; Hugo Teute, vice-president; Harry Glenn, treasurer; Ambrose Secker, secretary.

Hiram W. Wilson and wife left January 10 to spend part of the winter in Florida. Their address will be Winter Haven, where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Robert Paige.

Felix Alberts is featuring a most unusual bird of paradise plant which is attracting much attention. Pots of tulips and primroses are grouped about the window.

George Kramer has returned from a trip to Michigan and Buffalo, spending several weeks at the latter place in S. A. Anderson's store.

J. B. Keller Sons had a fine decoration for the shoe style show during the week of January 17.

Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., President; J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., Vice-President; Clarence R. Jones, 110 South Street, Baltimore, Md., Secretary-Treasurer; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., Counsel.

Next Annual Meeting, June, 1921.

THE nominal price of bags at Chicago, January 19, was $34.00.

VEGETATION in the south of France, was seriously injured by cold weather last month.

THE Mangelsdorf Seed Co., Atchison, Kans., recently increased its capital to $750,000, fully paid.

GEO. C. STUMPP, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, has returned from his winter vacation.

ST PAUL, MINN.—The pure bred seed show, it is announced, will be held in this city, February 23-25.

LA CROSSE, WIS.—The state grain and corn show will be held here, January 26-29. A large exhibit is expected.

SOUTH BEND, IND.—The Oliver Chilled Plow Works has reduced prices on all horse-drawn implements from eight to 20 per cent.

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y.—The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. says business has been steadily improving since January 1, and believes it will continue doing so.

TOLEDO, O.—Clovers opened lower January 16, with cash offered at $12.85, and March $13.02½. Timothy, cash 1919, was quoted at $3.30, and March $3.50.

WAPAKONETA, O.—Louis Taugeman has been appointed receiver for the Ohio Seed Co., said to be solvent, but unable to dispose of large stocks to advantage.—J. W. L.

THE Everette R. Peacock Co.'s store, 4011 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, was visited by fire last week, estimated loss, mainly garden seeds, $10,000, fully covered by insurance.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, January 19, were as follows: Timothy, $4.50 to $6.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover, $14.00 to $19.00.

VISITED CHICAGO: L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.; Travis S. Pendergrass, representing Waldo Rohnert, Gilroy, Calif.; D. H. Gilbert, Monticello, Fla.

VISALIA, CALIF.—Japanese associations in the San Joaquin valley have inaugurated a campaign intended to amend conditions which have created antagonism to Japanese in this state.

G. C. ELDERING, of W. J. Eldering & Son, Overveen, Haarlem, Holland, expects to visit the United States much earlier than usual this season, having arranged to sail on the S. S. Rotterdam February 8.

DUTCH bulb growers say that while the outlook is for lower prices the coming season, improved German demand over the very low record of 1920 may advance the figures on the cheaper grades of bulbs.

H. SUZUKI, of the Yokohama, Nursery Co., Yokohama, sends holiday greetings, which shows that the Japanese bulb troubles have not weighed so heavily upon him that he has forgotten the friends he honored with a visit here some six months ago.

DAVID BURPEE, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., says business has been coming in wonderfully well for this early date. The demand is running now a little more than double that of the same period last year and practically three times that of 1919, March, of course, is the busiest month, and it is rather difficult to predict, so early in the season, just how the year will turn out. One good sign, however, is the way requests for catalogues are coming in, these running away ahead of the past two years. H. L. Renard, who is in charge of the firm's stock seed development at Floradale, is now on his way back to California.

Field Seeds.

PRICES LOWER; DEMAND DULL.

The stocks of most kinds of field seeds held by seedsmen in the leading centers of distribution were reported to be smaller than normal during the week ending Jan. 8. There has been little or no demand for seeds and seedsmen have been reluctant to enlarge their stocks from supplies in the country, where more than the usual amount is being held by growers. Prevailing prices are much lower than those on the same date last year and two years ago. The quality of the various kinds of seed in general is good.

A fair export demand for red clover, timothy, Kentucky bluegrass and meadow fescue is reported by some seedsmen; other seedsmen state that there is no export demand for any of these seeds at the present time.

Clover and alfalfa.—A fair local or distant demand for red and alsike clover is reported for New York, Richmond, Buffalo, Louisville, Chicago and Minneapolis. The demand for red clover from the East has been unusually good in Salt Lake City. Wholesale quotations for red clover in the various cities range from $20 to $25 per 100 lbs. These prices are about one-half those of two years ago and about two-fifths those of last year at a corresponding time. Although stocks of alfalfa seed are normal or above, there seems to be a fairly good demand for seed of fancy quality. During the 11 months ending November 30, 3,695,202 lbs. of clover were exported.

Grasses.—Normal stocks or above of timothy are indicated for New York, Baltimore, Richmond, Buffalo, Louisville, Kansas City and Seattle. In common with other grasses there is little demand for timothy seed, but prices for timothy have remained fairly steady, while prices for Kentucky bluegrass and orchard grass, especially the latter, have shown some weakness in several markets. Prevailing prices for Kentucky bluegrass are a little lower than last year but orchard grass prices are only about one-half as much as last year. All cities, except Chicago and Louisville, report normal stocks of redtop; stocks in Chicago are said to be smaller, while in Louisville they are reported larger than normal for this time of the year.

During November, which is the latest month for which figures have been compiled by the Department of Commerce, the exports of timothy amounted to 1,414,041 lbs., which compares favorably with the November exports during the past seven years. For the 11 months ending Nov. 30, 1920, 11,422,726 lbs. were exported. When the December figures are computed, it is expected that the exports for 1920 will be approximately the same as the average for prewar years.

Millets and sorghums.—Most of the 1920 crop of millet and sorghum seed is in growers' hands, consequently stocks of these held by seedsmen are much below normal. Not much attention is being paid to any variety of millet except Japanese, which, because of the reported short crop in Iowa, is being sought by middle western seedsmen.

N. J. Mr. Peterson was born in Scotland 57 years ago. He came to this country in 1887 and was employed by Peter Henderson & Co., remaining with them for about 19 years. He was later for a time with James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y. He was a faithful man, well thought of by employers and associates. He is survived by his wife and seven children.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham and Salem, Mass., was in the city, January 14-15, calling on the seed and cut flower trade. He is an extensive grower of gladioli at Cedar Acres farm, Wenham.

At the various seed stores, the principal activity is in getting out catalogues and otherwise preparing for spring trade.

Boston Seed Trade.

Mrs. Sarah E. Rawson, widow of the late W. W. Rawson, died at her home in Arlington January 12. Funeral services were held at the home of her son, Herbert W. Rawson in Arlington January 15.

At the store of Joseph Breck & Sons Corp., it was reported that business had been good and that they had no fears for the future. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. are taking an optimistic view of the situation. This store is carrying a good stock of cyclamens, primroses, palms and ferns, grown at its own greenhouses.

The seedsmen of this city are sending out their catalogues and it is yet too early to estimate the volume of trade they will bring in, but at all the stores it was stated that the general indications are favorable for a fine spring business.

The Thomas J. Grey Co. stated that it had an excellent fall trade in grass seeds and bulbs, and that present indications are satisfactory.

At the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co.'s store it was stated that its fall trade had been excellent and that the outlook never was better.

National Canners' Association.

The annual convention of the National Canners' Association is in progress this week at Atlantic City, N. J., with a large attendance of seedsmen and other exhibitors, and a small showing of the canners, compared with previous meetings. The exhibition on the pier is very fine, the seedsmen having displays including John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis.; A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; W. A. Davis Seed Co., Bozeman, Mont.; Hogg & Lytle, Toronto, Ont.; N. B. Keeney & Son, Le Roy, N. Y.; Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Woodruff Given Verdict in Suit.

On January 12, 1921, the jury in the Suffolk superior court at Boston, Mass., gave a verdict of $2,503 to the plaintiff, S. D. Woodruff & Sons, of Orange, Conn., against the defendant, Jay G. Feldstein, Pittsburgh, Pa., as damages for failure by Feldstein to accept delivery and pay for 60 tons of dried peas in November, 1917. Curtis Nye Smith, attorney for the American Seed Trade Association was the plaintiff's trial attorney.

American Association of Nurserymen.

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President; M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-sixth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June, 1921.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. T. Bohlender, Tippecanoe City, O.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The state conservation commission has been asked for an appropriation of $35,000 to establish a nursery at the Boys' School at Plainfield.

CHESTNUT orchards which have been practically annihilated by blight may be restored. Ten years' experiment has shown that it is possible to cross the chinquapin, a dwarf chestnut, with the Japanese chestnut, which is blight resistant, and that the hybrid trees thus produced are quite resistant to the disease and yields nuts of good flavor and quality.

Paper Shortage Due to Bugs.

According to a press dispatch from Washington, the cause of the paper shortage is bugs. The pulp industry is suffering heavily in some sections because of the infestation of a green-gray beetle, the adult form of the aspen borer, the department of agriculture reports. In some areas, 50 per cent of the trees are dead or dying because of the beetle's activities. Burning the infested trees is the cure recommended.

Sceery Again Heads Park Commission.

Edward Sceery, well known florist of Paterson and Passaic, N. J., after serving for more than 20 years in connection with the parks in the first named city, has been re-elected to again fill the position of park board president after 12 consecutive terms in that office. During his administration, many splendid improvements have been made in parks and playgrounds in Paterson, and his continuance as the park board's chief executive means still further benefits to the citizens of the community.

Packing Material.

At one of the conventions of the American Association of Nurserymen, considerable discussion was evoked on a subject taken from the question box, reading: "What are the best materials to use for packing, whether moss or excelsior? Is there any third material that is used extensively?"

"It depends upon the kind of stock you are shipping," said Harlan P. Kelsey. "For some kinds of shipments charcoal and sawdust are extensively used. Where shipments may be six weeks to two months in transit, there is nothing like dry spaghnum moss. Mr. Wilson showed us some little evergreen trees of the Arnold Arboretum yesterday, pulled off the rocks at Russian Thibet, that were ten weeks in transit, packed in fairly dry spaghnum moss. Too wet moss cannot be used, for the reason that the stock will heat, or start to grow, and will not remain dormant."

"Is your moss baled when you get it?" asked J. M. Pitkin.

"We do not get it baled," replied Mr. Kelsey. "We pull it out of the swamp. I understand the commercial spaghnum moss is usually taken out and made into bales. It is necessary to use fairly fresh spaghnum, not over two years old, and I think that is the best packing material we have at the present time."

"If Mr. Kelsey had to buy moss by the carload, instead of pulling it out of the swamp, he would advise using something cheaper," said Mr. Meehan. "With small evergreens, moss is preferable, but it is too expensive to use for shrubs. We use shingle tow and baled shavings, soaking it thoroughly so as to retain the moisture, and it will carry shipments in good condition from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

"I think the American nurseryman does the rottenest packing of any in the world," was Mr. Kelsey's reply. "If he had to ship abroad, to Japan and Russia, for instance, it would cure an American nurseryman of poor packing. The foreigners know how to pack, and they do pack well. It pays, and I think the good packers are going to get the business in the future."

"I think a great deal of trouble comes from not having the packing material between the bundles of trees or shrubs and the sides and ends of boxes, where protection is most needed," said Mr. Pitkin.

"We had a shipment packed in shingle tow which, through an error, was on the road nine weeks, and yet was found to be in fine condition when opened," W. C. Reed said.

"We buy our moss in carload lots from the Wisconsin swamps and pile it up where the snow will accumulate on it during the winter, and the melting of the snow on this moss puts it in fine shape for spring packing," said T. E. Cashman. "We use moss in storing and packing small plants, but in packing regular stock for shipping we use the shingle shavings, and mix with that for fall packing the planer shavings. This will often carry six to eight weeks without losing moisture. I believe that wood packing is preferable for shipping in this country. Moss, when piled up, will dry out to a depth of 6 to 8 inches, while shingle shavings under the same conditions will not dry out more than one-half inch in depth."

"Where you have rhododendrons, or azaleas, or that class of stock, they are better shipped in moss," replied Mr. Kelsey. "Evergreen should be packed damp, the roots kept separate with cross pieces and the tops ventilated. Keep the roots of ornamental stock moist and the tops dry."

Hats from Plants.

Of the many economic uses to which plants are put, one of the oldest is the manufacture of hats, according to the Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin for November, 1920. In addition to the many grasses employed for this purpose, mention is made of the giant bamboo used to a great extent by natives of India and palms in many varieties, prominent among which are the date palm widely spread over southern Europe, northern Africa and southeastern Asia, the Chinese fan palm, the coir palm, native of China and Japan, the Bermuda palm of the West Indies, not omitting the panama-hat palm indigenous to the shady deep forests of Peru, Eucador, etc.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces open competitive examinations for the position of investigator in marketing fruits and vegetables, $1,800-$2,760 per annum, and assistant in marketing fruits and vegetables at a salary of $1,200-$1,800. The positions are open to citizens of the United States of both sexes. The duties of the investigator in marketing will be to conduct investigations of the handling, marketing and distribution of fruits and vegetables; make a careful study of the facilities available for handling and transporting these products; securing market information relative to supply, etc. The duties of the assistant in marketing will be to assist in the duties outlined above.

Applicants should apply at once for Form 2118, stating the title of the application desired, to the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or to the secretary of local civil service boards.

Soil Preparation.

The really successful grower well knows the value of careful soil-preparation. In this article we wish to dwell upon one factor — moisture — as this is particularly exacting in winter work. At this time of the year we cannot apply great quantities of water, as there is constant danger of soil stagnation; and yet, without moisture, good results are impossible. Therefore, we make it a practice, when replanting beds or benches, if these are dry, to apply a reasonable amount of water and give these beds a day or two to absorb this moisture. Then they are carefully worked over, keeping an eye open for dry spots. We are very careful to dig up any "dry nests" and replace with moist soil, aiming to get the body uniform as to moisture, mixing any dry spots with damp soil. In this way we can establish excellent soil conditions, where results are certain. Long experience has taught us that there are in nearly every greenhouse, spots or locations where either evaporation is greater or soil conditions are different, inducing either dryness or wet spots, the correction of which is not easy. It makes no difference whether we employ mechanical watering or hose applications, these uneven spots will occur, and there is no greater obstacle to successful growing than uneven moisture. It makes no difference whether we operate on a bench of carnations, pot geraniums or rose cuttings, or sow lettuce or radish seed, or plant a solid house to lettuce. Let the first rule be—How about our moisture? In other words, do not plant into dry soil and expect to replace moisture afterwards. Get your moisture first. A boiler-inspector once asked a would-be fireman: "What is the first thing to do when you go to a boiler?" The applicant replied: "Why, start the fire!" Of course, he was wrong—he should have said: "First examine your water level." This same advice holds good in growing crops—first find your water level, and then go ahead.

Mr. W. I. Ferguson, Smiths Falls, Ontario, under date of Dec. 2nd, 1919, writes us the following in regard to our petunias:

"Last year I purchased petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the blooms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8% of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."

Mr. Rudolph Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14th, 1919, writes us:

"I had, last year, just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."

New Haven, Conn.

No city of its size can boast of better retail stores than this community. In fact, a number of its retail stores, in furnishings, equipment and the quality of stock, are on a par with the best stores of what are spoken of as the "metropolitan" cities. One of the latest ventures is the Coombs Flower Shoppe, which has been opened at 978 Chapel street, by the well known Coombs firm of florists of Hartford. It is finely equipped, and is under the management of Mrs. Sara Coombs Martin, who seems quite competent for the position.

The Elm City Flower Shop, E. M. Vergason, proprietor, is a new store, well fitted up and stocked. Mr. Vergason is well and favorably known in the local trade, having been formerly with John N. Champion.

Our old friend, John N. Champion, stated that he had good Christmas trade, but of late it has been quiet.

The Myers Flower Shop, the S. H. Moore Co. and other firms report a fair share of prosperity.

Charles Munro is kept busy between his New Haven business and his range at Westerly, R. I. A. F. F.

BOSTON, MASS.—Fire at the greenhouse and boiler room of W. H. Elliott, January 3, caused a loss estimated at $3,500.

TUXEDO, N. Y.—The Tuxedo Horticultural Society has elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: William Mint, president; C. F. Lawrence, vice-president; Duncan MacGregor, treasurer; James Davidson, secretary.

FULFILLING EXPECTATIONS.

CALLAHAN Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses have a habit of more than fulfilling expectations.

It is quite the usual thing for our customers to express frank surprise when they receive their first shipment from us.

We do not know why it is. We claim certain exclusive advantages for Callahan Greenhouses, but naturally our customers are expecting those features.

Perhaps the most logical explanation is that every little detail has been carefully thought out and provided for — from the design of the smallest member of the greenhouse to the nailing together of the packing cases.

Greenhouse buyers are critical, as a rule. And when they receive a Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouse ready to assemble, they realize that it represents more than selected cypress, ironwork and glass. They appreciate the fine points that a catalog cannot describe, a picture cannot show—the ideals of the maker, in fact.

Let us figure on your next order. Now is the time to prepare for the Spring Construction.

National Capital Greets Gathering.

As we go to press, Washington is extending a gracious welcome to the members of the American Carnation Society on the occasion of its thirtieth annual convention which is being held in the capital city, January 26-27, with an excellent attendance and a fine list of entries, both as to number and quality of blooms staged. The business sessions and exhibition are being held at the New Willard hotel, the hostelry being advantageously situated and offering excellent arrangements for the display, to which the public was admitted after the judges had completed their work which occupied the afternoon of the first day. A full report of the interesting features will appear in next week's issue.

The first business session was called to order at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, when the reports of officers and committees were presented, nominations for officers made, and invitations received for the next meeting place. The programme also includes an address by W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., on "Using Soil More Than One Year," and a very interesting paper on "Carnations for Mothers' Day," sent by Chas P. Mueller, who was unable to attend the meeting this year.

The programme for the final session, Thursday morning, includes several addresses and discussions which promise much of timely interest for those in attendance. The annual banquet will be held in the evening.

President Johnson's Address.

Ladies, gentlemen and fellow members of the American Carnation Society:

It is with the greatest of pleasure that I address you. I am extremely proud of the honor conferred on me as your president to welcome you to this, the thirtieth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society. We meet at this time in Washington, the national capital, the one city above all others towards which the hope of humanity is now turned. We are proud of this city, and proud of our fellow craftsmen who labor and make their homes within its confines. It is a great privilege for the members of our society to meet again with our coworkers in this section of the country. Washington is a city of historic interest to every citizen, and there are many things to attract attention and draw the members away from the meetings, but we ask that every member here make an effort to be present at each session and take an active part in the proceedings. We will be punctual in opening the meetings and endeavor to conduct the business as expeditiously as possible.

It will be well that we take a little time to reflect and turn our thoughts to the good work accomplished by the American Carnation Society during the years that have followed since the society's organization. There is not another trade organization connected with our business that is as widely known at home and abroad or whose members have been more loyal. The annual meetings of the last four or five years have been held during times of extreme stress and uncertainty, owing to war conditions, shortage of coal and poor transportation, but even under such most unfavorable conditions, there have been enough loyal members willing to sacrifice and give their support so that the society's annual meetings and exhibitions could be succesfully held. We are thankful that the extremes of the past few years are gradually passing away, and that we can look to the future, full of hope and confidence.

C. W. Johnson, Rockford, Ill.
President American Carnation Society.

The men who have been most active in directing the affairs of the American Carnation Society in the past, and brought it to its highest success, are numbered among the most successful men in the trade. Some of these we have with us at this meeting and we are grateful for their presence. Others have retired from active duties of business and are not able to be with us. We honor them for their work well done for the benefit of this society and every man who grows carnations. Eight of our past-presidents have passed to the great beyond; let us pause a moment to cherish their memory.

But, if the American Carnation Society is to accomlipsh the purpose which the early workers intended it should, we must not rest on the record of the past, but push on for greater achievements, and it is for the younger men of the trade to be as ambitious as were their fathers—take hold of the helm of the society and push it on to greater success.

Referring to the carnations of today, the varieties now grown, their productiveness, and last, but not least, the prices obtained for the blooms — are the members satisfied? The reports of the Christmas holiday season of 1920, in one instance, gave the prices obtained for the variety, Laddie, as equal to first-class roses. But, are the plants of today as productive as were those of former years? Generally speaking, I do not think they are, and believe there never was a more opportune time for the introduction of varieties, possessing the qualities of good, clear color and productiveness, and I would suggest that those interested in the raising of new varieties, make these qualities the principal aim of their efforts.

There have been prepared for this meeting, papers that ought to be of great interest to every member, and I trust that you will give them your closest attention, and if there is any member who has any question that he would like to bring before the meeting, you have that privilege and it will be given due consideration.

In the spring of next year, there is to be held at Cleveland, O., the national flower show of the Society of American Florists, and in which the American Carnation Society is to take an active part. The secretary is the representative of this society in the arrangement of the carnation exhibits, to which we have pledged our support, and in performing his duties, it may be necessary that he go to Cleveland to attend to the preliminary work connected with the show. If so, I would recommend that he be given the same mileage as that allowed the president when attending the directors' meeting of the S. A. F.

Two new judges will be elected at this meeting. These are important offices, and the men selected should have the confidence of the members of the society.

The minutes of the meeting of the board of directors, held in Cleveland last August, will be presented in the secretary's report.

I wish to extend my thanks to the secretary for his conscientious work during the past year, and to the local committee for its arrangements of the details for this meeting.

Secretary Baur's Report.

Mr. President and members of the American Carnation Society:

I beg leave to report on the past year's work as follows:

Our society has had a very good year, just ended. With a profitable market for its product, our members have prospered, and naturally, our society has felt that stimulus in various ways. Our meeting in Chicago last January was really a surprise in point of attendance, but the abnormally high prices prevailing at the time, prevented a satisfactory entry in the exhibition. This year, market conditions are more nearly normal and the exhibit should be more complete. Attention should be called to the Texas special prize class. Last year, exhibitors from Maine and from Colorado met at Chicago and competed for this prize. The offer being repeated this year, we have entries coming from both Colorado and Washington to compete. This is probably a record distance for shipping carnation blooms. The premiums in sections A and B have been increased again and it is to be hoped that the society's funds will permit of them being kept up to where they now are. We recommend the addition of a class for 50 assorted blooms of standard sorts, with not less than six varieties nor more than 10 blooms of a variety, to be staged in one vase.

Our membership is now as high as it has ever been, and the delinquents last year were fewer than for many years. With a view to increasing our membership, we have this year distributed more than double the usual number of premium schedules, sending more than 500 to non-members. The results have not as yet been very marked, but perseverance in this plan will no doubt bring results in time. Our membership now stands at 348, of these, 13 being life members. During the past year, we have lost by death, Patrick O'Mara, who died May 25; C. W. Ward, who passed away June 24, and Jacob Schulz, who died July 21. These three men were among our oldest members and were known to most of you. Mention should also be made of the passing of Mrs. Dorner, widow of the late Frederick Dorner, who died June 25, and Mrs. Nicholson, wife of our esteemed member, Wm. Nicholson, who died July 31. Many of you have enjoyed the hospitality of their homes in years past. We now have 253 members on the Society of American Florists roster and President Chas. W. Johnson has been named as director for the year 1921.

A resolution was introduced in our meeting last January, to change our by-laws to permit the changing of the annual dues to suit the exigencies of the times. This resolution was printed in the annual report and again circulated with the premium schedule in December. Provision must be made for more funds to meet the expenses of the society, which will probably not be much less for some time to come. We should also not lose sight of the fact that additional funds will enable the society to expand its activities and to do some things which had to go undone for lack of funds. The receipts of the secretary's office during the past year were:

For three life memberships	$ 150.00
For annual dues	733.00
For advertising	461.00
For miscellaneous	108.25
Total	$1,452.25

SOME OFFICIALS OF THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

All of which was turned over to the treasurer. The books of the secretary and the treasurer were audited by a public accountant and found correct.

The annual report was issued and distributed at the regular time following the annual meeting. The premium schedule was delayed a few days on account of delay in the transmitting of copy for the advertising section. The advertising rates were ordered increased by the board of directors, and we are pleased to note that all of our regular advertisers recognized the justice in the increase and responded cheerfully, so that this department will again show its annual profit to the society. Our members should reciprocate this generous spirit. Special announcements were printed free of charge by the trade press, for which our thanks are due.

During the past year, there have been offered for registration six seedling and seven sport varieties. We desire to impress upon our members the necessity of submitting blooms of sport varieties for inspection by our judges before registration can be completed. We now have on file a number of such varieties which cannot be placed on the register for the above reason. Our system is simple and practical.

The fifth national flower show date has been definitely set for March 25-April 1, 1922. The special committee will submit a premium schedule for your approval. The final drafting of all premium schedules, being under the control of the board of directors, suggestions and recommendations from this meeting will be in order. We suggest that our members underwrite a portion of the carnation schedule, due credit to be given each contributor.

Your board of directors held its usual meetings, one at Chicago immediately after the annual meeting, and the other at Cleveland last August.

Carnations for Mothers' Day.

Paper by Charles P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., read at the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society at Washington, D. C., January 26-27, 1921.

Some years ago, when the idea of commemorating Mothers' day by wearing a carnation was originated by Miss Jarvis, a great deal of publicity was obtained. The ladies' clubs, churches, etc., catching the idea, took it up and followed her lead with the result that the first year found Wichita very short on the supply of carnations and long on the demand for them. Being some 24 hours away from any large market, we have to place our orders early to get carnations. We were unfortunate in receiving the first cut, and by the time they reached us, the poor things were so tired that they went to sleep, which all florists know is very discouraging. I do not blame the growers for holding their flowers as long as they possibly can, and I do not blame the commission houses for disposing of the first cut first. But the poor florists, 24 to 36 hours away from the market, had to take the sleepy carnations, pay for them, smile, and try to make the best of a bad matter. The second and third years seemed equally bad, if not worse, for the demand for carnations had increased.

I took up the matter of increasing our cut with my carnation grower, and told him that I thought we could do it. By carefully watching the flowers at the time of development, we came to the conclusion that we could increase the yield. Our method has been, that on or about February 1, we select a bench or two of carnations which are beginning to show plenty of shoots coming on. By February 15 the buds begin to show. We disbud the lower two, as these two have a rather weak stem. Then we watch the development of the remaining buds. If the terminal bud is developing rapidly, we leave that on, as it holds the next bud back somewhat. When the terminal bud has opened, we take it off and use it in design work. If the terminal bud is not developing rapidly, we disbud it and leave the other three or four good strong buds to develop. The buds must be watched very carefully from now on so as to bring the crop at the proper time. Should the buds come a little slow, we put more heat under the bench (we grow all our carnations on raised benches), and open up the ventilators. If they seem to be coming a little too fast, we cut off the steam entirely and lower the temperature in the house by giving plenty of air. In this way we can hasten the flowers a week to 10 days, or we can hold them back. By treating them in this manner, the flowers all develop at the same time. I have had as many as six perfect flowers on one stem. Care should be taken in feeding, as carnations require more nourishment when more flowers are grown to the stem.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS' ST. VALENTINE POSTER.

To be sure, the same treatment will not apply throughout the United States, and must be modified to suit local requirements. In the first place, we must consider the condition of the weather. In Kansas, we have from 12 to 20 days of sunshine a month, during the winter, which causes the flowers to develop quicker and stronger than where there is a lot of cloudy weather and artificial heat must be depended upon. It took us nearly five years before we got hold of the right flowering stem and learned how to handle the temperature in the houses so that we could depend on a big crop. It is very true that once in awhile we miss it by two or three days, but that is due to sudden unexpected changes in the weather.

Instead of raising prices on the carnations for Mothers' day, we are able to lower the prices for individual flowers, because we grow four to six perfect flowers on a stalk, and we sell them for $2.00 per dozen flowers, while if we had disbudded, we would have had to get at least $4.00 per dozen stalks, and I have heard that some florists charge as high as $5.00. This was possible only because we increased the number of flowers on the stalk and sold the stalks for 60 to 75 cents each. You can readily see where much more money may be realized by this method than where disbudding is practiced and only 35 to 50 cents a stalk is received. This also eliminates many of the "profiteering" charges which were so prevalent last May. Our customers seem to be well satisfied with three and four flowers to a stalk, and in my opinion, they make a much nicer appearance in a vase. If they are to be worn individually, the stems must be cut off any way.

I have found the best varieties to grow in this manner are Matchless, for white, and Belle Washburn for red. We used to grow Prosperity, which really did better than Matchless for this purpose. Belle Washburn gives good results, as it is naturally a late bloomer, and its full crop comes in just about right for Mothers' day. We have never tried any pink carnations, but this year I think we shall try a few plants of Gloriosa and see what results we have with them, although very few Gloriosa are grown in this part of the country today.

I am very sorry that it is not possible for me to be present in person at this meeting and take part in the discussion. I realize that it would not be feasible to duplicate my method of treatment of carnations for Mothers' day trade in all parts of the United States, but I believe that the theory is sound, and I know that I have obtained results, for on the benches treated, I have increased the cut from three to four times normal, and I think that we will all agree that this amounts to a considerable sum at Mothers' day. On one bench, 5x150 feet, holding 1,000 plants, I cut 10,000 flowers for Mothers' day last year. I will be very glad to answer any inquires that you may wish to send me.

Improved Methods of Soil Sterilization.

Paper by W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., read at the thirtieth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society at Washington, D. C., January 26-27, 1921.

There is a new subject brought before the florist's eyes today, that is the subject of soil sterilization. The principal points to be brought out are its beneficial means, its labor and money-saving advantages. We have tried planting carnations in the same soil, three or four times in succession, and we are well pleased with the results. In some instances the soil has not been change in the bench for as long as four years, being left in the benches and sterilized right there by means of a simple and inexpensive apparatus; the method employed does not require much labor or time.

First of all, the soil must be in the right condition, which would be about the same moisture as one would like to plant in. This means, have it in a good mellow condition clear through to the bottom of the bench. We use four galvanized iron pans which are 12 feet long, eight inches deep and two inches narrower than the width of the bench; these pans also have two stap-iron handles on each side, for carrying purposes when hot, but you can have your pans any size suitable for any number of shifts which will cover the length of the house and not leave any space unsterilized. The pans are set over the bench, bottom side up, and connected by unions. Through the center of each pan runs a one and a quarter inch pipe with holes drilled one foot apart, right through the pipe, horizontal to the pipe so the steam will flow freely into the soil. The steam is taken from one of the main pipes into the second union, thus having two pans on each side of the intake, which allows good dry steam to go 25 feet each way. In this way the steam will be even all the way through the four pans. After the pans are connected, we take soil and bank it between the pans and the bench so the steam will not escape from the sides. Steam is turned on and five pounds is registered on the steam gauge. Less than five, gives too much moisture for the soil, and more than five, is liable to bake the soil. The main thing is to have good dry steam work its way through the soil and come out around the bottom of the bench. This usually takes about one-half hour. Thus all injurious germs, insects, etc., are destroyed, yet certain organisms needed for the proper growth of the plants are not injured. After the soil is steamed, it should be worked up as soon as possible so that in case of a little too much moisture, the fresh air will keep it sweet and friable. Thus, the soil is kept from becoming waterlogged and sticky, or burned and brittle, as is often the case when soil is steamed in a large quantity, inside a cement or similar tank, when continued heating is necessary, thereby destroying the texture and at the same time, killing the micro-organisms which are so necessary for the development of plant life. Although these beneficial organisms will stand more heat than will the spores of fungi or various bacteria in any stage of development, these beneficial organisms will also be destroyed if the heat is too great or is kept up too long. Meanwhile, four men have worked up 50 feet more of soil into a good loose condition and are ready to shift the pans. In this way, the only time that is lost is that taken to shift the pans to the other 50 feet that is ready. After the soil is sterilized, it is treated as new soil and the needed fertilizers added to it.

We have found by actual experience that while sterilized soil is not as good as new, it is a great improvement over the old, as we have proven it by using new soil, old soil sterilized, and old soil not sterilized in the same bed side by side.

The actual cost is about one-half of that of changing the soil.

PLANT NOTES.

Antirrhinums.

The grower of antirrhinums has an opportunity now to select the best plants from which to propagate the stock for another year, as the plants are now producing fine spikes and it is possible to select the best types. Those that have fine large flowers set closely together on the stem, and yet not close enough to crowd, are to be perferred. The earliness of blooming is another matter to take into consideration. It will be found in raising these plants from seed that there is little difference in their time of blooming, and for winter flowering the earliest that there are of good type should be chosen. There are plenty of good cuttings to be obtained now, for the laterals which grow from the axil of each leaf make the best cuttings and the flower is enlarged by their removal. Plants that are in bloom will be benefited greatly from now on by feeding either with liquid manure or a strong mulch, and the next growth thinned to eight or ten shoots, which will insure a much better crop for spring cutting than to allow all the small shoots to grow. Keep the plants tied erect all the time, for it takes but a few hours' sun to draw the tip up from a stem that leans away from the center with the result that a crooked stem is formed, which greatly impairs its appearance. These spikes of bloom should be handled very carefully, especially the long sprays, for they are very brittle and break easily. It is better not to cut too many at once. When cutting hold them with the heads hanging down, and when there are as many as can be easily held in the hand, cut, take them at once to the flower room, trim off all surplus growth and tie the stems a dozen in a bunch, then loosely tie strings around the center and toward the top of the bunch, and place the stem in a deep jar of water. This prevents crooked stems so often seen, for the plant continues its growth after being cut, and if allowed to hang away from the jar the blooms grow crooked.

Pelargoniums.

While all the plants so well known as geraniums are pelargoniums, yet it is the show of fancy type called by many Lady Washington geraniums that are generally known under this name. The plants that are wanted in bloom in April and May will now be in their blooming pots and beginning to show their blooming growths, but for June and July flowering the plants should now be shifted to the blooming pots, five or six-inch as the plants may require, except large specimens, of which few are now seen. They like a turfy, coarse loam, to which may be added one-fourth well rotted manure, and if the soil is heavy a liberal amount of sharp sand to keep it open, and the plants should be potted very firmly. A cool, well-ventilated house should be selected for growing them, and until the days grow warmer and brighter, they should be watered sparingly. In early spring, when they are well covered with foliage and the blooming shoots begin to grow, more water will be needed. A little stopping may be necessary if the plants send forth strong long growths, to make the plant shapely, but care and judgment should be used in this operation, which should cease upon the appearance of the bud shoots, which are easily distinguished by the different manner of growth. Do not attempt to take any cuttings at this time, for after the plants are through blooming is the best time for propagation, and any cuttings taken now are pretty sure to rob the plants of the bloom. These plants are very subject to attacks of both red spider and green fly, and should be fumigated or sprayed regularly. As the extremely hot, dry days of summer approach a slight shade will be found very beneficial to both the plants and flowers.

Verbenas.

The verbena makes a very satisfactory bedding plant if properly grown, but the thin, spindly plants produced from late grown seed and planted in flats and baskets as closely together as is possible in order that they may be sold at a cheap price, seldom make any showing in the beds until very late in summer. The seeds should be sown early enough that the plants may be stopped and branched and grown in pots, and one plant so grown will make more showing during the season than half a dozen of the poor plants so freely offered at the spring sales. It is really better to buy the rooted cuttings of selected varieties that are advertised at this time than to sow seed after the middle of February. Seed sown up to this date, however, can be grown on to make fine plants. Care must be exercised in the germination of the seed, which is often blamed for the carelessness or lack of knowledge of the grower, for the seed damps off very easily when its germinates, being very sensitive to any change in temperature in moisture. Until they begin to make growth, the plants should be watched carefully, never allowed to become dry, or exposed to any draughts.

Genistas.

The plants of genistas should now be making their flowering growth and no further pinching will be necessary except in the case of long, strong growths which sometimes break from the stem and thereby spoil the symmetery of the plant, and these should be cut back as soon as they grow beyond the other flowering shoots. They can now be bloomed in succession by moving some into a warmer house, but those that are wanted at Easter are still better left in a cool house, one with a temperature of 45 degrees being the one that will produce the best results. These plants are never partial to great heat, reveling in a cool atmosphere, and often when taken into the warm living rooms where the air is extremely dry will soon drop their leaves. Those that are being grown to certain shapes, such as the balls, pyramids or baskets, will doubtless require some pinching back yet, but this should be done with great care or the flowering buds will be removed. A close examination of the tip of the shoot will clearly show whether the buds are forming and when this occurs all pinching must be immediately stopped. Any blind wood or extra strong growths that are cut out may be made into cuttings and young stock obtained. These will root much better in a cool propagating bench than in one where the bottom heat is confined. When the plants are full of bloom they will require heavy watering, and do not place them in a dry warm location for any great length of time.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Baum's Novel Notice of Sunday Closing.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., has announced that its store has observed Sunday closing since July 1915, a clever series of cartoons which are arranged on one page being sent to the store's patrons, showing the florist who keeps his shop open on Sunday, haggard and worn out chasing nickels, his clerk dissatisfied, business running along in the same old rut with little increase in sales and his tombstone at 60, having worked seven days a week all his life in contrast to the retailer who can accompany his family to church, alert and on the job with a happy and cheerful clerk, a progressive business on a par with the best stores and retired and enjoying life at three score years.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

In the readjustment period through which the country is now passing there is more than ever a need to pay attention to prices. There is little or no necessity to lower the figures, but no opportunity should be lost to call attention to the excellence and quality of the plants and cut flowers. Price cards should play an important part in the window displays, the various items of the plants and flowers on view speak for themselves; they are beautiful and desirable, but, without the price card, may be considered too valuable—worth more than the observer can pay. With the silent salesman at work, however, the mind is quickly made up, one way or the other, owing to the definite information.

The large department stores always quote prices in their advertisements, display them conspicuously in their window and store offerings, which must be on account of the good results in increased sales. While roses are scarce at this time, carnations are increasing in quantity as are sweet peas and calendulas and there is an overstock of Paper White narcissus. This latter flower and carnations can be used to advantage in cheap spray work. Laurel branches and leucothoe sprays, used liberally, help in the arrangement.

The several varieties of primulas now in the market are coming into their height of bloom. These make splendid stock to handle, being very decorative in store or window, and when featured singly, in baskets or several together in pans, are most attractive.

It is now time to begin the preliminary Valentine publicity. Good sized hearts with the date, Feb. 14, in the center in bold, white or gilt letters, should be conspicuously displayed in store and window. Get out all the stock left over from last season—it may be used to advantage when the time comes. Valentine's day, on account of its sentiment, is essentially a floral event and the whole trade should unite in their efforts to greatly expand its usefulness. Every retailer has the opportunity, through his customers' list and prospects, to create new business by means of well-worded announcements and the dealers' helps in booklets, stickers, etc., that are to be obtained at low prices. These and the showy and effective posters should be put in circulation at once, and from now on used continuously. People must be told all about the day, long before, and continuously, so they will be sure not to forget it. The event, from a business standpoint, is what you make it. With those who are enthusiastic and spread this propaganda among their customers, there will be excellent returns, while with others who make no attempt to feature the day, results are quite different.

The use of plants and cut flowers as decorative features in windows of other trades has often been spoken of in this column. There is a big field along these lines, which, if pushed by the trade, would become important. A handsome basket of growing plants, with its metal container, if well watered, is good for several days without attention. Vases of cut flowers can be changed every other day. Artificial plants and cut flowers are used to a much larger extent now than formerly for this purpose, and while very showy, have not the life, nor do they attract the attention of the real plants and flowers. Pansies are always popular and should now be carried in stock. They are the flower with which to top off and finish a nicely arranged box.

The little colonial bouquets are always attractive; they can be made for the most part of scraps, loose snapdragon flowers, broken buds, etc. With their lace paper finish they present a perfect little arrangement that is very salable.

If there are any draggy bills on the books get after them now. If letters have no effect, send a messenger—get a promise—and be always on the spot the day named. There are a number of ways to collect bills, one of which is to be extremely careful to whom credit is given, and another is to never let the account get old, as when it reaches this stage it is almost hopeless.

The Daily Routine.

The factor considered most important in the army or navy, is discipline, without which there is no order. Each, in their varying rank, have their work to perform and must be on duty at the proper time and place.

This necessary detail, this strict observance of performance, particularly as regards time, should be the rule in the flower shop. It is most important that all should be on hand at the opening time, be it 7, 7:30 or 8 o'clock. The first two hours are frequently the most active, as it is then the funeral orders must be made up or finished, and except for the obsequies at which there are evening services, delivered before 11 a. m. The early opening of the store is desirable, as frequently persons who desire something for an early morning funeral, will call or phone at 7 a. m., and there are others taking early trains who will stop in about this time.

One or more of the employes could take weekly turns in opening at 7 a. m., if the regular time for arrival was 7:30, and leave a half-hour earlier in the evening.

There should be system in the time of all for arrival, lunch and the closing hour. When the early morning orders are off, there should be something important for each person. There are the little features for the display tables or counter, or to attract attention in the window. Miniature colonial bouquets, small handle vase baskets, or the decorating of foliage or flowering plants, which has so much to do in showing them at their best.

The 'phone service, which is now of such importance in the receiving of orders, should be as perfect in the handling as possible. All calls should be immediately answered by a competent person, cashier or bookkeeper, who will get to know the voices of the customers, be able to answer intelligently, and when necessary, call the person desired to the phone. Many stores try, as a matter of economy, to make one line do the work, when they should have at least two. Very frequently, persons ordering are in a great hurry, and the "busy" answer sends them at once to some one else. A number of the prominent flower shops in the larger cities have an operator and store system in which case there is nearly always a wire open for the incoming call.

The going and returning of employes during the lunch period should be so regulated as to provide for emergencies. Frequently, in stores where there is but a small force, it happens at times but one person is left in charge, who may have several customers at once, together with a violent ringing of one or more phones. This causes a confusion that should be provided against by a better division of the clerks' lunch time, so that two will always be on duty.

On dull days, or at odd times when a lull appears, this should be filled in with preparatory work, a filling up of some lines of stock that can be instantly drawn on when necesary.

There is always to be a careful scanning of the early orders of the next day, stock secured and flowers opened so as to be at their best and show to the greatest advantage. Phone calls to growers or dealers the night before, will often secure flowers not available the next day. Designs can frequently be greened, outlined with flowers, and perhaps almost finished, which preparatory work will be of the greatest help should other orders come in.

The work in the shop is at times irregular; the morning opens up with but few orders on the files, but before the close, has developed into a very busy day. It is wonderful what a lot of work can be turned out when there is an unexpected run of orders and customers. It is then that the preparatory work, the ready mossed wreath forms, the made-up magnolia or oakleaved wreaths in various sizes, all ready for decoration with fresh flowers, are such time savers. The standard stocks, such as palm leaves, wheat sheaves, a good assortment of baskets, easels, etc. Ribbon bows, made up, plenty of chiffon, scrip inscriptions and letters of all kinds should be ready for instant use, without the delay of sending for this or that item and holding up important deliveries.

It is also an advantage just before closing to look over the flowers in the case, change the water in the jars, and fill a number with fresh water, so that they will be ready for the morning stock when it arrives.

The address of every employe and a phone number, on which they can be reached, should be on file, as it frequently happens that in emergencies they are wanted at the store, and are then always within reach.

As far as possible, the day's work should be so completed that every employee is excused immediately at closing time. This is not difficult if the importance of being always on the job and expeditious in their work is kept constantly before them.

Local Publicity.

Address by W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn., president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, delivered at the annual meeting of that organization in Memphis, November 17-18, 1920.

No doubt you are all expecting something very interesting and very helpful from me in this brief discussion of local advertising, so I am going to do my best to tell you in as few words as possible some of the personal observations I have made that help me get the best advertising results for the least money. Do not, however, expect for a moment that I am going to tell you how to advertise your business; I am not ready to quit the florist business and take up the advertising profession, or make a monkey of myself. What I am going to tell you is based upon my belief in advertising as a business builder, a patron winner.

I believe in advertising. I believe in advertising, because advertising to me is simply aggressive salesmanship in public print, which tells our story to the thousands who are reached by the media that we use. Without going into the technique or details of advertising, which I leave entirely to my advertising man, I will tell you a few of the rules which I apply to our advertising in order that it may be most productive.

I have heard it said by an experienced advertising man, and I believe it is true, that "Repetition Builds Reputation." But unless you repeat some thought, idea, or appealing message, and stick to it everlastingly, you can have no repetition, and hence no reputation as a result of your advertising for your word-of-mouth recommendations of customers. So the first rule I judge my advertising by is, "Does it contain in a clean understandable way, the one idea about which we are building our business?" and that is that Idlewild flowers, (if you will pardon this reference to our business) that Idlewild flowers are not just flowers, but high quality flowers, and our advertising is constantly aiming at that same target, putting that same thought into the minds of the people we want to reach. So instead of simply selling flowers, or advertising flowers, we are advertising and selling our own kind of flowers.

Right here, I want to introduce my second rule of advertising and that is, every one of our advertisements, when possible, must contain some sentiment. Sentiment sells flowers in the great majority of instances, and I think you all agree with me. It is one of the most vital pillars of the flower business, and if I thought for a minute that sentiment would ever become dissociated from the flower business, I would sell out this minute or close up shop. I insist upon sentiment, and am a firm believer in the fact that sentiment sells flowers, and in the way of sentiment, I endeavor to capitalize every holiday, seasonable event and thought that in any way can be turned to flower sentiment, and whether we are pushing flowers, plants or bulbs, or anything else, I insist upon our advertising being seasonable. My third rule is, therefore, that our advertising must be seasonable and opportune.

And my fourth and next to last rule is "Keep something before the public at all times." Our customers, patrons, friends and prospective patrons, must not be given an opportunity to forget what we sell, because I feel we owe them the obligation to keep them informed.

I will summarize briefly by telling you about the various kinds of publicity we employ, for I am constantly improving and building up our advertising. First, and of greatest importance to us in my experience, has been our newspaper advertising. In my opinion, newspaper advertising excels all others. And if you will stop to consider, you can easily understand what a short cut to countless thousands of people, newspaper advertising is. In Memphis, we have two afternoon papers and one morning paper, and in a single day, I can reach nearly every prospect in this territory within 70 miles of Memphis by using them. What originally sold me on newspaper advertising was the fact that department stores disposed of such great quantities of merchandise by using newspapers. For if newspapers will sell merchandise, they will certainly sell flowers where sentiment is strong in its appeal. And I have found it to be true. I need say little about newspaper advertising; it needs no justification; it is just what it is, a business-getting, sales-making help to the florist business.

Frankly, I have also a "hobby," and in advertising, my hobby is "direct advertising." And I will say, the timely use of mailing folders, cards, etc., sent out just previous to holidays or events, also bring a ready response in orders. You are all more or less familiar with the kind of advertising I mean. I mail this advertising to our customers only, as I have no prospect list, and as quickly as we win new customers, I add them to my mailing list.

During the past two seasons we used the service of the C. E. Falls Service Company for our direct mail advertising, and with the good results I have aforementioned; without taking up your time with billboard advertising or painted signs or street car card advertising, all of which I favor, I will close with a few of the ways we have capitalized some of our equipment and location.

Locations in Memphis are difficult to find and remember because of the countless numbers of small specialty stores, and the fact that they are widely scattered about town. On the sidewalk, at the curb in front of our store, you will find plants and trees that are green the year round. The entire front of the building is in a bright attractive color that stands out for several blocks each way on the street; a bright spot on the street, and once one has seen the green plants and trees on the sidewalk, and the color of the store front, they will forever after identify our store and its location whenever they see one of our advertisements anywhere.

I have gone farther. The interior is also of a striking, appealing color, and the displays and windows are in tune with the seasons. Our paneled body delivery motor cars are also painted in a striking, appealing, attractive color, that is suggestive of bright and fresh flowers, using a light green color for the dominating scheme, and I am confident that it pays.

But last, and not least, I am a sticker for the last rule in all my advertising. I do not have a single advertisement, piece of printed matter, sign, or service equipment, that does not carry the greatest advertisement our business had, "Say It With Flowers," and I credit much of the greater demand for flowers to the greater use of this appealing slogan that is the envy of all industries whose sales are even slightly influenced by sentiment. We have it, fellow florists. Let's capitalize it for all its worth. There is none better in the land.

As a parting thought, I wish to say that we advertise to get people to think and feel and say the same things about our business that we want them to say, and in making them feel and think and talk, we sell them our product. Recently the president of one of the greatest national retail dealers organizations in the United States said: "The man who advertises locally, not only advertises the fact that he is an up-to-date, wide-awake merchant, but also advertises the fact that he is successful in his business and making money, and usually is a very influential factor in his community."

And I want to say, that I believe if there were 30 florists in Memphis, and they all advertised in the right way, all 30 would do more business than the 10 or 15 now do with the small amount of local advertising. I repent I believe in advertising.

Bedding Roses.

Abstract of a paper by Sam Crowell, Roseacres, Miss., read at the annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association at Memphis, November 17-19, 1920.

I have often thought the word, charity, and the term bedding roses, were analogous. Holy Writ says, "Charity shall cover a multitude of sins." So, in like manner, the term, bedding roses, usually covers an indiscriminate list of waifs, nondescripts, bench stock, easy-doers, and especially those varieties which afford an ample armor of thorns — just roses and nothing more. The majority of roses, however, will grow in the open ground even under trying conditions and produce a few blooms for a limited period, but as a rule, the results are unsatisfying. Roses of weak constitution soon fall heir to the many ills which are constant and unrelenting, and unless provision is made for congenial surroundings, the spot of soil meant for their abiding place, too often proves to be their early grave.

I feel safe in asserting that there are just as few good bedding roses as there are varieties suited to culture under glass. On the one hand, the skill and care of the expert grower ministers to every want by providing environments which are congenial and satisfying, while the bedding rose must take issue with every adverse condition which Nature brings with her changing seasons, and the almost daily moods of extremes, which hamper growth by the denial of proper food, moisture and heat. Roses will not grow and prosper unless given the utmost care and attention. Even those varieties of robust habit and vigor require proper soil conditions, perfect drainage, ample food, full sunlight, care in pruning, and constant attention must be the watchword.

The bedding rose which I have in view, is one that does well on its own root; it is a gross feeder, vigorous in growth, with foliage resistant to the greatest degree to the attacks of fungus diseases and other ills. It is prolific in bloom; constant under the most trying conditions, producing well formed buds and open flowers of good substance which stand up well when used for house decoration, and withall, one that gives much for litttle.

The rose that does well on its own root, is of first importance as a garden rose. Possibly 75 per cent of all roses grown fall into the hands of those who know little about plant culture, and the after care they receive is of a negligible quantity. Many of our best roses should be worked on congenial stocks for best results, and when sales are made of budded roses, the seller should caution the buyer relative to the planting and after care. The budded rose, when improperly planted or worked on stocks which produce an abundance of sprouts, is not only annoying and unsatisfactory in the hands of the amateur, but even the skill of the expert grower is severely taxed in preventing the constantly recurring subterranean growth.

I shall, no doubt, be criticized for the list of bedding roses I am giving you, because I am leaving out many of your favorites which, I am sure, would add materially to any list, if grown by skilled hands, but I have in mind rather the small buyer who loves the rose because it is chaste and beautiful, and who has little time from the drudgery of everyday life to care for its needs, but who is willing to find a place in some nook or corner or border where it may fight for its life near the roots of some over-spreading tree. Owing to the great diversity of soil and climatic conditions throughout the country, the list I have prepared is suited only to localities similar to the one in which I live.

As a whole, the tea rose is the most satisfactory family suited to southern conditions. It thrives on its own roots, is robust in growth, floriferous, fragrant, constant in bloom and always dependable. It never loafs on the job, and if given the least attention, will fight its way and win among a riot of weeds and grass, if well established. Next in order, I would place the hybrid teas. When well done, all are beautiful, but the majority are slackers when the rub comes and only the favored few are worthy of extended planting unless grown under equable conditions. To the above two groups may be added a few Bourbons, Chinas, hybrid Remontants, rugosas and their hybrids and the baby ramblers.

Bedding roses may be divided into three groups: (a) those grown for cut flowers; (b) those grown for massing or mass effect, (c) and those grown for borders, dwarf beds or similar requirements. Some of the most dependable varieties are unequal in growth, i. e., Duchess de Brabant, a strong grower, while Grus an Teplitz is only moderate in growth, which illustrates the point. It is needless to say that for mass planting or grouping, the best effect is brought about by using only one variety.

I have found the following list to be dependable under the trying extremes that we have in this section:

Tea Roses—Cut flower varieties:

William R. Smith, salmon and rose-pink.
Maman Cochet, light pink.
White Cochet, creamy white, faintly tinged blush.
Helen Good, delicate yellow, suffused pink.
Mrs. Benj. R. Cant, deep rose.
Safrano, apricot and fawn.
Papa Gontier, rosy-crimson.
Etoile de Lyon, bright sulphur-yellow.
Alexander Hill Gray, deep golden yellow.
Marie Van Houtte, canary yellow, petals tipped deep rose.
Devoniensis, creamy white, blush center.

To the above may be added such varieties as Blumenschmidt, Mlle. F. Kruger, Bride, Bridesmaid, Isabella Sprunt, Maurice Rovier, White Bougere, General Tartas and Marie Guillot.

Tea Roses—For massing and show:

Duchess de Brabant, light rose, shading to salmon.
Mme. Joseph Schwartz, creamy white, tinted pink.
Mme. Lambard, bright deep rose.
Snowflake, pure white.

These varieties are also good as cut flower varieties, but for growth, freedom of bloom and general mass effect, they are unequaled.

Hybrid Tea—Cut flower varieties:

Radiance, rosy carmine.
Red Radiance, glowing crimson.
Pres. Taft, deep shining pink.
Ant. Rivoire, rosy flesh on yellow ground.
F. R. Patzer, creamy buff.
Col. S. R. Williamson, satiny white, blush center.
Helen Gould, bright red.
Laurent Carle, velvety carmine.
Mme. Abee Chatenay, carmine rose, shaded salmon.
Lady Usurla, flesh pink.
Rhea Reid, dark velvety red.
Mrs. A. R. Waddell, coppery orange.
Mme. Jenny Gillmeot, deep saffron yellow.

Hybrid Tea—Varieties for massing:

Ecarlate, brilliant red.
Red Letter Day, brilliant glowing scarlet.
Mlle. M. Cambier, orange yellow.
Wellesley, pink.
Miss Cynthia Ford, pink.

Where one has good soil conditions, position and the desire to increase the list, and also a willingness to work and occasionally take defeat, the following should be grown:

General McArthur, Mme. Testout, Mme. Euler, Lady Ashton, General Jansen, Mme. Jules Grolez, Mme. Segond Weber, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Betty, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Columbia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Kaiserin, Florence Pemberton.

Kaiserin, a most beautiful white rose, is unsatisfactory on its own roots. It does well, however, budded on canina or multiflora stocks. I have had splendid results by growing climbing Kaiserin as a bush plant, but this takes time and constant attention.

Bourbons:

Empress Eugenie, bright pink.
E. Marlitt, rich scarlet with deeper tones.
White Malmaison, white, tinted yellow.
Souv. de la Malmaison, blush white, shaded flesh.
Hermosa, bright pink.
Sombrieul, white.

Malmaison and its white form should be pruned only sparingly. If allowed to grow into large bushes their freedom of bloom will repay any and all attention given.

China Roses:

Louis Phillipe, velvety crimson.
Gruss an Teplitz, deep crimson, shaded maroon.
Burbank, cherry rose.

Hybrid Remontants:

Paul Neyron, deep rose.
Frau Karl Druschki, pure white.
His Majesty, dark crimson.
Other desirable varieties are Captain Hayward, Ulrich Brunner, Anna de Diesbach, Duchess of Sutherland, Mrs. Cornelius West, Hugh Dickson, George Dickson and John Hopper.

Rugosa and Hybrids:

Hansa, double red.
Blanc de Coubert, semi-double, pure white.
Belle Poitevine, semi-double pink, rosy reflex.
Delicata, bright shining pink.
Magnifica, deep lustrous red.
Atropurpurea, single deep maroon.
Rubra, single pink.
Alba, single white.
Conrad F. Meyer, Nova Zembla, Sir T. Lipton, and New Century are magnificent varieties which thrive under trying conditions, and may be used to advantage where other desirable varieties would fail.

Baby Roses:

Orleans, deep geranium pink.
Mme. Levavasseur, the original crimson.
Catherine Zeimet, pure double white flowers.

The following are desirable as they produce an abundance of miniature buds that are excellent for cutting:

Cecile Brunner, blush, shaded salmon pink.
White Cecile Brunner, pure white.
Perle d'Or, Nankeen yellow.

In addition to the above varieties, Clothide Soupert must be added. No rose of its color will surpass this variety as a bedder or where mass effect is desired. It is dependable, effective and will stand the acid test.

The above list covers the varieties that came to mind when I was asked to talk on bedding roses. It is a list which could be used to advantage in extended plantings, but for the small garden that could use only a limited number of varieties, I would select the following from all the groups noted above:

Cut Flower Varieties:

Pink—Maman Cochet, Radiance, Wm. R. Smith.
White—White Cochet, Antoine Rivoire, Marie Van Houtte.
Red—Red Radiance, Eugene Marliett, Louis Philipe.
Yellow—Mme. Jenny Gillemot, Alexander Hill Gray, Etoile de Lyon.
Rose—Mrs. B. R. Cant, Laurent Carle.
Fancy—Mrs. A. R. Waddell, Helen Good, Safrano.

Vigorous growing varieties for strictly bedding or massing: Duchess de Brabant, Mme. Jos. Schwartz, Mlle. Helen Cambier, Empress Eugenie, Red Radiance, Mme. Lombard, Snowflake, Red Letter Day, Eugene Marlitt, Radiance.

Varieties of moderate growth for bedding or massing: Ecarlate, Grus an Teplitz, Etoile de Lyon, Clothilde Soupert, Wellesley, Hermosa.

In making up lists of plants for any specific purpose, one labors under the influence of personal bias, likes and dislikes, and in this instance, I have possibly erred when I leave out many standard varieties of considerable merit, but I cannot feel the list I give you is very far wrong. Some day, we shall have rose test grounds established in every section of the country which offer a peculiar soil or atmospheric condition. Congenial stocks will be provided for those rare varieties that are now useless unless grown by skilled hands. Some day, the growers—you and I—will co-operate with each other and pass judgment on the long list of roses now being grown and sent out as good garden roses, keeping the good and discarding the bad, and the buyer will be given all information relative to soil preparation, position, fertilization, spraying, pruning, protection in winter and moisture in times of drouth. This will mean service. Until then, why not plant your own test ground and become acquainted with the wares you sell? It will pay big dividends.

The Late E. G. Uihlein.

CLEVELAND, O.—Frank Ritzenthaler, who has been in poor health for some time, is recuperating at Asheville, N. C.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Fred P. Weber, who has ably served the Newport Horticultural Society for three years in the capacity of secretary, has declined re-election, and Arthur T. Potter, Jr., has been chosen his successor.

BANGOR, ME.—A. J. Loder had a splendid holiday trade with sales showing an increase of $350 over the corresponding week of 1919, but flowers were in good supply, with quality up to the usual standard. Stock in the better grades had the best sale. Cyclamen plants moved especially well, some bringing $10 each. Plant movement, in general, was about the same as a year ago.

OBITUARY.

William J. Fosgate.

William J. Fosgate, life-long resident of the Santa Clara valley, California, died at his home in San Jose, January 13, at the age of 65 years, having been in poor health for some time. He was born in Santa Clara, in which city he was engaged in the dry goods business for about 20 years, until he became identified with the seed industry, and it was the successful development of the latter which led to his recognition as one of the leading seed growers of the state. In 1884, he married Miss Lucretia Gleneay, member of one of the state's oldest and best known pioneer families. A son and two daughters were born of this marriage, and the daughters, Miss Caroline Fosgate and Mrs. Morrell Lion, with their mother, survive.

Mr. Fosgate was a man of unusually high principles, and his reputation for integrity and scrupulously fair dealing won for him a high place in the seed trade. The news of his death will be received with sincere regret by a large circle of friends, and to his family, the great sorrow will be most keen, as his love and devotion were at all times uppermost in his mind.

E. G. Uihlein.

E. G. Uihlein, former president of the Horticultural Society of Chicago and an enthusiastic grower of orchids, died in Milwaukee, Wis., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Albert O. Trostal, January 25. His home was in Chicago, 2141 Pierce avenue, and he is said to have been responsible for the fine orchid displays in Garfield Park, that city, having been a member of the West Park Board for a number of years. He was a frequent exhibitor at the local shows, and generous of both time and money in the cause of horticulture. In business he was identified with the Schlitz Brewing Co., of Milwaukee, having been one of the proprietors of that concern. He had been ill several weeks.

Mr. Uihlein was born in Wertheim in Baden, Germany, October 19, 1845. He came to America at the age of 19 and located at St. Louis, Mo., moving to Chicago two years later. He is survived by three daughters and one son.

Mrs. Mary N. Kervan.

With sincere regret we announce the death on the morning of January 23, of Mrs. Mary N. Kervan, widow of the late Lawrence W. Kervan, founder of the Kervan Company, New York. Surrounded by her friends, Mrs. Kervan passed away at the family home at Bayside, L. I. She was nearly 70 years of age, and was a native of Massachusetts, but for the past 20 years her residence had been in New York and vicinity. Mrs. Kervan was a devoted wife and mother and reared a fine family. She is survived by four sons, who carry on the business of the Kevan Company, dealers in greens and florists' supplies. Funeral services were held on January 25, at the home at Bayside.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.—Plans are being made to hold a flower show in this city during the coming summer at which all gardeners of the community will be invited to make entries. The details of the show will be in charge of E. W. Wait and Fred Davidson, two successful rose growers, who hope to form a local organization and make the show an annual event.

FORTY-NINE ocean steamers, mostly Dutch, are laid up in Rotterdam because of lack of cargoes and low freight rates. Tonnage entering that city last year was only 58 per cent of that of 1913.

S. A. F. Luncheon at Washington.

Thirty-five officials of the Society of American Florists visiting Washington, D. C., in connection with the executive committee meeting were the guests of the chamber of commerce at luncheon at the New Willard hotel, January 24. Short talks were delivered by Albert Schultheis, president of the chamber; James T. Lloyd, second vice-president; Robert N. Harper, former president, and several of the guests.

American Rose Society.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The following request has been received from Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., for registration of a rose, and this has been approved by the rose registration committee. Unless objections are received within three weeks from the date of this publication, the resolution will be permanently adopted:

Name: American Legion. Class, hybrid tea; parentage, cross between seedlings of Milady and Hadley. Description—Habit of plant: Quick growth, not subject to mildew; character of foliage; fine reddish-green glossy foliage; large foliage; freedom of growth and hardiness; very free and hardy flower; large flower, globular bud, very profuse; color, cerise red; fragrance and bud, sweet fragrance; well shaped globular bud; petalage, averages from 42 to 48 petals per flower. Freedom of bloom and lasting quality, very free, very good.

The rose is similar to American Beauty in its imposingness, but is different in shade of flower, form and foliage, and superior for the following reasons: It is a very profuse bloomer, and the color is one shade throughout, which makes it stand out in a class of its own. It also has a very clean foliage.

JOHN C. WISTER, Sec'y.

Business Outlook Brighter.

Although the general business situation has changed but little during the past months, there are pronounced indications that the first shock of the present depression is over, according to Chairman Archer Douglas of the committee on statistics and standards of the Chamber of Commerce of the Untied States. Automatically everything is adjusting itself to demand and there is a fast spreading realization of the indispensable need of hard work, obligation to our tasks and getting back to those temporarily lost arts of salesmanship, common-sense merchandising, and economical, efficient production and distribution. Railroads have set the example by the best service they have given in years and that is what every other business will have to do to keep its soul alive. Automatically, also, the situation is tending to a more normal relation between supply and demand. The general thought of business men everywhere is fast crystallizing into a resolve to find some way out of the difficulty, some method to chime in with the natural laws which must finally work out the complete solution of the numerous problems.

Shipping Direct.

That growers in communities remote from large cities can dispose of their flowers to better advantage by shipping direct to retailers in their district, on contract for the season, is asserted by Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., whose specialty is carnations. Mr. Strout disposes of his entire stock through yearly contracts, managing, as far as possible, to increase production at holidays and other periods to meet the demand of his customers.

Wholesale commission houses, he said, have been a great factor in building and supplying their ever-expanding territory, thereby greatly increasing the use of flowers. He believed, however, that there is great room for improvement in more direct shipments in original packages on order of commission houses, from grower direct to consumer. This is particularly true of carnations, which would then not be subject to extra handling and long periods of time in the cooler. Everything should be done to avoid unnecessary handling and insure the most direct delivery from grower to consumer.

Parcel Post to France.

Postmaster General Burleson signed an agreement, January 15, with the postal administration of France, effective February 1, 1921, increasing the maximum weight limit on parcel post packages, exchanged between the United States and France, from 11 pounds to 22 pounds. This includes not only continental United States and continental France, but the island possessions of the United States and the colonies of France; that is, Corsica, Algeria, Tunis, French Morocco and the Principality of Monaco. This arrangement, doubling the maximum weight limit of our parcel post to France, has been the subject of negotiations for several months, including personal conferences between postal officials of the two countries, and is a further step in the efforts of the post office department to increase to exporters and other patrons of the service, the facilities afforded through the international parcel post.

The agreement above referred to also includes provision for the introduction of the insurance feature in connection with the parcel post between the United States and France at such time as the necessary authority is obtained by the United States post office department, through legislation, and it is hoped that this facility may be made available to the patrons of the service in both countries early during the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1921.

Sweet Peas.

It is not more than 10 years ago that the forcing of the early Spencer or orchid-flowering sweet peas was taken up to any extent by the trade. It is safe to say that, in their season, they now outclass the carnation in importance. Yarrowa, the great Australian variety, was introduced in this country about 1914, and many of the choice forcing favorites are crosses from this great seed parent. There is no other cut flower that has the dainty form, exquisite coloring and delightful fragrance of the winter-flowering sweet peas. They are most popular with all flower lovers, and owing to their free flowering qualities, can be sold at prices within the reach of all.

Die Bindekunst's Jubilee.

The German florists' paper, Die Bindekunst, published at Erfurt, will celebrate its silver jubilee with an exhibition of floral work in its home city June 4-12, next. Judges for the competitive exhibits are chosen from many countries, those in the United States including Max Schling, New York; Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.; Julius Zinn, Boston, Mass., and Adolph Brix, St. Louis, Mo.

National Flower Growers' Association.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT HOLDS MEETING.

The first annual meeting of the St. Louis, Mo., district of the National Flower Growers' Association, was held there January 18, 1921. The session was opened by President Walter Amling, who introduced J. F. Ammann as the first speaker. Mr. Ammann stated that organization was the keynote of his address. He brought out that while there were plants that stand out permanently, individually as a monument to the efficiency of the production of flowers, organization was necessary to bring the body of the whole up to a higher standard. Mr. Ammann said that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association had performed a great work for floriculture. Advertising is a boost in the right direction for it gives the public an intelligent way to purchase stock.

Time has shown, Mr. Ammann said, that the floral trade has suffered less from panics than any other producer or manufacturer, so the elevation of mankind through our industry helps to make us better and the more we think about our product the better it becomes. It is necessary then for the flower growers to go before the American people with a programme of education and publicity that will put the product to the front.

We have come to the time, Mr. Amman continued, when the offspring are no longer detrimental to the parent society, but an assistance to it. They have not only been a great help to the trade at large, but have created a feeling of fellowship. He brought out that through closer cooperation, trade could not only be developed in Canada, but Europe as well.

The Society of American Florists, Mr. Amman concluded, was not formed by one man, but by those who had a vision for the betterment of their fellow growers. He hoped that the present members had received an incentive that they would be willing to give out—to go and get the other fellow in to help him as well as to have him help you.

President Walter Amling read a very interesting paper on the needs and aspirations of the flower growers. He stated that the goal of his ambition was to see that the St. Louis district would be the best and strongest in the United States. President Amling thought that great things would be accomplished if the growers would keep up with the times and meet coming conditions. He thought that members should make a close study of the cost of production of their flowers or plants. The income tax law has opened the eyes of some to the distinction between gross sales and net profits. Many fail to account for their own services in the estimation of cost, thus working a hardship upon those of the flower trade who are asking a fair profit for their business.

President Amling pointed out that considerable loss is sustained by the growers in the purchase of coal. By every grower listing the number of cars he will use for the coming year, and then having some appointed member of the district negotiate direct with a coal operator, better quality would be assured and a more reasonable price attained. He further suggested the coal be tested by an expert and each member advised how to get the best results. Mr. Amling stated that he spoke from experience in the above matter. He hoped that the plan would be applied to other things, such as fertilizer, insecticides, etc., and concluded by saying that determined effort along this line would be of mutual advantage to all.

The secretary, who then read his report, stated that since November 16,

Burpee's Sweet Peas

There is always a ready demand for good Sweet Peas. Well grown flowers realize most remunerative prices, and it is doubtful if any other crop will bring the florist greater profits, considering the outlay for stock and the ease with which the crop is handled.

To ensure flowers of highest quality and at a time before the market is glutted with ordinary stock, the seed should be sown during January or February in pots. Start them in a cool house or even a cold frame, and so have first-class sturdy plants for setting out in the open field early in April. This method will give you flowers in late May, and much superior to those sown directly in the open.

When ordering ask for our leaflet on Sweet Pea culture.

The House of Burpee is recognized the world over as American headquarters for Sweet Peas. Burpee's Sweet Peas are grown and developed on Floradale Farms, our California seed ranch, and our strains are unsurpassed for high-class quality and "trueness" to type and color.

Good Sweet Pea seed is scarce this season, due to short crops, and as our stocks of some varieties are limited, we suggest early ordering.

The following list includes only such varieties as we know to be of value for market work. For fuller descriptions and classified list of all varieties, including many novelties now offered for the first time, write for Burpee's Annual which is sent free upon request.

The morning was taken up in getting acquainted, and a trip was taken to the Shotwell greenhouses and also to the Briggs establishment, the latter in Moorhead, following which luncheon was served at the Comstock hotel as guests of the Briggs Floral Co., the dining room being beautifully decorated with flowers, and an electric sign with the slogan, "Say It With Flowers," was not overlooked. After the repast, the party inspected the range of the Smedley Floral Co., after which they returned to the Waldorf hotel where the meeting was held. Geo. E. Valker was appointed temporary chairman and a discussion on organization was called for and action soon decided upon. Officers were then elected as follows: W. B. Shotwell, president; B. F. Siebrecht, vice-president; Emory F. Gestie, secretary-treasurer. Directors: Geo. E. Valker and P. J. Meyer. It was decided to hold two meetings each year, January and June, dates to be named by the president. Brief addresses were made by E. J. Goldstein, Jack Shotwell, Geo. E. Valker, W. P. Lindberg and E. J. Schuster. The objects of the new organization will be to promote better cooperation, keep prices on a living scale, investigate railroad claims and coal prices, and if justified, buy commodities nearer home.

An enjoyable banquet was held at the Waldorf hotel with the Shotwell and Smedley companies as hosts, marking the close of a profitable and pleasant occasion.

DEMAND FOR STOCK INCREASING.

The early part of last week found the most acute shortage of cut flowers this season, with a gradual letting up, until Saturday there was plenty of stock, with the exception of medium and short roses. In comparing this season with other years it has been found that the supply is a little better than normal, but as all the retail stores are complaining of poor business, it may be a good thing that the quantity has been no larger. The supply should be larger from now on as jonquils and tulips are becoming a factor and freesias have put in an appearance. Roses are the one short item, and will remain so for some time, but the quality of those arriving is good and command high prices. American Beauties are off the market entirely. The supply of carnations has increased. Sweet peas have improved both in quantity and quality, pink predominating. Orchids and lily of the valley are in light supply while violets have been too heavy with the result that some of them have had to be sacrificed. Baby primrose, calendula and mignonette have moved freely, while Paper White narcissi are in lighter supply. All kinds of greens have moved freely.

NOTES.

The outlook for St. Valentine day is bright. While Lent starts February 9, it is not thought that this fact will have much effect on business at this time. A year ago influenza was at its worst and florists had all the business they cared for. But this year conditions have changed, and the true should advertise St. Valentine's day in their localities. From all reports with a few exceptions there will be plenty of flowers.

The candy people in this district are telling the public to send candy valentines, and the florists will have to look out or they will lose business.

Department heads were a scarce article around the McCallum Company during the past week, many being out of town on business.

James Ford, head of the Landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co., has returned to work after a four weeks' illness.

Jos. Thomas of Greensburgh, Pa., and Wm. Loew of this city are on their annual Florida excursion.

Thursday, January 20, was the day, and the Hotel Wheatland the place, where the ever faithful dozen of our members met and discussed the problems incidental to our business, and how to overcome the unfavorable weather conditions. Arthur Niessen was invited to attend and give us a talk, but owing to a previous engagement, could not come. The committee on arrangements for the trip to Washington, to attend the meeting of the American Carnation Society, made its report, and the prospects are for a good attendance from this section.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Elmer Weaver, Mrs. Ira Landis and Mrs. A. M. Herr, and the social feature of the meeting was so attractive that home had no attractions for those present. B. F. Barr was unable to be present, but had the secretary read a letter addressed to the members, inviting one representative of each firm having a membership in the association to meet at the Bruns-

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

A SPHERE OF PURE WHITE PETALS

THE seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908, George J. Ball, a Sweet Pea and Aster specialist, selected a plant among his Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that from eight to ten flowers only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in ¼-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds, at $3.00 per trade packet.

MR. GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, November 9th, 1920.

Dear Sir—We feel impelled to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your White Asters. In addition to its magnificent form, it also has the advantage of being an excellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have to offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing as it is superior to any White Aster. Very truly yours,

THE CHICAGO FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

It was decided to hold a flower show next fall, and most of those present volunteered to see that they supplied stock for not less than one table.

The election resulted in electing the following officers: W. B. Girvin of Leola, president; B. F. Barr, vice-president; Harry K. Rohrer, treasurer; Albert M. Herr, secretary; all of Lancaster. ALBERT M. HERR.

MARKET CONDITIONS REMAIN UNCHANGED

Prices remain about the same as reported last week. There is a slight increase in the general supply and it is expected this condition will continue to improve. Roses and carnations are in great demand, and jonquils are more scarce this week. Lilies are few and far between, but lily of the valley is plentiful. Many begonias and cyclamens are seen in combination with pussy willows. There are no gardenias or narcissi available. Violets are in moderate supply and the stock offered is first-class. There are some fair callas, and calendulas are coming in of unsurpassed size and quality. There are moderate offerings of sweet peas and some excellent Roman hyacinths. Greens are plentiful at unchanged prices.

R. D. M.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—George Collins, manager of Henry Smith's greenhouses, reports that while roses and carnations have been scarce items, due to lack of sunshine, prospects are good. This firm has been doing a lot of rose grafting this year.

ROSE PRICES DECLINING

We are pleased to notify our customers of a reduction in the prices of roses, due to a larger supply. Should a further decline occur we will be pleased to give our customers the benefit of the change. The quality is exceptionally fine, and the flowers are splendid values at these prices.

STOCK A TRIFLE MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is a trifle more plentiful at this writing, due probably to the warmer weather, consequently prices on some items are not as firm as they have been the past few weeks. Roses are arriving in splendid condition and are holding their own, notwithstanding the increased supply. The demand is strong for Premier, Columbia, Mrs. Charles Russell and American Beauty roses. Milady, Butterfly, Montrose, Victor, Golden Rule, Sunburst, Ward, Ophelia, Double White Killarney, White Killarney, Cecile Brunner and Nesbit are cleaning up every day. Carnations appear to be a trifle more plentiful at this writing and have dropped somewhat in price. Lily of the valley is in good supply and so are orchids. Sweet peas are having a good call and lilies appear to be holding their own. Callas are to be had at a few of the stores. Freesias are arriving in larger quantities and some very choice stock in this line is seen. Tulips are more plentiful and the same holds true for jonquils. Paper White narcissus, stevia, mignonette, daisies, pansies, Romans, violets, calendulas, heather and euphorbia are included in the shipments. Pussy willows are obtainable at a few of the stores, and there appears to be plenty of most greens to go around. The retailers report business as unusually quiet, with some improvement the past few days. The out-of-town demand has been exceptionally heavy and the wholesalers have found it impossible to fill all their orders in full. Plants are seen in the windows of almost all the local retail stores, especially cyclamens, primroses, tulips and jonquils. Stock promises to be in heavy supply from now on if the weather continues favorable and will be warmly welcomed, for the market has been too tight for all concerned.

NOTES.

Carl I. Lindskoog, better known as the South Side Florist, of Minneapolis, Minn., spent several days here last week buying stock for the spring season. He has been in business there for fifteen years and has built up a splendid trade during that time. Mr. Lindskoog reports that he had a splendid visit and was royally entertained by members of the trade during his short stay here.

It is rumored that Miss June Vivian and George Wittbold, son of Henry Wittbold, will be married in March. Mr. Wittbold will neither deny nor confirm the rumor, but an official announcement is expected soon.

The Commercial Flower Growers' Association met at the Hotel Randolph, Chicago, Thursday evening, January 20, with President Kohout in the chair. Paul Danzig Co., and William Wichtendahl exhibited carnations, and Hans Jepsen, displayed several vases of sweet peas. Irwin Bertermann and Oliver Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, were visitors.

Zech & Mann are supplying their trade with fancy, long-stemmed sweet peas, which are unsurpassed for quality. Lilies are a big item here and are in strong demand.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that their out-of-town demand continues to be brisk and that the increased supply of stock is coming in handy.

BRISK DEMAND FOR MODERATE SUPPLY.

While the supply of cut flowers increased some the past week, due to the favorable growing conditions, still more could have been used, for the demand increased in like proportions. Roses and carnations were still on the short side, while the daily cut of sweet peas and violets made a better showing. While the latter did not move as briskly as one wished, the sweet peas continue to be favorites as in the past. In lilies, there is a fair supply of Easter, callas and rubrums, the latter being more plentiful than either of the first named. There is still enough good stevia, while calendulas, Paper Whites, and a few tulips constitute the list of so-called spring stock.

NOTES.

Alfred Locker and wife, who left on a two weeks' pleasure trip east, going as far as New York, will take in the carnation convention and National Flower Growers' association meetings on their way home. A card stating that they were enjoying a fine time was received January 24.

The greenhouses and store at 1261 Hopkins street, recently operated by H. Hornicke & Co., are for rent or sale. Being opposite the southern entrance of the Union cemetary, ought to prove a good stand for one with experience and sound business ability.

The auto show, held at the Auditorium, January 17-23, was a great success and proved that all business is not yet down to rock bottom. This should dispel any thoughts of pessimism in the minds of the local florists.

The next regular meeting of the local florists' club will be held at Kurtz Bros., February 3, and a good attendance should welcome and support the newly elected officers in their endeavor to make good.

LIMITED SUPPLY IN MOST LINES

Stock during the past week was very scarce, with the exception of narcissi. Roses seem to be the most limited, which is due to the dark weather we have had the past three weeks. Sweet peas are now arriving in larger numbers than any time this season and moving fast, the best bringing $2.00 and $3.00 per 100. Daffodils, freesias and tulips are now seen in large quantities and are cleaning up well. Scotch heather is arriving from the coast, and as it has become quite popular in this market, cleans up well. Some especially large calendulas are offered and are going well because of the vast difference between them and the ordinary kind. Lilies, both Easter and calla, have not come in as fast during the past week as the retailers would like to see them. Green goods and miscellaneous stock move well.

NOTES

The Cincinnati delegation of The American Carnation Society, consisting of R. H. Witterstaetter, Chas. Murphy and H. W. Sheppard, left January 25 for Washington to attend the convention held there and with a boosting energy to bring the next convention here.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some fine calendulas from Thos. Windram, of Cold Springs, Ky., and also some very good primulas from Wm. Schuman, of The Highlands.

E. G. Gillett is receiving a new natural green from Florida, called coontie, which can be used as a substitute for cycas. He reports record sales.

Ray Lindsey of Hartwell, O., is seen daily on the market buying all he can get hold of, which indicates that that shop is very busy.

L. H. Kyrk is receiving some excellent Columbia and Ophelia roses from Frank Bros., of Portland, Ind.

The T. J. Hardesty store reports a record week in plant sales.

LIGHT DEMAND MODERATES PRICES.

Trade this week has been rather quiet and prices have moderated in consequence. The early part of the period saw stock cleaned up fairly well, but toward midweek, the demand fell off and prices in general followed. The trade still calls for stock for work which is increasing in quantity daily. The fancy items clean up with difficulty. Roses are the leaders, and when the quantity increased toward the latter part of the week, the figures on most all stock softened, somewhat. The only offerings which held their own was jonquils and freesias, which are very limited in quantity up to the present writing. Carnations are of very good quality, but move very slowly and only with urging. White narcissi are still a drug and will very likely discourage the growers from handling them in such quantities next year. Orchids are more plentiful with a moderate demand. The weather has been a great help to sweet peas, which are arriving in very good form. Violets have their good and poor days as regards demand. Callas are more plentiful and clean up well at good seasonable prices. Nothing new has been coming to market since last writing.

NOTES.

On January 15, at the meeting of the New England branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, W. E. Stickel, presided. The principal speakers were Wallace Pierson, Thos. Roland, Allan Pierce and F. E. Palmer. The annual election of officers was held and the following were elected for one year: L. J. Goddard, president; Thos. Roland, first vice-president; Wallace Pierson, second vice-president; executive committee: W. C. Stickel, Geo. Butterworth, Peter Fisher. Executive committee for two years: H. Bartsch, Allan Pierce, William Sim. There were three delegates elected to convention January 26-27 at Washington, D. C., Capt. Moyse, S. J. Goddard and William Sim. It was voted that the executive committee look into the rules and regulations of the New York Florists' Protective Association and report at the next meeting.

At Horticultural hall, January 8, ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston was held, also the regular meeting. The secretary's report says the new members for the year amounted to 30, now making a total membership of 387.

Estabrook & Luby's establishment, of Worcester, was totally destroyed by the fire which swept the business section of Worcester January 20. The entire loss of the fire is estimated at $2,000,000.

Mrs. Sarah Rawson, widow of the late W. W. Rawson, of Arlington, was buried from the home of her son, January 15.

USUAL JANUARY DULLNESS FELT.

Trade has been rather quiet, but as this is usually a quiet month, the present lull is not unusual and retailers believe that it will gradually pick up from this time on. Records of most of the downtown establishments are up to those of last year, which is considered good, as January, 1920, was in the midst of industrial activity, while there is a good deal of unemployment at present. One of the characteristics of the trade is the fact that orders are generally smaller, but what they lose in size they make up in numbers. The public is more careful in buying and as a rule will not go beyond a certain price. The supply of flowers is only fair because of the continued dark days which have delayed the maturing of all kinds of stock. Roses, carnations and narcissi are the best sellers. Prices are unchanged from the previous week. In pot plants there is an increased volume. Small plants of begonias, cyclamens and primroses are selling briskly. Funerals have been rather quiet. Parties are more numerous than formerly and quite a few weddings and large functions are scheduled in the near future. The supply of flowers is fairly good. This is seen especially in roses and carnations. A large number of conventions have been held in this city during the month, practically all of which were featured by banquets. Florists have had a fairly good business supplying decorations in the way of flowers for these occasions.

T. J. Ludwig, 80 North High street, is having a good demand for corsages. University affairs are rather numerous at this time and these bouquets are the best feature of the trade for such functions. J. W. L.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

Seven petitions for active membership were received by Nassau County Horticultural Society at its regular meeting January 12, in Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove. L. I. J. D. Crentshorst, of Jersey City and Peter Morrison of Oyster Bay, were elected members. The exhibits were judged by Charles Parr, John and Hector MacDonald, who made the following awards: 25 string beans, first, Frank O. Johnson, to whom also was given a certificate of merit for a pot of Cypripedium he had on exhibition. James McCarthy was presented by President Noonan with the Stumpp & Walter Co. cup he won at the Minneapolis show with twelve varieties of vegetables, and Peter Smith, the H. L. Pratt cup he won at the same show with table decoration. The society will hold its annual dinner late in March, and President Noonan appointed Ernest J. Brown, Ernest Westlake

FAIR MOVEMENT AT LOW PRICES.

There has not been much snap to business the past week, and while stock has sold up fairly close, prices are not up to the standard of a year ago. A good judge of the market gave as a reason for the lower range of prices that there were at least 50 per cent more carnations offered now than at this time a year ago. While the asking price of carnations has been from $6 to $10 per 100, only very fancy stock brought the highest figure, while fair flowers sold as low as $35 per 1,000. Roses are a trifle more plentiful, but sell up close. The market was never better supplied with high-grade long-stemmed stock. The quality that is sold at 30 to 40 cents is astonishing. American Beauties, in fair supply, are in good demand at quoted figures. Sweet peas are getting more plentiful and will soon be a factor. Calendulas are improving in quality. Freesia is about at its best and meets with good sale. Cattleyas are equal to the demand at last week's prices. Lily of the valley is lagging. Lilac holds its own at top figures. Callas are good stock, as are Easter lilies. The demand for violets is more than ample with no reasonable quantity offer refused. The calla, which used to be one of the hardest stocks to move at periods of light demand, is now a headliner in all the large stores and brings $1 a dozen more than its Japanese cousin. A large wholesaler expressed the opinion that there would be a most material change in the market before long, when the roses begin to come back and sweet peas and carnations attain their height. With these leaders going at full speed, and the great flood of Golden Spur, daffodils, now about due, together with an increased supply of all the other staples, it would tax the facilities of all departments of the trade to handle the stock profitably.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS.

A knowledge of the chemistry of the soil is voiced by a grower as one of the crying needs of the greenhouse business. One grower is very successful with roses by frequent mulching of manure. Another, following his example, meets with disaster. Some water copiously and secure wonderful results; with others, the effect is injurious. No two soils are exactly alike, and there should be national or state laboratories that could, from examination of soil samples, determine just what was required in plant food elements to be added for all kinds of florists' crops, particularly for intensive greenhouse culture. Such scientific knowledge would enable the grower to get the best results from his various crops by applying to the soil the necessary food qualities to keep it evenly balanced at all times. Now it is purely guesswork, his applications of fresh or old manure, tankage, blood, bone or other fertilizer, being given without definite knowledge as to their necessity or action.

NOTES

On his return from Porto Rico, J. Otto Thilow has promised the florists' club a talk on horticulture in other places. This will probably be given at the March or April meeting. The February 1 meeting of the club should be very interesting. The committee has been fortunate in securing a man of national renown, one of the most inspirationl speakers of the country, Senator George W. Cartright, of California. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a full attendance to honor this distinguished orator. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., who made Mothers' day business for the florists, equal to Easter, in her home city, will also address the club and explain her methods in attaining such wonderful results.

J. M. Brown, eastern representative of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, was in town last week. Mr. Brown is introducing a new reinforced steel-frame house with a maximum width of 36 feet, that is cheaper than a pipe-frame, and much stronger. No screens are used, all parts being bolted together.

James W. Heacock, William Lausterer, Robert Jamison and Carl Corts took a run to Madison, N. J., recently, to get a line on the large rose growing establishments there. They reported every evidence of a large cut and that the plants were coming back in good shape. The Pierson-Duckham ranges looked very promising.

The new cycaslike leaf that has been lately introduced from Florida, is taking well with the trade. It is singular how such a good thing can have lain so long dormant. The name is Zamia pumula. Locally it is called coon-tie.

Additionnal valentine novelties have been added to H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s assortment the past week. Sydney Bayersdorfer reports that it will be the largest valentine business they have ever experienced.

The many frinds of Benny Gibbs, salesman for Eugene Bernheimer, will be glad to learn that he is now on the road to recovery from a sudden and severe attack of pneumonia.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to C. S. Ford in the death of his mother, Mrs. M. J. Ford, January 18. Mrs. Ford was in her eighty-fourth year.

White liacs, gardenias, orchids and lily of the valley are specials with the Leo Niessen Co. Carnations in quantity are also features.

Paul Berkowitz and wife are spending a week's vacation visiting their daughter in Goldsboro, N. C.

K.

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y.—Harry M. Cook has added two new houses to his range, each 32x110 feet, Lord & Burnham construction.

RETAIL ROSE PRICES BRING COMPLAINT

There has been but little change in the condition of the cut flower markets since our notes of January 22 were written. Rose prices, particularly on shorter grades, are, if anything, a little firmer. There have been sales of No. 2 teas as high as $12 per 100, and No. 1's at $20. The supply of American Beauties continues light and the asking price for the best specials is at the rate of $150 per 100. Numbers of retailers are making strong complaints on rose prices and say that half the people leave their stores without buying, when told the prices. The bulbous stock, narcissi, tulips and freesias, is now an important factor and seems to be crowding the carnations, which are more plentiful with falling prices. Orchids and gardenias are cheap for this season of the year, many of the former going at the rate of $35 to $50 per 100, and of the latter, $8 to $10 per 100. On both these offerings better prices than the above are paid for a little fresh stock, but the surplus goes cheap. A considerable stock of cut lilac and acacia is now on the market, moving slowly. There was a cold snap during the early days of last week, the lowest temperature, January 19, being four degrees above, but it had little effect on the supply, as by January 21, the weather was again mild. To sum up, considering the general depreciation in almost all lines of business, it is our view that flowers are holding up remarkably well.

January 24.—With an increased supply and light buying the market is quiet. Carnations have taken a drop and there are indications of a break in various other lines.

NOTES.

The annual dinner of the Morris County, N. Y., Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held at a hotel in Morristown on the night of January 19. Over 100 members and guests gathered around the hospitable board. Our own Frank H. Traendly was toastmaster, and our past president of the New York Florists' Club, A. M. Henshaw, made his first public appearance since the surgeons fixed him up. He spoke for the club. Other speakers were C. H. Totty, Arthur Herrington, William Duckham, W. G. Badgley and several private, but prominent, citizens of Morristown and Madison.

Anton Schultheis and wife of College Point, are wintering at Miami, Fla., and will probably remain there until Easter. In the meantime the range is being successfully conducted by Anton, Jr., and Charles Schultheis, the sons. The Easter stock looks fine, particularly noteworthy being a large stock of early roses. At present, quite a business is being done in pots and pans of tulips and hyacinths.

David Clarke's Sons arranged an elaborate decoration in St. Thomas church, January 22, for the Warren-Meany wedding. Many palms, cibotiums and large pot daisies were used. The pew markings were of callas. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids. There were 11 bridesmaids who carried bouquets of oncidiums and cibotiums.

Frank H. Traendly and Eugene Dailledouze made a flying trip through New England last week, visiting the Roland rose range at Revere, the Montgomerys at Hadley and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. They report stock as looking well at all those ranges.

Joseph Trepel, who already has 11 stores in Brooklyn, has secured a concession in the large department store of A. I. Naum & Son, Fulton and Hoyt streets, and will fit it up as a first class retail flower store, to be open for business, March 1.

Reed & Keller, manufacturers and dealers in florists' supplies, report that they have closed the best year they have had since going into business. William Reed continues his inventions of new devices in wire and rustic work.

William and George Sullivan, the active men in the wholesale firm of Sullivan Bros. & Co., are handling exceptionally fine snapdragons, carnations and sweet peas.

The Broadway Florai Market, a retail business at Broadway and 105th street, has opened another attractive store at Broadway and 90th street.

George Siebrecht is receiving fine sprays of cut acacia from the range of his father, William H. Siebrecht, Sr., Chappaqua, N. Y.

Eugene Dailledouze and wife will, on February 4, start for Florida to spend a month or more at Palm Beach and other resorts.

The new sweet pea, Miss Jennie Mammitsch, is becoming popular at the wholesale store of William Kessler.

William Kessler and wife are at Miami, Fla., where they will remain for a few weeks. A. F. F.

Buffalo, N. Y.

SUPPLY EQUAL TO LIGHT DEMAND.

Weather conditions in this vicinity have varied the past week from zero on Monday and until Wednesday, while on Saturday, tulips were on display in pots in front of one of the local stores. Stock has been equal to all requirements, although scarce. Bulbous flowers are now coming in which in all probability will put roses and carnations at figures where the multitude can buy them. Active preparations have been made for St. Valentine's day and it is expected this business will be the best in years.

NOTES

Henry Kraus, for the past 15 years with S. A. Anderson, and one of the most artistic decorators in this part of the state, died January 20, following a two months' illness of pneumonia. His early passing is felt with sincere regret by a large circle of friends. Jos. A. Cannon, of Akron, O., George Kramer and Frank Mahoney, of Rochester, were here to attend the funeral.

S. A. Anderson will have his new store completed by February 1 and he will hold a formal opening before St. Valentine's day.

Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., President; J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., Vice-President; Clarence R. Jones, 110 South Street, Baltimore, Md., Secretary-Treasurer; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass, Counsel. Next annual meeting will be held at St. Louis, June 20-21, 1921.

RAINS in Texas have slowed up the retail counter trade.

THE nominal prices of bags at Chicago, January 26, was $34.00.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, is now a grandpa.

TUBEROSE bulbs in the south are difficult to get out because of wet weather.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. B. Van Eyk, representing Lemoyne Freres, Ollioules, France.

AT Louisville, Ky., January 24, good second crop seed potatoes sold at $1.00 a barrel.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, of Floral Park, N. Y., has returned from a Florida vacation.

SEED growers in the Santa Clara valley, California, are complaining of too much rain.

SOUTH HOLLAND in the Chicago onion set district, shipped 200 cars during the past 30 days.

L. W. BOWEN, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and wife sail for the Windward Islands, January 28.

IT is estimated America imported from 80,000 to 90,000 cases of Paper White narcissus bulbs in 1920.

THE John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., has experts on its extensive seed lands drilling for oil.

GILROY, CALIF.—Mrs. L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., is in Los Angeles for a brief vacation.

THE death of William J. Fosgate, San Jose, Calif., January 13, is recorded in our obituary column this week.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Farmers, it is reported, still hold a great amount of onions, potatoes and various root crops.

TIMOTHY demand for export seems to be developing, some 200,000 pounds going abroad during the week ending January 15.

VISITED LOUISVILLE: L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.; Chas. Hollenbach, of Hollenbach's Seed Store, Chicago.

COLD weather about January 15 slackened the already sluggish demand for field seeds that are the first to be sown during late winter and early spring.

ROBT. LIVINGSTONE and wife, Columbus, O., after six weeks' stay in Seattle, Wash., reached Los Angeles, Calif., January 1. Recently they spent a week at Riverside, returning to Los Angeles for the remainder of the winter.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, January 26, were as follows: Timothy, $4.50 to $6.25 per 100 pounds. Red clover, $14.00 to $20.00.

THEO. COBB, representative of the D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., is out again after a prolonged attack of inflammatory rheumatism, calling on the Chicago trade, January 25.

FREE SEEDS.—At Washington, D. C., January 24, the house voted to appropriate $360,000 for the free distribution of seeds by the members of congress. This is $120,000 more than was appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Tariff Hearings.

At the hearings before the tariff committee in congress this week, J. C. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, chairman of the American Seed Trade Association customs and tariff committee, asked that no change be made in the present accepted specific method of assessing duties.

Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., said the present tariff might be borne without serious protest but to increase the tariff from 400 to 700 per cent is going entirely too far.

F. W. Lily, of the Chas. H. Lily Co., Seattle, Wash., asked that the present duties on cabbage seed, from 6 to 27 cents per pound, and spinach from 1 to 7 cents per pound be retained.

Wm. F. Gude and J. F. Ammann, on behalf of the Society of American Florists, expressed satisfaction with the present schedule.

Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Ass'n.

The midwinter meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association was held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, January 24-25, President William G. Scarlett presiding. Closer cooperation between the grass seed trade and government officials, especially seed analysts, was discussed. The object is to arrive at a general understanding for a uniform test to protect the seed industry. It was stated that the market had been depressed considerably since the first of the year, but an upward trend was looked forward to in the spring, especially in clover seed.

The annual meeting of the association will be held in St. Louis, Mo., June 20-21, 1921.

The following were in attendance: C. D. Boyles, Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago; Charles Burge, S. W. Flower & Co., Toledo, O.; Al Cheshire, Ross Seed Co., Louisville, Ky.; Clifford Corneli, Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.; E. F. National Canners' Association.

Supplementary to our brief report of the annual convention of the National Canners' Association at Atlantic City, N. J.; January 17-22, in last week's issue, it may be stated that optimism is the keynote of the industry, and that confidence will be the big factor in restoring normal conditions. The unexpected hidden supply of food is also a big factor in the present situation. The development of a stronger spirit of cooperation among the various branches of the industry was urged to meet the reconstruction period that has left a trail of unsettled conditions, the aftermath of every great war.

Seedsmen and others selling supplies to canners, report business the lightest remembered during the past 20 years. Orders for futures were practically eliminated and the sales for spring delivery extremely small.

A concession to seedsmen was noted in the election of Chas. P. Guelf, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., as a director of the Canning Machinery and Supply Association.

Sugar Beet Seed.

Michigan and Wisconsin beet sugar growers last week urged the house ways and means committee to double the present import duty on Cuban sugar. Beet sugar refiners declared they were losing money at present prices.

Farmers in the vicinity of Appleton, Wis., are said to be disillusioned as to the profitableness of sugar beet production. Last spring, $10 per ton was guaranteed, with a bonus if sugar prices remained up. Sugar is below $10 per 100 pounds, wholesale, and no bonus was therefore paid.

Redwoods of California.

According to the California Garden, a group of public spirited men has arisen in the last year and a half, or more correctly, these men have amalgamated their efforts, directed towards the protection of the redwoods, and the "Save the Redwoods League" has been born of this union.

The purposes of the league, as set forth by its own statement, are as follows:

"(1) To purchase redwood groves by private subscriptions and by county bond issues.

"(2) To secure a state bond issue to buy the finest redwood groves along state highways.

"(3) To establish, through federal aid, a national redwood park.

"(4) To obtain, through state and county aid, the protection of timber along the scenic highways, now in course of construction throughout California.

"(5) To encourage the state to purchase cutover redwood areas for reforestation by natural means, or by replanting where repeated fires have made sprout reproduction impossible."

Identified with this movement are such men as Franklin K. Lane, John C. Merriam, W. I. Jepson, Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Henry Fairfield Osborn, Madison Grant and others of like caliber, so we feel that the efforts of the league are destined to success, if supported by those of a large number of lovers of the beautiful throughout the length and breadth of the state.

Refrigerator Shipments and Freezing.

Losses from freezing of northwestern apples were extremely heavy last winter. During December and January, 1919-20, claims of $3,000,000 were presented to railroads by apple shippers of Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Prevention of loss by freezing in transit seems to depend largely on improved methods of heating cars. Serious losses occur also in shipments of potatoes. Information and advice on lining, heating and loading box cars for potatoes in winter have been supplied by the United States bureau of markets to shippers and producers and the methods recommended have been extensively adopted.

A heating system suitable for installation in ventilator and refrigerator cars has been designed by investigators of the United States bureau of markets, and has been approved by various railroads as a standard for the equipment of refrigerator cars under conditions which warrant the building and operation of these cars. The experimental cars equipped with this system of heating will be used in comparison with cars equipped with portable heaters. Experimental shipments of citrus fruits from California indicate particularly the value of avoiding excessive ventilation and of lining the cars.

While apples begin to freeze around 28°, below 26° is required to start ice formation in the fruit. A small amount of freezing often does not show at first, but decay is likely to occur earlier than in unfrozen fruit. When the temperature falls as low as 26° considerable injury may occur. At 23° the apple is so badly damaged that it is of little market value. However, if apples or potatoes that have been injured by freezing can be frozen immediately and held at zero temperature they can be kept in this way almost indefinitely. Such frozen products, while not equal to the unfrozen, still have high food value when properly cooked and are entirely palatable.

Freezing of the potato usually begins when the inside temperature reaches 29°, and when the temperature falls half a degree below the first freezing point. The substance of the potato becomes soft and spongy, watery, and worthless unless used immediately or unless held at zero temperature, as previously noted.

Tomatoes are sometimes injured to some extent by temperatures above the freezing point of 31°. Even higher temperatures may render the tomato more susceptible to stem-end decay and tend to retard development of color and flavor.

Sweet potatoes begin to freeze at 28 to 29° and are injured by such temperatures much more than are apples. The freezing point for onions is 29.5 to 30.5°, but the onion is not injured much unless exposed for a long time to freezing temperatures, when it shows a browning of the skin. Grapes freeze at various temperatures according to the variety. The Emperor does not begin to show freezing until the temperature has reached 22° and has remained there for some time. However, the actual freezing temperature is 24.5 to 26°. The imported Spanish Almeria begins to freeze at 27 to 28°. Between 27 and 28° a small amount of ice formation in either of these varieties causes considerable market loss.

The possibility of prolonging the season of use for certain early perishable products is shown by recent experiments on freezing in storage. It appears that many of the small fruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, plums, peaches, cherries, tomatoes, string beans, and sweet corn, will keep for a year in good condition for cooking if held at a temperature of from zero to 10°. Cherries and various kinds of berries and Concord grapes preserved in this way are almost as good for cooking as the fresh fruit, according to the investigators in the bureau of markets. Tomatoes and string beans also keep in a remarkably good condition for cooking, but plums, peaches, and sweet corn, while still fairly good, are somewhat inferior in cooking quality.—United States Market Reporter.

TRADE GOOD AND PRICES SATISFACTORY

Trade during the past week has been good, with the demand more than equal to the supply and prices well maintained. Long stemmed roses move slowly. Floral trade continues good and there is a fair movement in cut flowers.

JANUARY DEMAND VERY SATISFACTORY

The post-holiday trade was unusually good, and the stores generally are well pleased with the results. Roses are now very good and are blooming quite freely considering the season, although some of the local dealers are depending on Chicago shipments. Bank openings have also helped in the movement of considerable stock and called for many elaborate baskets, in which heather was featured as a novelty. Carnations are very much better in grade, and also more plentiful. They still hold their own at $2 per dozen. The weather is fine and spring-like and flowers are responding splendidly. There are many calendulas, while narcissi, hyacinths, snapdragons, etc., show fine form. Primulas chinensis and obconica offer a pleasing variation. Narcissi, both white and yellow, are seen in profusion and fill in well in cut flower boxes.

The Tennessee State Horticultural Society, the state nurserymen's association and the bee-keepers' association will meet in this city, January 25-27. Quite an elaborate programme has been prepared on various subjects. An interesting feature will be the exhibition of apples grown in this state by leading orchardists.

Louis Haury, Sr., who has been quite ill, is somewhat improved and his many friends hope for his complete recovery at an early date.

Meeting at Washington, D. C., January 27, 1921.

Epoch-Making Meeting at Capital.

The meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, in Washington, D. C., January 27, at the Hotel Willard, was important and epoch-making, in that an organization was perfected, officers elected and constitution adopted, by a body of men from all parts of the United States, whose investments represent 90 per cent of the capital required to finance the industry in this country. There were 35 members present, among them being representatives of local unions or branches of the national organization already formed, as follows: Buffalo, Walter Stroh; Chicago, Joseph Kohout; St. Louis, Walter J. Pilcher; New York, Frank Traendly; Boston, G. C. Moyse; Philadelphia, James W. Heacock; Detroit, Chas. H. Plumb. Boston, Chicago, Buffalo and St. Louis, have through their local branches, already felt the benefits of organization and see great advantage in the immediate future when the national association begins to function.

Percentage Plan Discussed.

The meeting was called to order by President W. J. Keimel, and Secretary Ammann read the report of the committee on raising funds for publicity. There was considerable discussion as to the ratio of percentage necessary, which for growers in Class A, was finally placed at one per cent on gross sales, to be paid into the local organizations, 75 per cent of which was for local advertising or other purposes, and 25 per cent to be paid into the parent association for national advertising. James W. Heacock thought one per cent would keep many from joining; that 50 per cent would be likely to get all in, and then if necessary, it could be increased. Walter Stroh stated that Buffalo raised $10,000 by subscription last year, a larger amount than if the percentage plan had been used. Results of their advertising campaign had been very beneficial and 90 per cent of the growers of the Buffalo market were interested. Alfred Locker, Milwaukee, reported the percentage plan there was very successful. Growers now pay one per cent on gross sales and retailers two per cent on purchases. Milwaukee will join the association, and will likely add to their percentage.

Walter J. Pilcher, St. Louis, reported the local association had 90 per cent of growers enrolled who were paying one-half per cent on gross sales; 50 per cent of the retailers paid one per cent. They raised and spent $7,000 last year for publicity. George C. Moyse spoke of the benefits already obtained by the New England association of Boston, of which he is secretary, which had taken up co-operative buying and was saving one-third of the cost of such articles as carnation wire, by the ton; manure, by the carload; tankage and other fertilizers by the ton. Seventy-five carloads of manure and 25 tons of dried blood had been distributed.

Secretary Ammann said the percentage plan was perfectly feasible and practical and now in operation in several cities; there was no more need of experimenting. Chicago is collecting $50,000 a year. In some localties, there had been no assessments or percentages on out-of-town shipments, but these were coming, as returns had been very satisfactory everywhere. Milwaukee ships half its flowers, so growers there pay one-half per cent. Chicago growers pay $8 per thousand square feet of glass. There should and will be local district organizations in every locality. The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association is doing good work in getting the retailers in line. Under the voluntary plan of collections for publicity, men with small places had paid as much as $200 a year, while growers with a million feet of glass, had given nothing. The most equitable method was percentages on sales.

Thomas Roland said there was no longer any opposition to the general movement of organization. Personally, he believed, it is the most vital matter; nothing worth while has ever been accomplished without organization. It was thought first, to tax glass area, as being the easier way; no going into private business. But the percentage in sales plan is now seen to be the best; one cent on every dollar's worth of business is very small and no one will ever miss it. This movement is not to make money, but to conserve what you have. It is a duty we owe to those who are coming after us. We must help and not expect the retailers to spend for us. There were the primitive days when stock was peddled. Now we go to market, sell what we can, and then sit down and mourn. Let us get the system going the country over, and everybody will be astonished with results.

Constitution Adopted.

The constitution and by-laws were then taken up and amendments made. It was voted that this meeting was to be recognized as the first meeting of the organization. There was considerable discussion over the various clauses of the constitution and by-laws, which Mr. Ammann said could not be made perfect today, and would likely have to be amended many times. After the various changes were made, the revised constitution was adopted as a whole.

Otto H. Amling, secretary of the Commercial Flower Growers' Association, Chicago, in a communication, proposed that a uniform scale of judging plants and cut flowers be adopted. This was referred to a committee to formulate such a scale for the use of local district bodies.

Secretary Ammann read a letter, which he had sent to the national coal commission, protesting against profiteering and irregular prices on coal, for which he was given a vote of thanks.

President Keimel then read his address, a very excellent paper, full of suggestions on the good of the organization. Treasurer Wallace R. Pierson reported a balance in the treasury of $1,545.45, all borrowed money. Twenty-nine men had volunteered to advance $100 each at the Cleveland meeting for preliminary expenses of the organization. Twenty-two of these men had sent in their checks. All of this money will be returned as soon as possible from incoming dues. Buffalo was first in payment of dues. Secretary Stroh turning over a check for their first collections of $90.13.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers was then taken up and resulted as follows: W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill., president; James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa., vice-president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., secretary; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., treasurer. Directors: To serve three years—E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; Earl Mann, Richmond, Ind.; Joseph Kohout, Chicago. To serve two years—J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; W. J. Pilcher, St. Louis, Mo. To serve one year—Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; F. H. Traendly, New York.

Hartford, Conn., was unanimously chosen as the place of the next convention, to be held in conjunction with the American Carnation Society convention and exhibition, and also the exhibition of the American Rose Society, the date to be announced later.

Wallace R. Pierson, Earl Mann and Carl Hagenburger, were appointed a committee to secure and submit designs for gold, silver and bronze medals and certificates of merit, to be offered by the national or local district bodies for competition, as they find it desirable to offer same; also to prepare a scale for judging plants.

W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.
President National Flower Growers' Association.

J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.
Secretary National Flower Growers' Association.

Local district growers' associations, Secretary Ammann said, consisting of 25 members or even less, became automatically members of the national body as soon as they began paying in 25 per cent of their collected percentages. One of the important matters that would interest all growers, that of a uniform system of grading stock, would, he thought, be taken up soon and perfected.

The meeting then adjourned to meet in Hartford in January, 1922.

President Keimel's Address.

Last August, you conferred the honor upon me of electing me the first president of this new organization. Since that time, I have tried to prove myself worthy of this high trust. The work of organizing locals in the different sections of the country has fallen upon our secretary, J. F. Ammann, and how well he succeeded, we all know. There are now six local districts fully organized and represented at this our first meeting: Chicago, St. Louis, New England, Buffalo, Cleveland and Mid-West. At the time of calling this meeting, our secretary gave a general outline of work before us at this time, but I would like to call your attention to what I consider the main object of this society, and that is, to put our business on an equal plane with other up-to-date business organizations, and we can only accomplish this through thorough co-operation and national advertising, keeping our product continually in the mind of the public.

In the last three years, through the publicity bureau of the Society of American Florists, much has been accomplished, and it is the duty of men on the producing end to carry this work on and put it on a solid footing. To do this it will be necessary for us to set aside a small part of our earnings for this purpose. There is now a plan started in several cities, by which the grower is assessed a small percentage of his gross receipts, and the retail florist a percentage on his purchases. In most cases 75 per cent of the amount so collected is used for local advertising for the benefit of the retail florist, and 25 per cent is used for national publicity for the benefit of all. To date, I believe this assessment to the retail florists affect only the local people in the city where such assessment is made, and as at least 50 per cent of the stock usually sold through the wholesale houses of such cities is shipped out, it has been considered equivalent to assessing the grower half the amount of the retail florist. This is the plan now in effect in Milwaukee and Chicago, and I believe, expected to be adopted in some of the other large cities of the country. I would recommend that this plan be started wherever possible through the local districts of the National Flower Growers' Association, and the plan be so changed that the assessment be levied on all retail purchases, local and shipping, and the grower be assessed the same percentage on his gross receipts; 75 per cent of the amount so collected, to be used locally for advertising, and the other 25 per cent turned over to the National Flower Growers' Association, who will use it in addition to such funds as will be collected from growers not contributing through the assessment plan, and sums collected through other sources in financing the national publicity. If this plan is worked out, there is no doubt that in a few years, the association will be as strong, and do as much good for the growers, as the Florist' Telegraph Delivery Association is doing at present for the retail florists.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION, WASHINGTON, D. C., JANUARY 26-27, 1921.
A Partial View of the Show.

was being used for advertising, and this is what they found:

Automobiles	3.3%
Automobile accessories	4.2%
Food products	4.6%
Fountain pens	5.3%
Building materials	3.4%
Office supplies	5.1%
Optical goods	7.3%
Paints and varnishes	4.0%
Candies and chewing gum	8.1%

The last item appeals to us as a factor in determining what we ought to expend. If it takes 8.1 per cent appropriation to sell candy, what should we do to advertise flowers? Or, shall we call it merchandising and marketing flowers?

Such a plan will naturally induce the grower to pay more attention to his accounts, and this opens another field for this association, by helping its members in working up a uniform system of bookkeeping, whereby a cost system can be worked out to show if his business is run at a profit or loss, and in this way help to overcome unfair competition. Speaking of unfair competition, a district organization sent into the national office the following:

"At a meeting of the executive committee of the Western New York district of the National Flower Growers' Association, the matter of bulb auctions in New York was discussed. Many of our members, being assured that no bulbs would be shipped to this country from Holland, except such as were ordered in advance, bought their supplies of Dutch bulbs, and contracted to pay for them at the high price quoted by the bulb salesmen in the spring. Now, in spite of these assurances, millions of bulbs which England refused to accept at the exorbitant prices are being thrown on the the American market. This exposes our growers who bought surplus bulbs which are being sold far below the contract prices. Our association wishes to register a protest against this situation, and urge the national association to take drastic action to prevent the repetition of this situation. We would also request the national association to investigate and determine the source of these bulbs which are being thrown upon the market and publish this information through the membership, so that they may refuse to pay the high price in cases where there has been misrepresentation."

Another district local sent the following:

"This organization would welcome from you some suggestions as to the correct methods for taking inventory in greenhouses from the viewpoint of income tax. The question also arises as to the proper rate of depreciation on iron-frame and wood construction, and the correct method of accounting for it. It is suggested that the national association make a study of this problem with the idea of devising a simple and standardized system of accounting, adapted to the needs of the small grower. If it should prove feasable, a set of blanks might be prepared which would, when filled in from day to day, give the grower the information he needs regarding his own business. This information is sadly lacking in most establishments and its absence is the cause of many of our difficulties."

These are some things for your attention at this meeting. Besides this, there are for your consideration some suggestions of changes in the constitution and by-laws which your officers thought advisable. The question of dues on assessment is a very important one, and the proper and just plan should be worked out at this gathering. Possibly Article 8 should be changed, so that all members contributing their share through the assessment plan, be relieved of any further dues.

Secretary Ammann's Report.

To the officers and delegates of the National Flower Growers' Association:

The list of regularly elected delegates from the districts permanently organized is as follows: Chicago district—Joseph Kohout, August Poehlmann, Henry Wehrmann, George Ball and Otto H. Amling. New England district—Samuel J. Goddard, William Sim and George G. Moyse. St. Louis district — W. A. Amling and W. A. Rowe. Western New York district—W. J. Palmer and H. B. Brookins. Mid-West district — Jas. S. Wilson. Cleveland district—Carl Hagenburger.

Since the organization meeting at Cleveland last August, your secretary has visited the following cities with a view of organizing district locals: Indianapolis, Baltimore, New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Council Bluffs, Springfield, O., Springfield, Ill., and Milwaukee. The following districts are now permanently organized with membership as follows: Chicago, 110; New England, 49; St. Louis, 36; Western New York, 27; Cleveland, 10, and Mid-West, 18, making a total membership of 250. Districts that should yet be organized are as follows: New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Kansas City, with probably two in the far west and two more in the south, so with what we now have, there is a possibility of making about 18 districts in all.

With this data at hand, we should readily be able to decide whether or not there will be enough districts in the whole country to make that form of organization more practical than the plan of one large organization with individual membership. Your secretary has always maintained that the plan of organizing in units or districts is the better one. First of all, for the reason that through a district organization, the membership will be more accessible and easier to get in touch with than through one individual organization. Secondly, that the data or census of our business can be more easily acquired through district organizations than otherwise, and thirdly, it brings the members into closer co-operation so that they may take up any matter pertaining to local conditions.

As we are about to take final action at this meeting on the adoption of the constitution and by-laws, we should give the above much consideration. The question also arises as to whether or not we should attempt, in the near future, to undertake anything more than the work of further completing more district organizations, gathering the census from those districts already organized, and national advertising. There are, no doubt, many other important matters that are of vital interest to the members of our organization, and it will no doubt be well to take note of any problems that the members feel this organization should give attention to for further consideration.

I wish to state further that while the securing of memberships to this organization, and the perfecting of district locals has been and is progressing rather slowly, I do not feel at all discouraged, for I realized from the beginning that the task was not an easy one. It requires a great deal of hard work and a considerable amount of patience. It is, however, far better to build slowly and surely, than to build so fast that it may not be safe.

There is considerable expense incurred in organizing a local district, as it often requires several trips, besides a lot of time spent in correspondence, and often even then organizations soon slumber for want of live leadership and have to be revived again. I believe a good live, young man as a field worker, who could stay in a given district say for two weeks at a time, would be a great asset to the progress of our work. This, I am aware, all means additional expense. I feel, however, that if we expect this movement to make the progress it should, we must put more cash into it. You cannot build anything on wind. Each local district should bear a portion of this initial expense, with a fixed sum guaranteed before the field is entered by the national organizer.

You will note from the financial statement that no monies have as yet been paid into the national association by any of the districts. The cost of getting most of these districts organized has been paid out of the advanced loans from the few public spirited men named herein. This money should be paid back as soon as possible and the districts should be prompt in sending in the quarterly payment of their pro rata dues to the national association so these obligations may be met.

Your secretary has no further recommendations to make at this time, except that the directors elected at this meeting should immediately convene after its adjournment and formulate a plan for future work.

American Carnation Society.

The thirtieth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation society, brief announcement of the opening of which appeared in last week's issue, page 89, held at Washington, D. C., proved a well attended and interesting gathering, with a large and varied display of very fine blooms.

The modern facilities offered by the large hotels of the present day for conventions or trade organizations afford splendid accommodations for the delegates and for holding exhibitions and meetings under the same roof, thereby greatly expediting their business. The sessions of the society were held in large parlors on the first floor of the New Willard hotel, the first meeting being called to order by President Charles W. Johnson at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesday. On behalf of the city and the Florists club of Washington, an enthusiastic welcome was extended by Wm. F. Gude, which was replied to on behalf of the society by Theo. Dorner. President Johnson then read his address, which was full of suggestions for the welfare and progress of the society. He was listened to with close attention, his various points making a good impression on his audience. Secretary A. F. J. Baur then read his annual report, which stated the membership to be 348, 253 of which were also members of the Society of American Florists. F. E. Dorner, treasurer, also presented his report, which showed the funds of the society to be well invested. Expenditures were being kept on the safe side, although the high cost of printing schedules and other necessary stationery had been a severe strain.

In the report of the committee on grading carnation flowers it was stated they had found it very difficult to adopt a scale, as conditions differed in various parts of the country and so had nothing definite to offer. Chairman C. S. Strout, of the committee on patenting new varieties of carnations, presented the following report. "Your committee was asked to report as to the need and advisability of seeking a patent on plants and new varieties of flowers. After carefully studying the matter, it was the feeling of carnation growers and introducers of new sorts, that we report, that at present no necessity exists, and there is no general desire for this action.

C. D. STROUT,
A. M. CAMPBELL,
W. A. ROLAND.

Wallace R. Pierson told of how a firm of nurserymen were controlling a new variety of apple by only selling to purchasers who signed a contract agreeing not to propagate. A suit in court to enforce this contract had resulted favorably in one instance and damages of $2,000 were awarded, which Mr. Pierson said was the next thing to a patent.

The report of committee on schedules for the national flower show in Cleveland, O., proposed as principal prizes for general display of carnations, first, a medal and $300; second, $200; third, $100. Prizes for arranged baskets were $100, $75 and $50. Altogether, an appropriation of $2000 was asked for. The report was referred to the board of directors. W. F. Gude here asked permission to invite the members of the City Club, who were club. H. W. Sheppard, Cincinnati, O., made a strong plea for the Ohio city, where he assured the members, the society would be well cared for, and where the same triple alliance proposed for Hartford could be carried out. He was ably seconded by J. C. Murphy of the same city.

holding a meeting on the same floor as the exhibition, to view the display which was freely granted.

Secretary Baur called attention to the increased expenses of the society, and proposed that the annual dues of $2, be increased to $3, which was unanimously agreed to. As this required a change in section 4 of the constitution, and could not be put in force until next year, Secretary Baur was instructed to ask that members in their loyalty pay this amount beginning with the present date.

The secretary read a telegram from John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, regretting his inability to be present, and wishing the society success in its exhibition and deliberations.

A proposition was offered that the Society of American Florists be asked to appoint judges to pass on miscellaneous exhibits, other than carnations, that might be placed on display at the annual show of the society. This was ordered placed on file.

Wallace R. Pierson, when the city for holding the convention of 1922 was under discussion, made a proposition, which in its entirety, may develop into a midwinter exhibition of great importance. He had invitations from the florists club of the city of Hartford, Conn., also from the mayor, board of trade, hotel men and others.

He also proposed that the National Flower Growers' Association be invited to hold its annual meeting in Hartford, and that the American Rose society be asked to at the same time, stage an exhibition of cut roses, the exhibitions and meetings to extend over a period of three days, and so scheduled, that one will not in the least interfere with the other. He was ably seconded by S. J. Goddard and the president of the Hartford Florists'

Nominations for officers to serve for the ensuing year were then made. For president, W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., was placed in nomination. Nominations for vice-president were deferred until the selection of the convention city for next year.

For secretary, the present incumbent incumbent A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., who has served the society so long and efficiently was again nominated. For treasurer, F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., was elected to succeed himself. Theodore Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., was nominated for director. Nominations for judges resulted in Samuel J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., and Jos. H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., being named to succeed themselves on the board. Wallace R. Pierson was also nominated and only allowed his name to stand on condition that no one was to vote for him.

George Asmus, Chicago, then made a strong plea for a hearty co-operation of the society in the next national flower show in Cleveland, which was to be the greatest floral exhibition the world had ever seen. Charles S. Strout said, that if the western carnation growers would do their part there would be no trouble about the east as was seen in the present exhibitions, when with but two or three exceptions, all exhibitions were eastern or middle states growers.

W. D. Howard, then gave an interesting talk on "Sterilization of Carnation Soil," which was published in full in last weeks issue.

In the interesting discussion which followed, E. H. Croninger, Allentown, Pa., stated that he had used the same soil for carnations for 10 years. He spaded the soil in the houses up roughly and left it exposed to the sun to do the sterilizing during middle of summer for six weeks. All plants are field grown, where they get so vigorous and strong that he never shaded the glass when first planted inside and seldom loses any, as they take hold at once.

William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., has used the same soil for five years. His are all ground beds with board sides, one foot in height. He changes his beds immediately after Memorial day. The top soil is taken off to a depth of four inches. It really is six inches below the level when first made up, as during the season it settles two inches. With the top soil off, a three-inch coating of manure is put on and dug in to the depth of 18 inches, turning up the subsoil to the top. Some of the soil in the houses has been grown in continuously for 20 years, and with the addition of manure, is still giving good results. Mr. Sim's carnations are all grown inside, rooted cuttings being planted direct from cutting bench into ground beds, about three inches apart. He makes room for these by throwing out, after the holidays, red varieties. When the time comes to plant for the season, his young stock is well established, with fine strong rootgrowth, which when transformed, makes a splendid summer growth, commencing to flower early and producing flowers with long stems. Here is no stem rot or other ailments that the field grown stock is heir to. The last job on the place every night before the men go, is to give all the plants a good syringing.

Alfred M. Campbell, Strafford, Pa., had tried soil a second year this season, but never would again. His stock is grown on raised benches. He believed fresh virgin soil to be the best; that the work in cost of sterilizing would be at least half that of putting on new soil. Make up your mind to change and then "Out, In, Done."

Fred E. Dorner stated that indoor growing in the nest was a failure as the weather was too hot. Mr. Sims thought plenty of water would overcome this condition; twice a day regularly would not hurt. Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O., believes in thorough watering, citing instances where an apparent excess had produced wonderful results, even curing mildew. Elmer Weaver, Ronks, Pa., had used the Skinner system for watering his carnations with goods results.

J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia., said he had tried soil the second year, sterilized by sun, which was satisfactory to him. Production has averaged 17 good flowers to square foot of beach space, half of the cut being in March, April and May. This was thought by growers present to be a good yield.

Mr. Sims forces 100,000 plants in a number of varieties, set out eight inches apart, and has an average of 15 flowers to a plant, cutting from August to June. Chas. S. Strout, running his houses 12 months in the year, averages 30 flowers to the square foot of bench space. One white variety had yielded 41 flowers to the square foot.

A. M. Campbell stated a square foot of bench space to be the only equitable way in which to determine or compare returns. Most growers were born optimistic and only saw things as they wanted to see them, not as they actually were.

How long a carnation bud will take to mature caused some discussion. Secretary Baur said when the formation was of such size as to be called a bud, it would open out in from six to eight weeks in midwinter, but in spring would come along much more rapidly.

Charles P. Mueller's excellent paper on "How to Increase the Crop for Mother's Day" brought out a lively discussion, the general opinion being it might be a help to the grower-retailer, but not for those who shipped to market. There would be too many flowers sacrificed before and after, while the extra crop gained was not of high grade.

The report of the judges on the various exhibits was then read and accepted. The convention then adjourned at 11 a. m. to meet Thursday at 9 a. m.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

The Thursday morning session did not get under way until 10 a. m., when President Johnson called the meeting to order. The committee appointed to study the president's address, reported it to be an able paper and thought favorably of the suggestion allowing the secretary mileage in official visits to Cleveland in connection with the national show. The committee on the secretary's report, declared his suggestions very practical and recommended their adoption. Both reports were adopted. The new class of 50 blooms assorted to be added to the schedule as recommended by the secretary, was adopted.

William Sim proposed a prize for 12 best blooms assorted, and backed it up with a $25 premium. This was adopted with premiums for a second by C. S. Strout, offering $15, and Coombs, the Florist, Hartford, Conn., $10, for a third. S. J. Goddard offered $25 for a vase of the best dozen Laddie, which was also adopted.

The proposition of Wallace R. Pierson, that the convention and exhibition of the society be held in conjunction with the National Flower Growers' Association and an exhibition of the American Rose Society, was referred to the board of directors with favorable recommendations.

The selection of the next convention city was then voted on, and resulted as follows: Hartford, 24; Cincinnati, 7. Wallace R. Pierson thanked the members and felt sure that in addition to New England they would have the support of the West and the whole country.

N. C. Osborn, Hartford, was then nominated for vice-president, and there being no other candidates, was declared elected to the office for the ensuing year. Mr. Osborn thanked the members for the honor, and assured them of a hearty welcome to Hartford.

The custom of every florist wearing a flower at all times, and particularly as a badge at conventions, was discussed. S. J. Goddard saw to it that every member was immediately given a carnation for his coat.

The election of judges resulted in the return of S. J. Goddard and Jos. H. Hill, whose present terms would expire with the close of the meeting.

The American Carnation Society is giving $2,000 to be offered in premiums for their schedule at the national flower show, and were asked to underwrite a portion of the list of premiums. Each donor would be given credit for the amount and the premium to be offered in his name. If, however, some was not awarded, the money was to be turned into the treasury of the American Carnation Society. The following subscriptions were then entered:

Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me., $50.
H. W. Sheppard, Cincinnati, O., $50.
Cottage Gardens Nurseries, $50.
W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., $50.
Dorner & Son's Co., Lafayette, $50.
Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, $50.
S. J. Goddard, Framingham, $25.
Coombs, Hartford, Conn., $25.
Saunders, Lewistown, Me., $25.
Elmer J. Weaver, Ronks, Pa., $25.
C. W. Johnson, Rockford, Ill., $25.
Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., $25.
Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., $25.
S. S. Skidelsky, New York, $25.

SWEETHEART ROSES AND DAISIES IN ST. VALENTINE KIDDIE VASE.

E. Winkler, Wakefield, Mass., $10.
Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, $10.
J. C. Murphy, Cincinnati, O., $15.
G. E. Burton, Nashua, N. H., $25.

The list was left open for subscriptions from other members of the society who were not present.

F. Lautenschlager, Chicago, suggested that the flowers on exhibition might be arranged in decorative effects the second day of the show, and the general public be invited in to see them. Chas. S. Strout thought the growers wanted to see them at their leisure the second day, compare their keeping qualities and other good points. Mr. Strout said he hoped the committee would see that the carnation exhibits would be given a good location in the national show, as too often they were placed back in a corner, receiving little recognition.

Wm. Sim was asked to name varieties of carnations that would carry over for another year, but said that such a list would not be practical, as sorts varied in growth and production in all parts of the country.

The convention then adjourned to meet in Hartford, January, 1922.

The complete list of officers elected is as follows: W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., president; N. C. Osborn, Hartford, Conn., vice-president; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary; Fred E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., treasurer. Judges: S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., and Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind. Director: Theodore Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.

The awards in detail and list of early visitors were given in last week's issue.

THE EXHIBITION.

There is no question but that the display was quite a step forward over those of recent years. New England was particularly strong. Such well-known carnation specialists as Strouts, Inc., Wm. Sim, S. J. Goddard, W. D. Howard, Coombs, the Florist, and Ernest Saunders, were entered in a number of the classes with wonderfully fine flowers, which were the admiration of all who saw them. Gude Bros. Co. also staged magnificent flowers, their vases of Democracy, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Laddie being particularly fine. S. J. Goddard's entries were Rosalie, Happy Day, a fine red; The Lark and Laddie. A large white enamel basket, filled with 100 of his choicest Laddie, artistically arranged by Harper Hetherington, stood on a table at the entrance to the hall. It attracted great attention and was an example of what might be done with many of the large flowers that were packed so solidly together in the fibre jars.

Strouts', Inc., entered White Delight, a fine variety; Maine Sunshine, Crystal White, Roslyn and Donald, all superb flowers. Wm. Sim's leaders were Fairy, White Benora, Rosalie, Rosette, Harold and Benora. This stock was fine. Coombs, the Florist, staged Eureka, Matchless, Laddie and Belle Washburn, all choice flowers. W. D. Howard exhibited choice market varieties in Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Pink Delight and Cottage Maid.

Ernest Saunders staged Enchantress, Supreme, Beacon and Doris. The Joy Floral Co. exhibited their white seedling, a fine long-stemmed flower of purest white of good size and form and very sweet. Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, and F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., had their exhibits held up by the express companies, both arriving the second day of the show. They carried in good shape and after getting in the water, made a fine display.

ST. VALENTINE KIDDIE IN TROUBLE.

H. C. S. Schwartz, Central Park, exhibited three seedlings, Resolute, fine white; Siren, a large flesh pink, and Spring Glory, red. These were all promising. George Brenkert came all the way from Denver, Colo., with a light Enchantress pink seedling of good size and form.

Hartze & Elder, Indianapolis, Ind., staged a rose pink seedling, No. 16, a really fine flower which looks like Mrs. C. W. Ward.

R. E. Wadworth, Northboro, Mass., exhibited a seedling called Down, a flush or flaked pink, a very pretty flower.

There was a vase of the Marinelli or malmaison type, very curious flowers, staged by Andrew D. McNaughten, Haverford, Pa.

Dorner's seedling, No. 135-16, flesh pink, a beautifully formed flower, was shown by S. J. Goddard, who has it on trial. It looks like a comer.

A new rose white sport from Sunburst, exhibited by White Bros., Medina, N. Y., attracted considerable attention. It looks very much like Kaiserin, but is quite different. It is said to be very free.

A vase of Buddleia asiatica, very well flowered, long-stemmed sprays, was exhibited by the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O. Flowers of such quality should have great value in the cut flower market.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O., exhibited well-flowered plants of begonia and cyclamen, also cut blooms of cyclamen, all superb flowers.

THE BANQUET.

About eighty people sat down to the banquet in the exhibition room of the Willard Hotel at 7 p. m., Thursday. The exhibits were arranged on tables at the sides of the room, giving a fine decorative effect. The diners were seated, eight together, at round tables. After a menu served in the hotel's best style, Adolph Gude, Jr., welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Washington Florists' Club, and appointed Wm. F. Gude toastmaster, who also voiced his pleasure in having so many visitors at this time, and hoped for a banner attendance in August next. He then introduced Dr. W. Paul, assistant secretary of agriculture, who made a very pleasant address, speaking of the phenomenal and rapid growth of this country in the past 100 years, from ten to one hundred million. Our position as the leading nation of the world was still strong, but should we cease to keep to the front as exporters, we would fall as rapidly as we rose. Chicago has risen from nothing to the fourth city in the world in 50 years, but it would fall back just as quickly if it ceased to be the center of the great grain producing country of the world. The value of the food imported now exceeds our exports, and if present conditions continue for 15 years, we will be importing wheat and corn. Go home and think the matter over, as to what America is going to do.

President R. Elbert, of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, was then introduced, who, after saying complimentary things of the florists and their flowers, told of the great advantages of co-operative work in trade organizations, citing instances of beneficial results. He also urged his hearers to help, through their congressmen in giving the residents of Washington a voice in the management of their city.

President Johnson was then called on and said the present exhibition and meeting had been one of the best it had ever been his pleasure to attend. He called for the report of the condolence committee which was read by Chairman C. S. Strout. The three members who had passed away were: Patrick O'Mara, C. W. Ward and Jacob Schulz. The final resolutions committee also presented its report through Chairman D. S. Ward.

Adolph Gude, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, made a short and forceful address, citing the great loss by hail of the Budlong Co., Auburn, R. I., and the wonderful rapidity with which the damage was repaired. He closed with a cordial invitation for all to come to Washington in August and help make this the best of all conventions.

J. F. Ammann emphasized the great work that had been done by the various trade bodies that had been in session, day and night, for a week past, working out problems that he felt sure woul benefit the various branches of the trade.

After the speaking, there was dancing, which brought to a fitting close the very interesting events of the week.

American Rose Society.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

An interesting meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at the City Club, Philadelphia, Pa., January 28, 1921, the members present being Messrs. Pyle, Pennock, Boyd, McFarland, Mills, Simpson and Pierson. In the absence of John C. Wister, the secretary, Mr. Pennock acted as secretary pro tem.

J. Horace McFarland, editor of the Rose Annual, stated the book would go to press about February 15, with the idea of sending it out about March 10.

A very admirable arrangement was entered into with the department of agriculture for the dissemination of the Dr. Van Fleet roses, through the American Rose Society.

Wallace R. Pierson, chairman of the committee on commercial cut rose interests, stated he would be glad to add to the number of his committee, which was thoroughly approved, and is working toward getting a fine showing of roses at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society show in Boston, April 6-10. It is hoped that all growers within reach of Boston will exhibit what they can in the way of roses, and assist not only the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, but the American Rose Society. It is planned at this show to have a public meeting, where there will be speakers, and perhaps moving pictures, illustrating some of the up-to-date establishments of the country.

It was decided to co-operate with the Missouri Botanical Garden in the establishment of a rose test garden in St. Louis, Mo.

The contemplated trip of the American Rose Society to visit Portland, Ore., in June, 1922, to dedicate the Roseway which is now being built in that city, was brought up and there was a discussion of the itinerary. The prospect was that it will be one of the events not only in rose history, but in the horticultural world as well, and all who can, should take this trip. Full details will be given the trade in due time, as to the cost and the contemplated stops on the way out and return.

St. Valentine's Day.

February 14 should be one of the best business days on the florists' calendar. It is the day of days when flowers reign supreme. Its motive is love and sentiment. It is Sweethearts' day, when old loves are revived and new ones find expression. There are sweethearts everywhere. Cupid, the little son of Venus, is on the job all the time. Position in life is nothing to him; in either cottage or castle he roams at will, welcome, always welcome.

St. Valentine's day is a golden opportunity to all florists who are prepared to make the most of it. Few, very few of the trade, realize the importance or the possibilities of the business that can be built up on the motive of the anniversary. February 14 presents the opportunity for establishing a universal custom of recognition of the sentiment of the day with flowers. There are so many of the trade, who, because the demand is not forced upon them, see nothing in the observance of the day, make comparatively little or no effort to advertise or feature it in any way, thus allowing hundreds of dollars' worth of business to lie dormant that could be theirs almost for the asking.

In the great majority of stores, there should be more intensive and better or more wide-awake business methods, particulary in working up and attracting new business. It is safe to say that half the stores depend almost entirely on funeral flowers, and care or strive for little else. With very little effort, they could widen their field and greatly increase their business by displays of seasonable plants and flowers that are suitable for the constantly recurring events of life. Suggestions lead to sales, and there could be no better opportunity to try out such a selling campaign than is offered in the approaching St. Valentine's day. Start in right now by featuring the event in every possible way.

SERVICE BUREAU HELPS.

The S. A. F. national publicity campaign has done wonders in working up the trade to the possibilities of window and store display, which is further augmented by the splendid work of their Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, whose Mothers' day and St. Valentine's posters, posterettes and folders have accomplished so much in arousing interest in these events.

Their St. Valentine broadside for this season is full of suggestions with various methods interesting the public. Their fine poster which depicts a crying cupid, out in a snowstorm, with the inscription, "Don't leave Cupid out in the Cold," is very artistic, and with the national slogan beneath, tells the story at a glance. The posterette, a miniature of the posters, is splendidly effective in that it can be attached to every piece of mail or package of any kind that is sent from the store, carrying its story wherever it goes. Their folder, with its illustrations, suggestions and fine text, printed with the name of the firm sending it out, should be wonderfully effective in results. All these helps are furnished at such a trifling cost, that they should be used in every store in the land. Do not wait another day. Get these St. Valentine boosters on display at once. Feature the day in every possible way and the results will astonish you. Electros of well-illustrated one and two-column cuts, for local newspaper advertising, are also furnished, as are the slides for the movies, all of which afford splendid publicity.

With a strong campaign going along these lines, there should be planning and preparation for a varied stock of plants and cut flowers to meet the created demand. One of the most satisfactory plants to handle at this time is Primula malacoides. This is now available in several shades of color from pure white to a bright rosy pink. With its abundance of bloom on plants in four-inch pots, it makes up into very salable baskets and pans which, when decorated with mat coverings, ribbons, St. Valentine hearts and inscriptions, are most appropriate for the day.

Pots of daffodils, freesia, cyclamens and pans of hyacinths and tulips, are now in full flower, and when nicely decorated, are good stock to carry. All of these are made so much more attractive by a little decoration. If only with white paper drawn up around the pot, and tied with a slender tasseled cord the color of the flower, or just a piece of colored tape, it gives them all a dressed-up appearance that adds much more to their value than the slight cost of the material. Medium-sized baskets filled with foliage and flowering plants for those who desire to pay a little more, are well worth while.

The supply houses are always on hand with novelties for filling with cut flowers. The St. Valentine kiddies have been very popular the past few years and are still, in new designs, in good demand. Very pretty and artistic bisque or china figures of cupids and other miniature figures in front of a vase for flowers are offered this year. These are rather expensive, but are ornamental and always useful as flower receivers at all times.

Small vase baskets in great variety, filled with all sweet peas, violets short roses, calendulas, daffodils, pansies, etc., and given a Valentine touch with ribbons, arrows, hearts and the like, will be found good sellers.

There is always a demand for corsages in which short roses, sweet peas, violets, cattleyas and lily of the valley play a prominent part. A sample or two of these always on hand, ribboned up, will help their sale and at possibly a better price than the customer was expecting to pay. This is a good time to push the "wear-a-flower-campaign," Almost every gentleman will want one for his coat, while the oftener they are worn for any such dress occasion, the easier it will be to make this the universal custom.

THE WINDOW.

For at least two weeks, there should be an elaborate display of St. Valentine's day specialties in the window. Nothing need go to waste, as ribbons and heart and arrow decorations need not be on all the articles displayed. Chiffon and ribbon can be given a touch of the spirit of the day by means of the small gummed hearts in various sizes. These can be stuck on at intervals with very pretty effect. Gilt hearts, arrows and inscriptions are also decorative and appropriate.

A table or two in the store, arranged with some baskets and other novelties, a few of them filled, are sure to receive favorable attention. Large red hearts, with "February 14," printed in the center, about the store and window, are decorative and suggestive.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

There are always a number of dinners and receptions, at which the decorations are more or less elaborate. Red or pink are the popular colors. A large, hollow, red or outline heart, or two entwined, with an arrow across the center, is a good round-table centerpiece. A plateau of ferns, on which are two raised hearts, facing each end of the table, is a good design. A tall, slender vase rising from the center, filled with red carnations or roses, is an addition when conditions warrant such elaboration. Corsages should be laid at each lady's plate with boutonnieres for the gentlemen. A plateau formed of corsages, each tied with a narrow ribbon leading to, and attached to the lady's place card, are distributed as the guests are about to leave the table, by each lady drawing hers from the center by the ribbon.

The Late Charles Millang.

Charles Millang, one of the best known wholesale florists of New York, died January 28 in the Flushing hospital, age 57 years. He suffered a nervous breakdown about two years ago, and though he recovered sufficiently to at times be at his place of business, he had within the past year been steadily failing. The death of his only daughter, seven months ago, was a severe shock to one in his weakened condition. About two months ago he, accompanied by his wife, went to California in search of health, returning two weeks before his death, in a critical condition.

Charles Millang's father was a Belgian florist and landscape gardener, who settled in Bayside, now a part of New York, many years ago. The inclinations and environments of the sons, led them to be early interested in horticultural pursuits, Charles having spent practically all of his adult years in the wholesale business. He was genial and made many friends. He had been a member of the New York Florists' Club for 28 years. He was also a member of the Masonic and other fraternal orders. Surviving him are his wife, three brothers, Frank, Joseph and August, three sisters, and a number of nieces and nephews. A. F. F.

CARLYLE, ILL.—Wm. Dumbeck has added one house to his establishment and will increase production.

RUTHERFORD, N. J.—Rudolph F. Deplanta, an expert in forestry, 56 years old, committed suicide January 30.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—H. H. Hensley, pioneer florist of this city, has moved to a new location, 1928 Third avenue.

AUBURN, ALA.—There is no prospect of rebuilding the large agricultural plant, destroyed by fire last October, until 1924, when the legislature will pass on an appropriation for that purpose.

READING, PA.—The Reading Florists' Association has elected the following officers for 1921: Harry C. Huesman, president; Jacob C. Bauder, vice-president; Wilbert N. Abel, secretary-treasurer.

CROMWELL, CONN.—A. N. Pierson, Inc., are putting in large quantities of coal at about pre-war cost, under $3.00 at the Pennsylvania mines. This means long storage before using, and some loss of interest.

THE artistic decorative appearance given to the front of the store by tubbed evergreens and the pavement window box, is worth many times the cost. Nothing catches the eye so quickly as this form of decoration.

COAL. — Vice-President Reid of the Peabody Coal Co., Chicago, testifying before the senate committee, said under the Calder bill, the coal industry cannot live. He asserted that "steam coal was selling at $1.25 a ton in every jobbers' yard in Chicago."

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY business should be pushed from now on. Do not wait for the last week. The Florists' Publicity Service Bureau has mapped out a splendid campaign. Their cupid folders, posters, stamps, movie slides and newspaper cuts are wonderfully effective in design and text. The more you do for Valentine's day, the greater your return. Start in today.

Personal.

The many friends of W. E. Wallace and wife, of Dunstable, Eng., will regret to learn their proposed visit to the United States may be deferred on account of the latter's illness.

Sweet Pea Annual.

We are in receipt of the Sweet Pea Annual of the National Sweet Pea Society of England, for the year 1921, containing much valuable information and interesting papers. The secretary is H. D. Tigwell, Harrow View, Greenford, Middlesex.

Moss Standards.

Agitation has been started by prominent firms dealing in sphagnum moss asking that some organization in the trade fix a dry weight and standard size of burlapped bale and refuse to buy any other size or reduced weight below such standards. This is a move in the right direction, but who will follow it?

Canna Roots.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

When all eyes have been cut from canna roots, will such roots produce eyes and make stock? G. C.

We have never tried it, but to be sure of your stock, I would advise that you leave one or two eyes on the roots to produce the growth.

Glass.

All hand window glass factories in the Pittsburgh district have ended operating periods and are closed. The shutdown may continue eight or ten weeks. The National Association of Window Glass Manufacturers will meet in Pittsburgh, February 8, to arrange the next working period. Wage reductions will be considered at a Cleveland conference before that date.

The output of window glass factories last year was around eight million boxes and any sort of a building revival will result in a shortage. Prices have held firm for 20 months.

Tennessee State Horticultural Society.

The Tennessee State Horticultural Society and the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association held the center of interest in Nashville, January 25-27. This was the sixteenth annual convention and was highly successful. The attendance was very fine, showing good appreciation of the work of both, about 175 being present. A large delegation came from all parts of the state, including representatives from the University of Tennessee, who spoke on various matters pertaining to the subjects in hand. G. M. Bently, secretary-treasurer of the societies, reported them to be in good financial condition. Among others present from a distance were George C. Stancher, Auburn, Ala.; Henry P. Corwith, Saluda, N. C.; F. D. Garrison, field agent of the Tennessee Horticultural Society, to whom much credit is due for his intelligent handling of many details and who was responsible for the beautiful display at the state fair last fall; Dr. John W. Roberts, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Henry M. Dunalp, Savoy, Ill.; Gabe M. Weil, Cincinnati, O.; Chas. S. Brown, agricultural statistician, Little Rock, Ark.; E. H. Favor, Chicago; E. A. Lake, pomologist, Washington, D. C.; George E. Muriell, Washington, D. C.; W. F. Bohlender, Tippecanoe City, O.; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C.; C. P. Dadant, Hamilton, Ill.; J. J. Wilder, Waycross, Ga.; W. R. Walling, Hardin, Mont.; Prof. H. W. Wilson, Madison, Wis.; T. B. Paddock, Ames, Iowa. A noted speaker present was Ex-Governor B. W. Harper, Newport, Tenn.

There was a very beautiful exhibition of apples, attractively displayed, among the varieties being the Rome Beauty, Red Winesap, Paragon, Stayman, Chicago, Delicious, Yates and Golden Delicious. James Craig, of the Rose Cliff Fruit Farm, Inc., Waynesboro, Va., made a most wonderful display.

On Wednesday, when the nurserymen had their session, there was a fine display of all kinds of fruit trees, and ornamental shrubs and everything included in this class of plants. There was also a good exhibition of all kinds of insecticides, fungicides and instructive talks as to how to apply them.

The social feature of the convention was emphasized by a "get-together" banquet Tuesday evening, at the Hermitage hotel, and a "smoker," Wednesday night. M. C. D.

Dahlias Versus Roses.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

In an interview with Edward Reid, Philadelphia, Pa., published in your issue of January 22, page 66, he proposes as a plan to solve the short-stemmed rose problem at Christmas and other times, that all wholesalers join in an agreement to discontinue dahlia sales after October 10, in order that the rose man could have the field to himself. I, for one, cannot see but that the dahlia grower has as much right to his living as the producer of roses. We cannot all grow roses, but we nearly all grow dahlias, and at the rate dahlia culture is increasing, in a few years there will be as many, if not more, growing dahlias than there are at present growing roses, especially if the interest grows as rapidly in the next few years as it has within the last four.

Does the writer think that because he does not like dahlias, that all the rest of the wholesale trade are in sympathy with him? If he will only look around, he will find that a number of wholesalers who did not previously handle dahlia blooms, are now disposing of them successfully, and there will be more as soon as there are growers supplying first quality flowers. The customers are being educated up to the dahlia beautiful. What would have been the result the past fall, if his theory had been carried out, as there was apparently a dearth of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, etc., until after the date he mentions, and the retailers would have had to turn down a number of orders if it had not been for the helping dahlia crop? If the roses alone had been in the field, nobody except a millionaire could have had flowers. What does it matter if there are two kinds of flowers on the market in quantities. The retailer is apt to select those that suit his trade, and a combination of roses and dahlias to show to his customer is more apt to help the sale of both rather than weaken.

I do not think that the writer of the article in question has visited a good display of dahlias, either growing or in some first-class show or up-to-date florist window. Another thing, unless roses get cheaper, some enterprising greenhouse man will be apt to select dahlia varieties that will grow and bloom under glass and grow dahlias the year around, as I believe they can be grown and produced cheaper than roses. Be easy, brother. The world is wide, and there is room for all the rose and dahlia growers, and remember that the blooms are not altogether a by-product, as there are now a number that are growing them for the flowers alone, and will sell the by-product; the roots, only when they have a surplus.

Pres., American Dahlia Society.

BETTER SUPPLY AND FAIR DEMAND.

From all appearances, with the exception of roses, the extreme shortage that has prevailed since the first of the year is over. Clearances have been good, and it has been possible to fill orders, something that has not been done for some time. The demand has not been extra heavy, and, with the exception of an occasional funeral order, there does not seem to be much doing. American Beauties are still off crop, while there has been an increase in the supply of the other varieties. Premier and Columbia have the call, with Butterfly and Ophelia close seconds. Double White Killarney, Pink Killarney, My Maryland, Hilda, Richmond, Sunburst and Mrs. Aaron Ward are among the arrivals. The carnation supply is on the increase and prices are somewhat easier. Easter lilies and callas are in light supply and clean up daily. Bulbous stock is in heavy suppy, and includes narcissi, Paper Whites, Golden Spur and tulips, both single and double. Sweet peas are now a factor, and the quality is of the best. Is is to be hoped that there will be a good supply for Valentine day. Freesia is in heavy supply, and is hard to dispose of. Lily of the valley is in good supply and moves freely. Violets are hard to sell at any price. Orchids go slowly and price concessions have to be made at times. Calendulas, mignonette and baby primroses are slow, and the week end finds many of them carried over. Heather finds a ready market, as something different and while at first glance the price seems high, when you consider the uses it can be put to, and how it makes up in basket work, the price is reasonable.

NOTES.

Nick Harris, of Harris Bros., has returned from a 14 months' visit to his old home in Greece. Mr. Harris says, that while it was nice to renew old acquaintances, that conditions in Europe are terrible, and that the dissatisfied in this country, do not know when they are well off.

John C. Walley, greenhouse foreman for the McCallum Company, and Ed. Blind, of the Blind Floral Company, were among those from the Pittsburgh district who attended the carnation convention at Washington, D. C.

The Retail Florists' Association of the Pittsburgh district will hold its monthly meeting February 3, at the Seventh avenue hotel, at which time advertising for Valentine day will be taken up.

Both the McCallum Company and the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company are featuring cut heather from California, and have found a ready market for it. E. C. T.

LIMITED SUPPLY AND WEAK DEMAND.

Business at the markets this week has been rather on the dull side. The quantity of stock arriving has been limited, but lack of business has kept prices reasonable. Roses and carnations have been leaders, and even they have moved sluggishly. Bulbous flowers are increasing in quantity daily and clean up fairly well. Tulips made their first appearance this week and sold at eight cents. Lilies are coming in, about the same quantity as a week ago, with no change in price. Marguerites, pansies and other offerings are still scarce and hold their price, owing to that factor. The stores out of town, for the most part, report a very quiet business. Nothing is moving in the cut flower line and the only business they are getting is funeral work.

Burpee's Sweet Peas

There is always a ready demand for good Sweet Peas. Well grown flowers realize most remunerative prices, and it is doubtful if any other crop will bring the florist greater profits, considering the outlay for stock and the ease with which the crop is handled.

To ensure flowers of highest quality and at a time before the market is glutted with ordinary stock, the seed should be sown during January or February in pots. Start them in a cool house or even a cold frame, and so have first-class sturdy plants for setting out in the open field early in April. This method will give you flowers in late May, and much superior to those sown directly in the open.

When ordering ask for our leaflet on Sweet Pea culture.

The House of Burpee is recognized the world over as American headquarters for Sweet Peas. Burpee's Sweet Peas are grown and developed on Floradale Farms, our California seed ranch, and our strains are unsurpassed for high-class quality and "trueness" to type and color.

Good Sweet Pea seed is scarce this season, due to short crops, and as our stocks of some varieties are limited, we suggest early ordering.

The following list includes only such varieties as we know to be of value for market work. For fuller descriptions and classified list of all varieties, including many novelties now offered for the first time, write for Burpee's Annual which is sent free upon request.

ASTERS

New Giant Non-Lateral

New Introductions of Exceptional Merit.

Several years ago an American Specialist in Aster culture undertook a certain series of crosses to obtain a tall growing Non-Lateral strain of Asters, and this season we are offering for your consideration the perfected results of his work. By crossing the tall growing non-lateral American Beauty with some of the finer types of the Crego class, an Aster with the type of Crego and Peony flowers and with a non-lateral branching stem was secured. These Asters attain a height of some three feet and the long stems are surmounted by flowers of ultra refined Crego and Peony Flowered types. The size of the flowers is phenomenal. The fact that these Asters are without laterals causes an unbroken sap flow from the base to the one flower at the terminal, thereby accounting for their immense size. The flowers can be cut with individual stems ranging from eighteen inches to two feet in length. The blossoms of the Crego Type are large, fluffy and not unlike the general make-up of a refined type of Japanese Chrysanthemum.

CREGO TYPE

Peach Blossom Pink. A superb Aster with blossoms of he most ultra-refined Crego type, the petals being beautifully wisted and interlaced, borne singly on rigid, upright stems. The plants attain a height of two and a half to three feet. Unlike the ordinary Crego Asters this variety throws few or no laterals. Blossoms of enormous size. Splendid for cutting purposes.

Dark Rose. A tall growing variety, in color a deep rich rose. Flowers of enormous size, wavy in outline. An ideal Aster regarded from any point of view.

Light Blue. An exact replica of Peach Blossom as regards form, size and character of growth, with an exquisite tone of color.

Purple.

Price any of above,
per trade pkt., $2.00; per ¼ oz., $2.50.

PEONY FLOWERED TYPE

Peach Blossom Pink. This new Aster differs from the Crego type in the fact that the petals instead of being curled and wavy like are regular in their outline, more or less after the style of a gigantic flower of the old Victoria Class.

Light Blue. An exceptionally good "Cutflower Blue."

per trade pkt., $1.00; per ¼ oz., $2.50.

The tenth annual meeting of the New England Nurserymen's Ass'n was held at the American house, January 26-27. John K. M. L. Farquhar, chairman of the legislative committee, gave a very interesting talk on the work accomplished on quarantine of nursery stock. He also said the federal horticultural board does not consider the European corn borer as serious as was first supposed. C. R. Burr spoke on business conditions, which he says are much improved over a year ago. He says nursery stock will not go down in price, owing to the limited supply, and no stock to be had from France or Holland. Officers elected were: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president; E. F. Coe, vice-president; L. A. Robinson, secretary; V. A. Vanicek, treasurer; S. A. Hoyt. D. W. Dow and H. N. Chase, executive committee. The choice of the place for next year's meeting is left to the executive committee.

Harry N. Kelley, for 15 years located at Pemberton square, died January 27. He was for a number of years connected with J. Newman & Son of this city. Mr. Kelley was one of the best known men in the city, both in and out of the trade, and will certainly be missed by his many friends. He was a member of several fraternal organizations.

BRISK DEMAND EXPECTED

Due to the mild weather, the supply of all bulbous plants will be affected, causing a serious shortage of flowers for Easter. Roses and carnations are still leading the market. The best varieties of roses such as Premier, Columbia, Russell, Butterfly. Ward and Killarneys are scarce, and are bringing wholesale from $10 to $35 a hundred, according to the length of stem. They are retailing at from $3 to $15 a dozen and up, according to variety. Carnations are plentiful and the stock is in excellent condition. They are wholesaling at $10 to $12 per hundred, and retailing at $2 and $3 per dozen according to quality. Sweet peas are plentiful and bring from $1 to $3 per dozen wholesale, and from $1 to $2.50 per bunch retail. Narcissi and freesia are offered at $6 per hundred, and from $1.50 to $2 a dozen retail. There are some fine jonquills on the market and the demand for them is good. They wholesale at 12½ cents each, and retail at $2.50 to $3 per dozen. Calendulas of exceptional size and quality are coming in large quantities and are offered at $3 to $5 per hundred, wholesale. They bring $2.50 to $3 per dozen, retail. There is a limited supply of California violets to be had at 75 cents per hundred wholesale. They are bringing 35 to 40 cents a bunch, retail. Calla lilies are scarce at 15 to 30 cents each, wholesale, and $6 to $8 per dozen retail. Lilium Harrisii are wholesaling at 20 cents each and retailing for $6 a dozen. A limited supply of Roman hyacinths are offered at $5 per hundred wholesale. Lily of the valley is plentiful and is bringing $12 per hundred wholesale, and $3 per dozen retail. A decrease in the supply of lily of the valley is expected next week. There is a good supply of orchids coming in now, and the demand is rushing. They sell from $9 to $18 per dozen wholesale, according to size and variety. They are offered at from $3 to $3.50 each retail. Some very fine tulips of the common type are now coming in and the demand is exceptional as is usually the case with the first cut flowers of the bulbous type. There are no Darwin tulips on the market yet. Gardenias and hyacinths are not to be had at any price. Cyclamen and cherries are still seen in many of the windows. Snapdragons are to be had at a few establishments. Many willows are used in combination with other plants. Specimen plants of tulips are to be had from 50 cents up, depending upon the size of the pots and the number of flowers contained.

Greens, asparagus plumosa, is selling for 50 to 75 cents a bunch. Sprengeri is bringing 50 cents a bunch. The plumosa is scarce this week. Ferns are bringing $4 per 1,000. It may be said of this city that the public in general is playing the waiting game and is doing comparatively little buying due to the unusually high prices of flowers. It is predicted that when prices take a slump, trade will pick up. Funeral work comprises three-fourths of the floral business in St. Louis at the present time.

NOTES.

The second annual flower show of the St. Louis Garden club will be held in the floral display house in the Missouri botanical garden, on May 21-22, 1921. This show, which is primarily for local exhibitors, embraces amateurs, professional gardeners and commercial men within a radius of 25 miles of St. Louis. The premium list will be out this week and will be in the hands of the various wholesalers for the benefit of the commercial men. The cash prizes for commercial men will be on the same basis as those of the previous show. President M. Duggar would like the commercial men to have their schedules filled out promptly and in the hands of the committee as soon as possible. Mrs. James L. Drummond of 4339 Pershing avenue is chairman of entries.

At the last meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners, which was held January 30, 1921, it was decided there should be two meetings a month during the spring, because a series of instructive lectures is to be presented at this time. The next regular meeting of this association will take place February 2, 1921, at the Forest Park municipal greenhouse. Herman Schwartz will continue his interesting lecture on "Insects." At the last meeting he took up the topic of, "When a Bug is not a Bug." There were 35 members present at the meeting and much information was gathered by all.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

A SPHERE OF PURE WHITE PETALS

THE seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908, George J. Ball, a Sweet Pea and Aster specialist, selected a plant among his Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that from eight to ten flowers only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in ¼-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds, at $3.00 per trade packet.

MR. GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, November 9th, 1920.

Dear Sir—We feel impelled to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your White Asters. In addition to its magnificent form, it also has the advantage of being an excellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have to offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing as it is superior to any White Aster. Very truly yours,

SUPPLY IS INCREASING.

The supply of stock is steadily increasing and while there is plenty to go around for almost all the orders a few brisk days would make quite a change in the market condition, and some items be found scarce. American Beauty roses are in good demand and the same holds true for Columbia, Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russell. There is a good call for Milady, Butterfly, Montrose, Victor, Golden Rule, Sunburst, Ward, Ophelia, Double White Killarney, White Killarney, Cecile Brunner and Nesbit. Roses are more plentiful than they have been and prices are not so high, but there is no great surplus to speak of, while at times the market has been cleaned up completely the past week. Carnations are more plentiful and some fine stock is to be had especially Laddie and Ward. Prices are considerably lower on carnations but fancy stock continues to command good prices. Sweet peas are arriving in splendid condition and fancy long stemmed stock is in brisk demand at high prices with the shorter grades cleaning up nicely. Freesia are having a good call and the variety Purity is exceptionally fine this season. Colored freesia are obtainable at a few of the stores but the supply is limited. Tulips and Jonquils are more plentiful and are selling nicely. Orchids are to be had in fair sized quantities and there is plenty of lily of the valley to go around. Violets are in good supply and in good demand. Lilies are good property and so are callas. Stevia, mignonette, Paper White narcissus, daisies, pansies, calendulas, Romans, heather and euphorbia are included in the offerings. The city demand has been very quiet the past week and the shipping trade has not been as brisk as it might be. Green goods are in fair supply. Cyclamens, primroses tulips and jonquils are the principal offerings in plants and are seen prominently featured in many of the store windows. Stock promises to be in good supply for St. Valentine's day, but it will be well to place orders in advance so as to protect oneself against a heavy demand. Do it now.

NOTES.

The Everette R. Peacock Co. is mailing its new seed catalogue this week. This firm's retail cut flower department under the able management of Herbert Stone has closed a very successful year. The total sales for 1920 show a 75 per cent increase over 1919 and 50 per cent for the holidays. The sales so far this month are very encouraging, and preparations are now under way to handle what Mr. Stone believes will be a record Valentine trade.

Ransom E. Kennicott, chief forester of the forest preserve, is showing views of the bridle paths and other interesting features of the new park system.

The Ernest Wienhoeber Co. had several large orders for the Uihlein funeral, one of which called for a casket cover of orchids and lily of the valley.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is handling a good supply of bulbous stock in addition to its regular line including fancy tulips.

BRISK DEMAND AT REDUCED PRICES.

Stock showed plentifully the past week, with improved quality, and there seems to be a return to pre-war prices. Roses were about the same as before, and could be obtained at eight cents and up, wholesale. Carnations showed improved quality, and were being wholesaled at 8 and 10 cents. Sweet peas were more plentiful and of good quality and selling for $3 per 100, wholesale. A liberal supply of stevia and white narcissi were placed on the market, making a fine filler. The tulip and jonquil offering was very limited. Pot plants are selling well, and in a number of cases, are taking the place of cut flowers.

NOTES.

Lambert Chandler of the Elmhurst Gardens, has but recently entered the florist business, and will carry a good supply for Valentine and Easter trade.

S. Bryson Ayers, of Independence, is cutting a large supply of sweet peas and reports that very few buds are dropping.

A brisk Valentine and Easter trade is looked forward to by Arthur Newell, who states that business now is very good.

E. G. Bunyar, of Independence, suffered considerable loss in spring bedding stock, due to a leak in an oil pipe line.

W. J. Barnes reports a good trade in hospital and funeral work, and says pot plants have a good demand.

A fine supply of roses is being cut by T. J. Noll & Co. E. J. B.

Toledo, O.

JANUARY BUSINESS GOOD.

The current demand in the flower shops is surprisingly good when all the present conditions are analyzed. Other lines of business are deader than the proverbial door nail, and it is only by tremendous advertising of slashing price reductions that they can provoke any response at all. Florists had looked for a decided slump in this month, but were agreeably surprised. Of course, it might be better, but no complaint can be made as long as there is no decided decrease over the same period last year when the "influenza" epidemic helped materially. The big item in this month's trade has been the call for funeral work, with the usual number of wedding decorations thrown in. The auto show held last week helped as florists received good orders for booth decorations.

Cut flowers, since the holidays, have been rather scarce and high priced. The dark weather has not helped the situation. Roses, particularly the shorter stemmed grades, have been hard to obtain. Sweet peas are increasing in quantity and enjoy a brisk sale. Carnations are gradually improving in form and numbers, while calendulas are of fair quality. Daffodils are good stock.

NOTES.

Schramm Brothers' greenhouses are beginning to reflect the spirit of Easter, having a fine representation of hyacinths, daffodils, narcissi, begonia, primroses and cyclamen. Frank M. Schramm is very optimistic regarding the business outlook and states that if florists will plug for trade, advertise consistently and give dollar for dollar value in flowers and service, they have nothing to fear and everything to gain.

Max Spanner has given an interest in his Madison avenue flower shop to Max Zaller, his nephew, who for some years has been selling on the road for Mr. Spanner. He is a hustler, progressive, and should prove a valuable aid in developing the business.

Mrs. Earl Metz, wife of Earl Metz, of Metz & Bateman, and Mrs. Frank M. Schramm, wife of Frank Schramm, of Schramm Brothers, have completely recovered from their recent illness, necessitating a sojourn at the hospital.

The Helmer flower shop has a nifty St. Valentine's day window display, in the shape of a monster heart and other suitable novelties. Business here has been as good as could be expected according to Jacob Helmer.

St. Valentine's day is in the offing, and prospects at the present time are bright for a lively trade. Florists here are already advertising with posters and window displays.

The stock of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, who died recently, has been appraised by Frank M. Schramm and J. L. Schiller, and the store will probably be sold in the near future.

BETTER TONE IN MARKET.

There is a better tone shown in the flower business in central Ohio. All local florists report an increase in business, with the public buying in larger quantities. The rule that has been followed since the holidays to buy in small orders, is giving way to larger ones and to more liberality. All of the florists are encouraged over the outlook, and are making preparations for a good pre-Easter trade. Funeral work has been especially heavy, and that has helped out to a large degree. There is also a larger number of parties, receptions and weddings and the florist is benefitting accordingly. On the whole, there is a decided improvement, and it is believed that the worst of the slump is now over. Loose flowers are selling fairly well, and the same is true of corsages. Saturdays are beginning to be better as trade days and orders are coming in along old-time lines. Roses and carnations are still the big features, although violets and narcissi are also selling well. Both single and double violets are in good supply and the quality is excellent. Spring flowers are beginning to appear in the market and buying is lively. They include jonquils, freesias, narcissi, both yellow and white, sweet peas and Roman hyacinths. Prices are holding up firm-

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

Supply and demand have been about equal the past week, a smart demand early, a slow up in the middle and a good cleanup on Friday and Saturday. Prices have gone off a trifle, but for the most part have been maintained very well. Carnations are the quantity stock, as are sweet peas, both of which are offered freely in all the houses. Roses are still shy, particularly in the medium to short-stemmed grades. Premier has certainly proved itself this season, its fine large flower, good foliage and stem making it a favorite with all buyers. American Beauties are leaders in price, they are slowing up a bit and quite a number of bullheads are seen in the jars. Callas are increasing; there are, however, too many twisted and crippled flowers. Accordion pleats are no ornament to the calla; it is that smooth, graceful contour that is admired. Easter lilies are a trifle scarce; there is quite a lot of weak, short-stemmed stock, due, the men who grow them say, to the poor quality of the bulbs, while the successful men declare it is all in the culture. There are more Golden Spur and quite a few batches just coming in; prices as yet rule high, but are a bit shaky. There are several grades of calendula. Only about ten per cent of the stock are specials; there are too many short-stemmed single flowers. Freesia is now in full crop, some growers doing this flower much better than the average. The best bring as high as $12 per hundred. Violets, while plentiful, sell up fairly close, New York doubles are seeking an outlet here. Snapdragon is a trifle more plentiful; it will soon be one of the quantity stocks. Mignonette is hard to move. Many florists have no use for it because they do not know how to use it. A large wholesaler stated that growers could add considerably to their returns if they would take more care in preparing their stock for market. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, calendulas and many other flowers, if bunched with care would, not only carry better, but present a much more inviting appearance when offered for sale. Sweet peas should not be bunched as they are picked. When gathered they should be placed in water for a while, and then bunched by some one who knows how to put them together nicely, all flowers facing one way. In such bunching, the shorter-stemmed stock is worked off with the long, the flowers are sold by the bunch, rather than by count, although all bunches contain twenty-five sprays.

EQUALIZING PRICES.

A good judge of the market is of the opinion that special and long stemmed roses, with the exception of American Beauties, as compared with the short and medium grades, are priced entirely too high. The short to medium lengths sold at from 10 to 25 cents, while the long stemmed in two grades were priced from 35 to 75 cents. If 20 per cent were added to the bottom figures, and the same ratio lopped off the top, the trade would be greatly benefited and the general public have little ground for complaint as to holiday prices. It takes as long to grow a Mrs. Ward, with a 12-inch stem, as an 18-inch Columbia, yet it will not bring more than half the price. Mrs. Ward, while a beautiful rose, and one that has undeniably made a place for itself, is being dropped by growers because there is much more money in Premier, Columbia and other large-flowered varieties.

gave a fine address on optimism, showing conditions to be safe and distrust, only a state of mind. Ella Grant Wilson gave a splendid talk on finer education in selling flowers, illustrated with photos and sample newspaper stories. W. R. Nicholson spoke of cooperative publicity campaigns that have had great results. The exhibition tables contained fine roses and carnations.

NOTES.

Wm. Kleinheinz and John Koons visited the exhibition of the American Carnation Society in Washington on Thursday last, and declared it one of the best in recent years. Eugene Weiss also stopped over to see the show. Mr. Weiss is on his way to Florida, and may extend his trip to the Panama Canal. Other Philadelphia visitors were: Alfred M. Campbell, E. J. Fancourt, S. S. Pennock and James W. Heacock. Mr. Heacock also attended the meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, where he had the honor to be elected vice-president.

A grower in commenting on the daffodil stock, looks to see it as hard to move, as was the Paper White narcissus some time back. He believes there was a great deal of bulb stock dumped on the market late in the fall, at buyers' prices, the flowers of which will soon be on the market in quantity.

The dahlia growers are getting after Edward Reid. "Of course they do not like such comment," said Mr. Reid, "but if they had the greenhouses and the other fellows, the dahlias, it would suit them to a T." Choice roses, sweet peas and cattleyas are features of this week's stock.

Growers of lilac should in some way manage to get a lot of foliage to green up and fill out their bunches of twelve flowers. The naked stems add very little to the beauty of the bloom, in fact, detract not a little.

Berger Bros. are handling very highly colored Ophelia; they are almost as deep as Butterfly. John Welsh Young is the grower. Carnations and Easter lilies are also features.

Virtor Groshens is sending very choice Mrs. Russell to the Leo Niessen Co. American Beauty roses, fine white lilac and cattleyas are leading specialties here.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Benny Gibbs in the death of his mother the past week.

J. Otto Thilow and G. A. Strohlein, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are in Porto Rico on vacation. K.

BRIGHTER WEATHER AND BETTER DEMAND.

With moderately cold weather, there was generally good sunshine during the past week, and consequently a good supply of flowers, considering the time of year. In proportion to supply and demand, roses came nearer cleaning up than most other stock One wholesaler stated that there were too many violets and they were hard to move, prices tapering down from 75 to 35 cents per 100, the latter price being for left-overs. A fine supply of tulips, narcissi and freesias has been arriving, all in fairly good demand. Carnations have held up well in price, $8 per 100 having been paid for the best, exclusive of Laddie. Orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley were all slow and went into the holdover class. A feature of the trade is a steady supply of cut primrose blooms that wholesale at reasonable rates. Pansies are also in good supply. In stevia, wallflowers, marigolds, callas and Easter lilies, there is a moderate supply and demand.

January 31.—The market is well supplied, and excepting roses, there is a downward tendency in prices on all stocks.

NOTES.

The late Peter Grossman, killed in an accident January 28, was a native of Germany, but had come to this country when young. He was for 14 years in the employ of Charles Webb, the well-known grower and retailer of Lynbrook, L. I., later going into business for himself as a grower. He was well thought of by those that knew him intimately. He was 49 years old and is survived by his wife and one child.

The house committee of the New York Florists' Club wishes to announce that the ladies' night entertainment will positively take place at the club's hall in the Engineering building, West 39th street, near Sixth avenue, on the night of February 14. A special invitation is extended to those that have recently been proposed for membership. Members can have friends admitted on payment of $1.00.

Fire in a tailoring establishment on the second and third floors of 104 West 28th street on the night of January 27, flooded and partly wrecked the wholesale store of Harry Charles, on the ground floor. Until repairs are made, which will probably take a week or more, he is continuing business in a part of Geo. C. Siebrecht's store, 109 West 28th street.

A party of carnation growers from New England, that had been attending the Washington convention, dropped off here on their return, and looked over the wholesale markets. They were S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; E. A. Richards, Greenfield, Mass.; George E. Buxton, Nashua, N. H., and Ernest Saunders, Lewistown, Me.

A fire at the range of Fred Schweizer, plantsman, Hackensack Plank Road, North Bergen, N. J., on the night of January 25, destroyed the boiler and pottery shed, and burned out the end of one house, exposing the plants to frost, as it was a frosty night.

A large number of visiting florists were in the city last week, including C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; P. Welch, Boston, Mass.; W. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Jos. H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and W. J. Pilcher and W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, Mo.

Peter Grossman, a florist of Malvern, N. Y., was killed on the afternoon of January 28 at a railroad crossing in Lynbrook, N. Y., when his auto was struck by an express. The flagman said he, Grossman, disregarded the signals.

Frank H. Traendly, Wallace R. Pierson and John Canning, called on Secretary Tumulty when they were in Washington. No one suspects them of being office seeking.

A New Yorker who visited Washington, has stated that if it had not been for the New Englanders, there would not have been much of a carnation exhibition.

Louis Denis, of the D. & D. Floral Co., was married to Miss Helen Manurane, January 16. The ceremony took place at the Orthodox Greek church on 24th street.

We have noticed at M. C. Ford's, in the Eighteenth street market, a vase of the new rose, American Legion. It is a very bright cerise red.

One of the neatest calendars for 1921 that has come to hand is from Theodore, the florist, of 2890 Boulevard, Jersey City, N. J.

Charles Millang, a well known wholesaler, died, January 28. A more extended notice will be found in our obituary column.

In addition to his usual good stock of roses, H. E. Froment is now handling a considerable stock of cut lilac.

New York Flower Show.

MARCH 14-20, 1921.

With five weeks intervening between the present and the opening date of the New York spring flower show to be held at the Grand Central Palace, arrangements as regards both competitive and trade exhibits are wonderfully complete in all the main details. The big private estates are this year taking more than ordinary interest in the exhibition, and the group displays promise to be finer than at any previous show.

Among those who are preparing extensive exhibits are: Payne Whitney, Manhasset, L. I.; Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y.; Daniel Guggenheim, Sands Point, L. I.; W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., and Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Entries for every one of the larger classes are in hand. There is always a doubt as to the possibility of filling a class as big, for instance, as Class 175, which calls for an exhibit showing the best development of a garden covering 1,000 square feet. The display may include lawns, flower beds, rose gardens, shrubbery borders, rose beds, bulb beds, or anything else an artistic exhibitor may suggest, keeping, of course, within the garden idea. Four entries have already been received for this class, and as competition is likely to be keen, some magnificent displays, such as were never seen at any previous show, may be expected. The class carries an appropriation of $4,000 for award, and a special sweepstakes prize of $500, in addition for the exhibit judged to be the most meritorious of all in the class. Staging of these exhibits will be made on the first day of the exhibition.

One or two novelty classes are featured this year. There is a class for "a bird bath, with a planting arrangement at base not to exceed three feet in diameter." This class, which is open to all, does not appear in the official final schedule, but is an extra, the prize for which is offered by the Garden Club of America. Another extra class is to be known as the "window box class." This also is an open class, and should particularly attract florists. The public generally should be interested in window boxes, especially that portion of it having house fronts but no gardens. It has been arranged that the window boxes staged in this class be given the utmost prominence; in fact, it is practically decided to place them upon the ledges about the stairways of the principal entrance. A third extra feature is one, which, for want of a better name just now may be called the "back yard garden," although "forecourt garden" might be just as appropriate. This display will be of the "before and after" character, showing conditions with and without a garden. Specially painted backgrounds will be relied on for effect in this case, one of them supplemented with a real garden planting.

Florists having novelties in the way of roses, carnations, sweet peas, or any other flowers are urged to make stagings in the classes provided. Many hundreds of florists from all sections of the country make a point of visiting this show and will be interested in such stagings.

The classes for decorated tables are confined to private and amateur growers. This year there is to be a competition on each day of the show, excepting the last.

The tea garden will again be a leading feature, and in it, various social functions have been planned to take place. This year the garden will be located at the western end of the main floor.

With the tea garden location thus changed, desirable space becomes available for trade exhibits on the second floor, Lexington avenue front. At previous shows, many would-be exhibitors have expressed desires for locations in this section of the building, which is easily approached and in many respects fully as desirable as some of the locations on the main floor.

The trade section of the show will be quite as extensive as that of any previous show, if not more so. Most of the "regulars" are in the list of exhibitors, and there are several newcomers. The American Dahlia Society has taken quarters where dahlia enthusiasts can gather, and the Women's National Farm and Garden Association will similarly have quarters wherein to meet its members and friends. Those who have taken space in the trade exhibition are extremely optimistic as to the attendance at the show, the drastic changes made in the general layout of the exhibition being such as to insure something different from what has gone before. The following are among the exhibitors who have already reserved space in the trade section:

THE EXHIBITORS

Bulis Florist-Boxes

While the firm name has changed, the name of our florist-boxes remains the same—Bulis Florist-Boxes. These boxes come to you knocked down flat and occupy little space. They may be reshipped many times. The corners of the covers clasp like a glove and hold tight. The sides of the boxes are held in position by "fish-hook" fasteners while being filled. No glue or tools needed. Write "Gaylord" for prices.

IT MEANS that you get the same high grade corrugated fibreboard boxes, and the same prompt, accurate service under the "Gaylord" organization that you formerly enjoyed under the name of "Bulis." Not a man has been replaced nor a machine changed. Identical materials are being used in the boxes. No changes are contemplated for the future, except such as the rapid growth of "Gaylord" sales demand.

Well-filled warehouses containing boxes in stock sizes, and our location at the Terminal Yards in St. Louis, the commercial center of the country, make "Gaylord" the logical headquarters for corrugated boxes. Let "Gaylord" figure on your requirements for stock or special made-to-order boxes.

AMPLE SUPPLY EXCEEDS DEMAND.

Trade during the past week has been good but the supply exceeds the demand. Pot plants, including tulips, daffodils and hyacinths, are making their appearance and sell on sight. Roses are still up in price. Carnations are good but prices have been low during the week, several growers having extra cuts and could not dispose of all of them to advantage.

Hugo DeWilt has sold his greenhouses to Mr. Butler and after an extended vacation will engage in forestry and landscape gardening.

The Colonial Flower Shop is making a fine display of orchids in its windows.

WINDSOR, ONT.—Charles R. Tuson, well known florist of this city, who served as mayor for one term, is again a candidate for the office at the coming election.

DECATUR, ILL.—R. A. Simmen, of La Salle, has taken a half interest in the Andrew Peterson establishment, but will remain at his present location until a manager is employed or his business there disposed of.

Tariff Hearings.

In last week's issue, page 124, we gave condensed report of the views presented in the tariff hearings at Washington, D. C., by J. C. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, chairman of the American Seed Trade Association customs and tariff committee, Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., F. P. Lilly, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., and the representatives of the Society of American Florists, Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., and J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill. We now reproduce Mr. White's statement in full, as follows:

KIRBY B. WHITE ON GARDEN SEED TARIFF.

"D. M. Ferry & Co. are large growers of garden seeds in the United States; also we are large importers of garden seeds that can be grown satisfactorily and economically abroad. We protest aginst making import duties on garden seeds high enough to enable American growers to continue to realize war prices. For example, a tariff of 27 cents per pound is desired by Puget Sound cabbage seed farmers. The Underwood tariff rate is six cents per pound; the Payne Law rate was eight cents per pound; the Dingley rate (ad valorem) averaged about five cents per pound. It is alleged that the present difficulty of Puget Sound growers to secure orders is due to the possibility of importing low priced seeds, and that a high duty is needed to enable the American farmers to restore prices of 1918. We believe, on the contrary, that the present slump in demand for cabbage seed is not due to foreign competition, but to abnormal production in America, resulting from the over-stimulation of war prices.

"A duty of seven and three-quarters cents per pound has been requested on spinach seed. The rate is now one cent per pound. Spinach seed was never grown in this country on a large scale before the war. The normal price abroad is from five cents to ten cents per pound. The price charged by Washington growers during the war was 35 cents per pound.

"We submit that if an increase to four and one-half times the present duty on cabbage seed and seven and three-quarters times the duty on spinach seed succeeded in maintaining war prices on these two items, the tax on the consumer would be out of all proportion to the benefit derived by the grower. The tariff on garden seeds might be increased 50 per cent without much protest. An increase of 400 to 700 per cent, we submit, is going too far. Under present tariff rates, or rates slightly higher, the seed growing industry in the United States has developed along normal lines. Such items as can be produced here profitably because of climatic advantages, will continue to be produced. Such items as normally ought to be grown in Europe, because of peculiarities of climate, or for other reasons, might well be permitted to be grown there for our use. If America is to market its surplus abroad, Europe must have goods to offer us in exchange. We can think of no commodities that might be admitted into this country more advantageously than those things which we cannot economically produce."

FARWELL P. LILLY'S ARGUMENT.

A continuation of specific rates of duty on seeds, and increases in the rates on a number of varieties, was asked by Farwell P. Lilly, who in addition to his own firm, appeared in behalf of the Skagit Valley Seed Growers' Association, the Abling Seed Farms, Inc., and the Puget Sound Seed Growers' Association.

"Our industry is already feeling seriously the effects of competition from the seed growers of Germany, Holland, France, England, Denmark, Sweden and Japan," Mr. Lilly told the committee, and is appealing for an increase in the tariff rates on garden seeds over the rates carried in the present laws. "We are facing active competition from abroad, a competition which has been increasing steadily since the war. Today, Japan is reaching out for the seed trade of the United States. They point out that with the cheap labor, they can grow seed at a lower cost than any other country in the world.

"Washington is one of the largest producers of garden seeds in the United States. During the war we, like other industries, needed no protective duty, but since trade with Europe has been resumed, our old competitors have been making heavy inroads into the American market, while Japanese competition has never abated. Importations of garden seed are increasing rapidly and American production is correspondingly declining.

"We urge these changes in rates, in the belief that they are necessary to preserve the seed-growing industry of the state of Washington, one of our chief agricultual industries, as well as the industry in other states. Without this measure of protection, the seed growers of Germany, Holland, Denmark, France, England, Sweden and Japan, and their agents, will be able to continue using the United States as the dumping ground for their seed, produced at a far less cost than the cost of prouction in the United States, and they can further, by taking advantage of the difference in exchange, continue to undersell the American growers in the American market, at a large profit to themselves, and at the expense of a legitimate American industry."

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

Manager Clark, of H. A. Dreer's flower seed department, reports early buying very encouraging, being far ahead of last year. All seedsmen's catalogues are out earlier this season, which coupled with favorable weather, has started flower lovers to thinking of their gardens. The florist trade is also on the job, many large orders having been placed. European staples in flower seeds are slow in arriving. Lobelia, which growers like to get in early, is not yet available and others are anxiously awaited.

C. W. Gloeckner, manager of the flower seed department of the Henry F. Michell Co., finds a very strong demand, and earlier this year, for all kinds of florists' seeds. A large force is now at work in this department with a total of 125 employes in the building. The annexation of the adjoining building, which the firm now also occupies, has greatly increased facilities.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co. report good early business with orders of increased size. This firm's catalogue carried an offer of 10 per cent for January and February orders.

New York Seed Trade.

Arthur C. Nellis, formerly known among the seedsmen of this city, in connection with what was called the New York Market Gardener's Association, died suddenly in Flower hospital on January 26, following an operation for hernia. He was 62 years old and had made his home at West New Brighton, Staten Island.

The grass seed dealers here, as well as elsewhere, have suffered heavy losses from the decline in prices of grasses and clovers.

OTTAWA, ILL.—Lohr Bros., florists, of West Ottawa, have purchased land which will be used for nursery purposes.

NEWPORT, R. I.—V. A. Vanieck, of the Rhode Island Nurseries, left for Europe recently, and will be abroad until April 1.

NEW YORK.—Dr. Whitman H. Jordan, for 25 years a director of the Geneva agricultural experiment station, has tendered his resignation.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The next meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association will be held at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, February 9-10. The interesting programme includes addresses and papers as follows: Address of President A. M. Augustine, Normal; "Activities of the Bureau of Plant Industry," by P. A. Glenn, Urbana; "Readjustment and the Nurseries," by Miles Bryant, Princeton; "Selling Understocks to Farmers and Fruit Growers," by Lloyd Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; "Not Readjustment but Expansion," by M. Mierisch, Glenview; "Making an Income Report," by W. F. Kramp, Chicago; "Value of the U. S. A. Bureau of Plant Industry to Nurserymen;" Dr. K. F. Kellerman, Washington, D. C.; "Nursery Spraying," Prof. W. S. Brock, Urbana.

New England Nurserymen's Association.

The New England Nurserymen's Association held its annual meeting at the American House, Boston, Mass., January 25-27, the sessions being well attended and an interesting programme presented. The following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president; E. F. Coe, vice-president; S. A. Robinson, secretary; V. A. Vanicek, treasurer. Executive committee: Stephen Hoyt, D. Webster Dow and Homer N. Chase. Six names were added to the membership list.

NEW ARBORETUM PROPOSED.

A resolution for the establishment of a botanical garden and arboretum of not less than 1,000 acres, near Washington, D. C., for the purpose of growing and classifying all varieties of trees and plants available for American horticulturists, was passed unanimously. The association voted also to instruct its members to write their respective senators and congressmen urging them to exert their influence in having congress furnish a fund for the maintenance and development of such an arboretum.

The need of nursery training in schools and colleges as a factor in the promotion of the business, was outlined by Professor Frank A. Waugh of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, who admitted, however, that practical experience is, in the last analysis, the best teacher. For this reason he suggested a system whereby students could be placed in nurseries and thus learn the relationship between the theoretical and the practical, while still in the apprenticeship class. European horticulturists, he said, have devised a similar plan with beneficial results, both to the students and to the horticulturists themselves.

MARKET WELL SUPPLIED.

Bulbous stock, such as hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and narcissi, are crowding the market at present. Yellow marguerites, freesia, pansies, myosotis, cornflowers and sweet peas are in great demand. Choice pussy willows are coming in at the present time and retail at $1.50 per dozen. Carnations are good in quality but the supply is limited. Roses are excellent. Lily of the valley is so abundant that it reminds one of pre-war days. Transient trade has been fair, but there

POTATO and onion prices remain quiet.

SINOLA, Mexico is shipping carloads of tomatoes to the west.

TOMATOES are coming to New York from the Canary Islands.

THE establishment of central markets for perishable food products in all large cities, and the setting up of a federal licensing system applicable to all dealers in such foods at such markets, is proposed by the federal trade commission in its annual report to congress. It is declared federal action is necessary to avoid unfair and wasteful practices, with consequent effect on prices.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 1.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $6.00 to $7.50; celery, square crate, $1.25 to $1.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 30 to 35 cents; tomatoes, per 10-pound box, $2.50 to $3.50; radishes, dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.25.

New York, January 31.—Celery, per dozen stalks, 15 to 75 cents; cucumbers, per dozen $4.00 to $4.50; mushrooms, $1.00 to $1.25 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 45 cents; lettuce, per 4-dozen box, $2.00 to $3.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $7.00.

Garden Tractors.

At the recent convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, at Columbus, O., probably the most interesting exhibit was the garden tractor. Where a few years ago only one machine was on the market, a half dozen types were shown at this meeting. Interesting is the divided opinion of the growers upon this subject. Some are enthusiastic in regard to the merits of the new machines, while others absolutely condemn them. Still a third party of growers believe these tractors are still in their experimental stage, and that while at present they hardly fill the bill, they will evently come out refined. There is no doubt whatever that two factors enter into this case; one, the man himself, and the other, the conditions under which the machine has to be used. This includes both the crop and the soil conditions. Where a large acreage of wheel-hoe crops are managed, and soil conditions are right, the tractor no doubt will soon pay. But in mixed market gardening, under present conditions, it is doubtful if we would advise everyone to buy a tractor. Our next door neighbor bought one, used it two hours and set it aside for good. In our own operations, we have from year to year so reduced wheel-hoe crops to correspond with the shortened supply of labor that at present it would hardly pay us to use a tractor for wheel-hoe work.

Personally, we have always felt that most garden tractors fill neither bill quite well—they are defective as wheel-hoes and also as horse machines. If we could dispense with our horses entirely, things would be different. But since we have taken the horses off the road entirely, we find that our teams are idle one-half of the time, and yet we must have them. Then why should we increase our investment still more, and thereby reduce the working hours of our horses, to a point where the horses become a burden? For rapid and thorough work in heavy crops we have yet seen nothing to beat a good team and a Planet, Jr., two-row pivot wheel cultivator. Finally, can we find help able to handle and care for a garden tractor, or must the boss do the cultivating himself? These are all serious questions, and anyone in this line of work should consider carefully in which direction his interests lie. A large grower of root crops told us: "My tractor is worth five men to me."

SEEDS.

THE DIENER TOMATO

Increase your tomato yield one hundred per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30-40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains very little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED: Sample pkg., 25c; one-quarter of an acre pkg., 50c; one acre pkg., $1.50.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date dahlias in existence. No place in the world have dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of peony, cactus and decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised dahlias from it; but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs. Price, $0.50 per package.

POULTRY MANURE

PULVERIZED

Premier Brand

First Among Fertilizers

Poultry Manure is acknowledged by agriculturists, horticulturists and gardeners as Nature's Most Efficient Fertilizer. It contains more nitrogen, or its equivalent, Ammonia, more available Phosphoric Acid, or its equivalent, Bone Phosphate of Lime, and more Water Soluble Potash than any other manure. It supplies the most plant food in soluble and readily available form.

Premier Pulverized Poultry Manure is superior to all other manurial fertilizers because of its high analysis and its improved condition as prepared by our Special Process. The raw product is subjected to an intense heat, which eliminates all surplus moisture and kills every noxious seed germ. It is finally pulverized for easy and even distribution and application. It is organic and stimulates bacterial action.

This Wonderful Product is especially adapted for the production of Flowers, Lawns, Fruits and Vegetables. It has all the excellent qualities desired and none that are objectionable, and it Produces Results.

Write at once for our interesting fertilizer literature, samples and quotations. All Free.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter-blooming plants are nearly through flowering and the blooms beginning to grow small and before any outside can be had. The newer Spencers make splendid varieties to plant at this time and, while they will not bloom as early as the winter flowering varieties, yet will flower before the warm summer weather, and the beautifully formed flowers make a welcome change. Select a bench with plenty of head room, for these easily grow to a height of six or eight feet under favorable conditions. The seed can be sown six inches apart in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together, and when they begin to grow, thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports for they damp off easily, even when five or six inches high, if over-watered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture, or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis is often troublesome in growing sweet peas, and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should, or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient, new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed do not break satisfactorily These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats. Notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers, and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown early in February to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats, but to have them early pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or eight to 10 lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is, to eight or 10 spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have have these laterals in bloom for Memorial day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphis, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Begonias of Lorraine Type.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Draft of the report and recommendations presented to the board of directors at its meeting in Washington, D. C., January 24-25, 1921.

To the Officers and Members of the Executive Board of the Society of American Florists.

Gentlemen:—We, the undersigned members of the national publicity committee, beg leave to present the following report with recommendations:

We have just closed the third year of the work of carrying on national advertising, and as you are aware, are now entering upon the last year of our original four-year subscription pledges, after which all of the first year individual pledges will have to be renewed, or some other plan devised for raising a fund to further carry on this work. There are yet, of course, quite a number of individual subscriptions made later on this same plan that will continue in effect at least until some other plan is devised and adopted. So far, this plan has served its purpose well, even though not so equitably as it should, and has proved quite successful in spite of precedents to the contrary.

L. E. Hitz, Madison, Ind.
President State Florists' Association of Indiana.

In the three years just past, the total amount of $131,056.68 has been collected, and of this sum $113,361.91 has been paid out for advertising space in such magazines as the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's Weekly, American Magazine, Century, Scribner's, Munsey's, Everybody's, Life, Hearst, Judge, Scientific American, Atlantic Monthly, Literary Digest, Review of Reviews, Outlook, Harper's, World's Work, Sunset, Independent, Red Book, Metropolitan, McLean's Magazine, Leslie's and Argosy, and the balance, $17,694.77, has been expended for office work and all other expense in carrying on the campaign. These figures show that about 86½ per cent of this entire sum has been spent in actual advertising, and about 13½ per cent in the entire management of the campaign. Not a bad showing at all, do we think. These figures are not given by the committee for their own glorification, but rather for the subscribers' information, and against unjust criticism.

We believe there is no longer a doubt in the mind of any member of the Society of American Florists as to the value of national advertising. There can be no doubt that the effects of this campaign are being manifested, from the way our wonderful slogan, "Say it with Flowers," is being displayed everywhere and the great benefit it has been to the trade. Now, the question arises, "Are we to retrench or press on for still greater achievements?"

Your committee has given the matter of a more equitable and just plan for collecting the funds for future work much consideration and, we must confess, with a great deal of apprehension. However, since the first movement of organizing allied trade associations for the purpose of carrying on local co-operative advertising, we have watched carefully its progress, and while there are, as yet, only a few cities working on this plan, it has proven very successful in every instance. So we have come to the conclusion that it is the one equitable plan through which each individual and every branch of the trade justly bears its proportionate share of the expenses.

We are not unmindful of the fact, also, that by all the laws of merchandising, and by many precedents already at hand, the producer is, and primarily should be, the national advertiser of his product, which in our case, it would be, of course, the growers. Now, since the growers in every city where local co-operative advertising is being carried out on the percentage plan through the allied trade associations, are contributing members of these associations, we deem it perfectly right and proper that a certain per cent of such funds collected be put into national advertising as is being already done by some of these allied trade associations.

Hence, we recommend: First, that 25 per cent of all moneys collected by such allied trade associations be paid into the National Flower Growers' Association. Second, that the National Flower Growers' Association then become responsible for financing the campaign for national advertising, adding to the amounts turned over to them by the allied trade organizations such additional sums as they can acquire through their membership by an assessment on glass area, from those growers who are not associated with allied trade organizations, and from individual subscriptions available from supply, material, bulb and other firms, benefiting from the progress of our trade. Third, that the campaign of national advertising be managed and carried on as heretofore by a publicity committee, provided for by the constitution and by-laws of the Society of American Florists, with the recommendation that the presidents, in making appointments to said committee, always keep in mind the three branches of our trade, so a fair representation of each will always be on the committee. We also recommend that an advisory board be created consisting of the president of each allied trade organization for co-operative advertising, it being the duty of this board to meet once a year in joint session with the publicity committee of the Society of American Florists, preferably during the national convention, for the purpose of considering and planning future campaigns for national advertising.

We might state further, that this plan was discussed with many of the leading men of all the auxiliary trade organizations, both growers, wholesalers, and retailers, and all are heartily in accord with such a plan. It has also met the unanimous approval of your publicity committee. This will, of course, mean that allied trade associations similar to those already working so successfully in Chicago, Milwaukee, and other cities, should be organized in every city where there is a flower market, giving all the retailers, wholesalers and growers an opportunity to become members thereof by setting aside a small per cent of their total business for co-operative advertising, and we recommend an equitable assessment plan as follows:

The grower to pay one per cent on his receipts.

The retailer to pay one per cent on his purchases of plants, cut flowers and greens.

The wholesaler to pay one per cent on his receipts from commissions; all to be divided as follows:

Seventy-five per cent of same to be used locally and twenty-five per cent nationally. To make this plan entirely equitable, an assessment of one per cent should be made on all stock going through commission houses, whether used locally or shipped out. All wholesale plant and cut flower growers should apply this one per cent on all stock sold by them direct, as well, to make it absolutely uniform.

In the case of growers not adjacent to a large market, or who sell their own product, either wholesale or retail, they could allot their proportionate share on a glass area basis by becoming members of some district growers' organization.

We are not at all unmindful of the great assistance that has been given to national publicity from its origination by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, and we have every confidence that this great body of retailers will continue to be one of the liberal contributors to our funds, and to the cause as well, for with the live trade journal, the F. T. D. News, now at their disposal, they can become great educators for the cause.

It may be well to state that this plan has not yet been submitted to the National Flower Growers' Association, and we have no assurance that this organization will be willing to take upon itself the responsibility of financing the national advertising campaign. All the officers and active workers in their ranks, who have knowledge of this proposed plan, are heartily in accord with it. If, however, the growers in convention here this week do not care to approve this plan, there is no doubt in the minds of any of the members of this committee, but what the Society of American Florists can continue to handle the finances on this plan better than heretofore, provided the allied trades will do their part.

The principal reasons for getting the National Flower Growers' Association to take over the financial end, is to create a greater interest among the growers, who by virtue of their branch of the business as producers, should be the leaders in national advertising, and also to encourage closer co-operation among them for the benefit of the whole trade, and at the same time make the Society of American Florists a supervising medium rather than a collector.

We further suggest that some uniform emblem, in the form of an embossed sticker, should be adopted and given to all members of allied trade associations, and other contributors, to use on their stationery, recognizing them as supporting this campaign.

We respectfully submit all this for your careful consideration, and recommend that if in the opinion of your honorable body the plan is a just and equitable one, that after your action thereon, it be submitted to the Society of American Florists members in session at the annual convention next August in this city, for their approval and adoption.

Draft of the report and recommendations presented to the board of directors at its meeting in Washington, D. C., January 24-25, 1921.

J. F. AMMANN'S REMARKS.

"In presenting this future plan, the committee urges subscribers to the national publicity fund to continue the payment of all pledges promptly, for until this plan is more generally adopted, we shall have to rely on the individual subscribers very largely to help carry on the campaign.

"On behalf of the committee, Mr. President, I wish to supplement this report with a few remarks. In so doing, however, I wish it to be clearly understood that any reference herein made to work having been done by me, should be clearly understood to be with the sanction and advice of the committee as a whole, and therefore, to the committee as a whole, should be given the credit rather than to any individual. We do not claim this plan will be perfect. Neither do we want it understood that the work as started and carried on the past three years will cease unless the above plan is adopted. What the committee is really striving for, is to rebuild on a new plan, with a better foundation, so further additions may be added without danger to the original structure.

"The committee has, of course, made mistakes. Why not? It is only those who do things, who make mistakes, but as a whole, good judgment has prevailed. We have had much valuable advice from among the membership of the Society of American Florists at large and the able council of the officers, besides having at all times at least some members on the advertising thoroughly by reason of their own personal activity in the same. Personally, I have been in this work for two years; first as ex-officio member of the committee by virtue of my office as president of the society for one year, and the last year, a member of the committee by appointment. During this time, I believe I can frankly state that I have made a careful study of the situation as it exists in the various communities, and I have come to the firm conclusion, that there is a prevailing sentiment most everywhere in favor of the allied trade plan for co-operative advertising.

"It is, by far, the most equitable plan that has yet been tried, not only in our own trade, but in that of many others, and based upon the percentage as recommended in this report, a vast sum could be raised with very little effort and no sacrifice on the part of anyone. For, after all, the total investment by all the combined branches of our trade in advertising would be less than 3 per cent on the volume of business done and this would include both local and national co-opertive advertising. This, gentlemen, I feel sure you will all agree, is an insignificantly small sum as compared to what other lines of business are investing in advertising; so, therefore, the plan is equitable, it is reasonable, and it is workable beyond any question of doubt.

"If you men here in session, as representatives of the great national body of our allied trade organizations, will put your stamp of approval upon it, and with that action, recommend to the society, in session here next summer, their approval and adoption, and then if our national society will instruct and empower its officers to devise ways and means for organizing these allied trade organizations for the purpose of co-operative advertising in every flower market center in the United States and in Canada as well (if they choose to join with us), then the great society will have committed an act that will mean for greater progress of floriculture within the next decade than we have made in all the past, for the day of production of American ornamental horticultural products is no longer a question. This is being advanced by leaps and bounds. The one great duty, as I see it, that is left open for American floriculturists is that of disseminating information direct to the people with reference to the benefits and usages of these products by judicious advertising.

"According to the latest report from Bradstreet, 84 per cent of the commercial failures last year were firms that did not advertise. We can no longer, gentlemen, afford to stay out of the educational programme for this nation. Our wares are a part of the products that make for better homes, better lives, better citizens, and higher ideals, and so I feel that it is not only our duty to continue our campaign for publicity, but we must with all earnestness and determination strive to increase and multiply it.

"In conclusion, let me plead with you, gentlemen, not to let your enthusiasm for this plan cause you to act too hastily, but let us rather give it careful consideration and discuss it from every angle. Amend and revise it if found necessary, in order to make it absolutely just and fair to everyone concerned, so that when we do present it, if you so choose, to the membership at large for their adoption and approval, we can also without any hesitation endorse it individually as well as recommend it to the organizations and communities that we here represent. So that we may repeat with a verse from the pen of the poet, Edgar A. Guest, as follows:

Be it little or much that you win on earth,
Let it have the stamp of your own good worth;
Be able to say of each treasure fine,
I have worked for this and the thing is mine.
Be willing to toil and be willing to give
And honor shall follow you while you live,
For there's none so mean on this globe as he
Who looks to another to pay his fee.

CORSAGE BOUQUET OF VIOLETS AND SWEET PEAS.

Winter.

Not only in her velvet dress of leaf and bloom and grass,
Where whispered cadences caress the lilies as they pass,
The forest of the north is fair—there comes no change or time
That makes less sweet the northland air or forest less sublime.

We love her for her brighter days when gay anemones
Are scattered through her open ways, while songsters fill her trees,
Then shall we love her less when dies her summer bloom—
Applaud her in her gala dress and leave her in her gloom?

O heart, I pray among my friends there dwells not such a friend
Whose oft expressed affection ends when days of summer end,
Who loves me for the garb I wear, my laugh, my word, my song,
And yet whose feet walk otherwise when my own feet go wrong.

Nay, forest, I would have them love as, forest, I love thee—
For earth beneath and sky above, more fair than bloom or tree,
For sky above and earth beneath, the greater things that are,
Nor hold more dear the fragile wreath than fixed and shining star.

O forest, more than for thy green or for thy bark of bole,
I love thee for thy peace serene, thy great, unchanging soul,
The solemn beauty of thy ways, whate'er the season be,
And I, the friend of all thy days, would bring such friends to me.

For I shall have my wintertime, my time of chill and snow,
Nor harp shall sing nor words shall rime nor golden sunlight glow,
Then would I have such friends to stand beside me in the night
To hold me close with friendship's hand and lead me to the light.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Corsages.

At all seasons of the year, but particularly during the winter months, when the social functions are at their height, there is a demand for flowers to be worn at the corsage. This is a feature of the business that can be made of much greater importance, through co-operation of the trade through publicity, and a constant display in the flower shops at all times of seasonable flowers, in made up corsages for personal wear. Every additional corsage that is sold, helps to establish the custom of wearing flowers, which can be made general for the promenade, theatre and all social gatherings. A strong objection, which can and must be overcome, is to remove all danger of injury to the dress. There are a number of shields made for the purpose which are, in the main, satisfactory. They should be waterproof, as frequently it is thought best to wrap the handle or stems of the flowers with wet paper and foil, to retain their freshness as long as possible.

Several thicknesses of wax paper, neatly folded to a fan shape, of a size that will be concealed by the flowers, makes a good substitute for the more expensive and prepared shield. There is an elaborate line of ribbons in Nos. 5, 7 and 9, that, when artistically tied and placed, add very much to any corsage bouquet. Made up ties in great variety ready for immediate use are supplied by all ribbon dealers, and while a trifle more expensive than the plain ribbon, are economical, there being no waste as is often the case when ribbon is hurriedly cut for the purpose. The matter of pins is important. There are a number of lengths, all with more or less ornamental heads, differing in design and color to suit all floral combinations.

The first choice for the high class corsage cluster is the cattleya, three to six flowers being sufficient for most demands. They are also much used in combination with other flowers, lily of the valley, lilac, gardenias, sweetheart roses and primula Forbesi having the preference. An artistic arrangement to be worn at the shoulder is made with three cattleyas in tandem or single row. Farleyense or glory fern is the best green to be used with orchids, although many prefer the Mexican ivy on account of its lasting qualities.

Violets, while always popular, have suffered in the competition of the cattleya, gardenia and the orchid-flowering sweet pea. Their being offered in bunches, ready at once to put on, is a great factor in their sale. The addition of a couple of cattleyas or gardenias or a few sprays of lily of the valley makes them more attractive Long stemmed gardenias, with their glossy green foliage, loosely arranged and tied with a two-toned green and white ribbon, are suitable for almost any costume. Perhaps the most popular of all flowers for the corsage are the orchid sweet peas, these have such grace of form, dainty exquisite colorings and delightful fragrance, and as they can be sold at a price that meets most purses, they are a first choice with many buyers.

Lily of the valley was at one time very popular for the corsage and is coming back again. Sweetheart and Mrs. Ward roses are first choice with many. The pansy has its friends and adds variety, as does the forget-me-not, this latter being in great favor at St. Valentine's day.

The arrangement of all such combinations should be light and graceful; flowers should not be covered up with one another or concealed with their foliage or additional ferns.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

There are signs of an increasing supply of flowers, more carnations, sweet peas, violets and other small flowers. Roses are also offered more freely. Every retailer should now do his utmost to keep the stock moving and prevent accumulation. Moderate priced vase baskets filled with stock that is most plentiful, make very salable items. Sample boxes artistically arranged, displayed in the window are also attractive and can be replaced as soon as sold. There should always be something in the window that stands out prominently. An arrangement of flowers in striking color effect, is to fill a deep blue basket with calendulas and tie with a ribbon the same shade as the basket. It will be noticed at once. A gilt basket filled with yellow flowers labelled "for the golden wedding," will be a drawing card. A silver basket filled with white or blush roses or other flowers of similar color marked, "for the twenty-fifth anniversary," is sure to interest many people.

VALENTINES.

Your valentine window should now be standing in all its glory. There is not one-tenth the business done for this important event that is possible, if the whole trade got back of the movement and made of it the flower day that it should be. The inspiring motives of the day are love and sentiment, with which flowers are inseparably connected. People should be educated to the fact, not only that plants and flowers make their best valentines, but that the custom of sending valentines should be universal to old sweethearts, young sweethearts, to mother and sister, in fact to all whom it is a pleasure to show attention.

There are many novelties offered each year by the supply houses, which when filled with flowers are quite attractive. Many baskets, hampers, hats and other receptacles, as well as flower bowls and vases, when filled, can be ornamented with hearts, arrows and ribbons, and make useful as well as sentimental presents for the day. The heart-shaped box in several sizes for various corsages is one of the best sellers. One large retailer makes a specialty of corsages of violets, pushing these to the exclusion of everything else. They are made more elaborate with the addition of cattleyas, gardenias or lily of the valley, if desired.

But the well-made corsage of just violets with fine ribbons is his just violets with fine ribbons is his great feature for the day. These are in heart-shaped boxes plain and satin placed in heart-shaped boxes, plain and satin covered, many of them hand painted, and when filled and finished there is no question as to their purpose, and they are sure to be highly prized by every recipient. St. Valentine's day business comes to him who works for and invites it, like all other branches of the trade. It presents a great opening to the man who is ready to take advantage of its opportunities.

Daffodils are now at their height, they are a favorite with all buyers, being true harbingers of spring. There are many decorative ways in which their sale can be increased. Small vase baskets to hold a dozen, when tied with a ribbon bow are attractive for a small gift. Small, shallow flower bowls filled with a dozen sprays are ideal. Stone ware, in their dark greens, and many other quaint and odd-shaped vases, when filled with these flowers present a very artistic appearance. Pussy willow sprays arrange very well with them, as do freesia and mignonette.

SPRING FLOWERS.

Now is a good time to feature boxes of spring flowers. Daffodils, sweet peas, freesia, forget-me-nots and daisies, with a few sprays of pussy willows will, when tastefully arranged in boxes and topped off with pansies, present an appearance that is very tempting to the average flower buyer. Sweet peas of themselves make a pretty, showy box and as they are now plentiful, are good flowers to feature. There is now available a good assortment of flowering plants and pans of bulb stock that are, when dressed up, very suitable as gifts. Nothing is more showy than Primula malacoides, which with its great wealth of bloom is now at its height. There is still a supply of cyclamen and they are easily obtained now with plenty of flowers. Freesia in pots and pans is popular with many. Hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in pots and pans are showy and spring-like, and meet with ready sale. A plentiful use of pussy willow spray stock in the pots gives a touch of spring that is well worth while. The pots should be decorated with some if the many coverings, such as wicker open work designs, crepe paper or mats, or just plain white paper. They can be tied with tape, silk or fibre ribbon or small tasselled cords, contrasting of a color such as pink with blue, brown with green or red with white. These decorative features may take a little time, but they add so much to the appearance of the flowers, that an advanced price is readily obtained and their sale quickened.

Aggressive Business Methods.

The man who really wants a job, does not sit down and wait for it to come along, but gets busy at once, trying out every prospect, until by his energy and persistence, he meets with success. The man in business should be alike active and alert, with always something in reserve to meet and combat the first indication of stagnation. He must be eternally after his customers and the public generally to interest and attract them to his store, which, with its inviting window displays, well arranged interior, stock of superior quality and up-to-the-minute service, will merit and secure their patronage.

CORSAGE BOUQUET OF SWEETHEART ROSES.

New York Spring Show.

MARCH 14-20, 1921.

Already, entries in the competitive section of the New York spring show are coming along, and the committee are very optimistic as to the outcome. The only regret coming from the preparations, and it is shared by management and exhibitors alike, is that this is to be the last show of any kind to be held in the Grand Central palace, as the building thereafter is to be given over entirely to commercial purposes. The many advantages presented in the use of this building have contributed not a little to the success of the entire series of flower shows held under its roof, and the committee aims to make the forthcoming show one such as will be remembered as the best of all. The matter of suitable quarters for subsequent shows is already a subject of grave concern for all interested in the progress of floriculture in America.

If a little additional support by growers, both commercial and private, is forthcoming, it is believed that the idea of the "biggest show ever" will be the result. Developments of the past week indicate that the support asked will materialize. Some exhibits quite unusual in character, yet commercially pointing the way to welcome innovations, are promised, among them a display of standard trained specimens of the old Marechal Niel and Gloire de Dijon roses, wonderfully interesting to all visitors old enough to remember these favorites in the heyday of their popularity, as well as to the younger among us who have never seen them. Other resurrected favorites in the flower world will also be seen.

It has been suggested that there are florists who could, at little or no expense, lay out beds of pansies or geraniums, in sizes to prove attractive, and without any loss commercially in regard to the stock exhibited. In this connection it is well to remember that meritorious exhibits not provided for in the official schedule of prizes will be suitably recognized. Very many of the smaller classes could be better filled than they have been in former years. Carnation growers particularly are reminded that better displays of carnations would serve not a little to create new interest in these flowers, the poularity of which some are ready to declare is waning. Let not the mere prospect of winning a prize govern the preparation of an exhibit, the pride of showing the best and adding to the glory of the show should be sufficient, and, surely, every grower should be interested in having his especial line well represented among the exhibits. Rose and sweet pea growers should also give a thought to this suggestion, and the growers of miscellaneous flowers, such as mignonette, wallflowers, myosotis, antirrhinums and the like, should bear in mind that the more prominent these subjects are kept in the public eye, the better for the business.

Intending exhibitors should note the following changes in and omissions from the staging days listed on page 28 of the final schedule:

Carnations, commercial growers, Nos. 260-268, March 16.

Cut roses, private growers, Nos. 85-95, are to be staged Tuesday, March 15 instead of Monday, the 14th.

Orchid plants, private growers, classes should read Nos. 73-78, instead of 23-78.

Cut roses, commercial growers, Nos. 229-244, are to be staged March 15.

Display of cut roses, commercial growers, class No. 245, are to be staged Thursday, March 13, instead of Tuesday, the 15th.

Added to the commercial rose classes, to be staged March 15, are the following prizes:

Class 228—50 Mrs. Frank W. Dunlop, two prizes—$30.00-$20.00.

Class 228A—50 Pilgrim, two prizes—$30.00-$20.00.

Interest in the trade section of the show seems to be increasing with the approach of the opening date of the exhibition. The opening of the large section on the second floor, Lexington avenue front, made possible through the transference of the tea garden quarters to the other end of the building, has appealed to many who were too late to secure space on the main floor, and as the elevators are all in this section, direct approach is to be had, and every aisle on the floor will have throngs of visitors. There is every indication that the limited remaining space available will be reserved many days in advance of the opening day, consequently it will be well for those who still have thoughts of exhibiting to look over the lists of exhibitors published in the trade papers and make immediate reservation.

ADDITIONAL EXHIBITORS.

The following additional exhibitors are announced:

Amer. Seed Tape Co., Newark, N. J.
A. D. Granger & Co., garden tractors, New York.
Lewis & Valentine, Roslyn, N. Y.
Fruit Growers' Support Co., New York.
Peck, Stow & Wilcox Co., garden shears, New York.

H. C. Dodge & Co., garden tractors, New York.
Atlantic Grass Seed Co., New York.

Chicago Bulb Forcers' Association.

A meeting of the principal forcers of Dutch bulbs in and around Chicago was held at the Randolph hotel on the afternoon of February 3, 1921. This meeting resulted in the formation of the Chicago Bulb Forcers' Association. After a lengthy discussion of the problems that now confront the florists engaged in this particular branch of the floral industry, the opinion prevailed that it was unwise to place orders at this time for next year's crop of bulbs, due to the unsettled conditions generally and the apparent unprofitableness of growing and forcing this commodity, comparing prices now asked for the bulbs and the possible returns a year hence, judging by present market conditions. The general belief was that it was not wise to place orders under the present terms of the Dutch houses. It was stated that some bulb salesmen had quoted prices of 50 per cent less than a year ago, but even this figure was not believed to be low enough to warrant the placing of orders, at least not if the purchaser has to assume all the responsibility. Every one present expressed himself as thoroughly dissatisfied with the present situation, both as to returns for those flowers that are marketable and the large percentage of blind bulbs from which nothing is realized. The unjust method of using America as a dumping ground for surpluses after Dutch representatives have filled their order books with American orders given at high prices, was severely condemned.

The meeting was addressed by Langler, representing Van Waveren & Sons of Holland, whose remarks were greatly appreciated. He gave some interesting information as to the possibilities of saving on freight and forwarding charges. Many questions were asked Mr. Langler, particularly pertaining to the cause of tulips coming blind. No definite reason could be assigned that would account for this trouble, but several theories were advanced. This brought on a discussion as to the advisability of rerouting shipments.

The consensus of opinion was that the bulb situation is at present so serious that unless the Dutch houses see the necessity of getting the bulbs to the forcer in good condition, the forcers for self preservation will have to petition the powers that be to place the few remaining bulbs that are now admitted in the same class as those prohibited.

This, the first meeting, was well attended by an enthusiastic body of men who firmly believe we can devise means of relieving some of the disagreeable features of the bulb forcing business.

Sea Shore Florists' Association.

The Sea Shore Florists' Association held its second annual meeting at Asbury Park, N. J., on February 2. There was an interesting discussion on what the association stands for and how to improve it. The following officers were elected for the coming year: John Kennedy, president; Fred Hanan, vice-president; Walter Lindhardt, secretary; N. Butterback, corresponding secretary and George Gregory, treasurer. The elections for the executive committee included G. Lodeman, Frank Erbe, Anton Matrowsky, Louis Cheatout and Miss Balstan.

SCARCITY OF STOCK CREATES DEMAND.

There has been a decided slump in business here during the past few weeks, but it is not going to last very long as conditions are showing improvement. There has been a great scarcity of stock of every description and retailers say they have never seen such a short supply of stock arriving, as is the case now. Roses have been at a premium. There are practically no American Beauties on the market. Mrs. Chas. Russell is bringing $7.50 to $8 per bunch. Ophelia $5 to $6 a bunch and good reds even higher prices, notwithstanding the present slump in business. Carnations sell for $12 per 100 for the ordinary varieties. They are still very scarce and high. Lily of the valley is a little more plentiful this week but gardenias are in short supply at $3 per dozen. The only flower that has been plentiful during the past few weeks is the cattleya. Of these there has been heavy receipts of excellent stock. There has been no change in prices however. Sweet peas are arriving in small lots and clean up quickly at $3 per dozen bunches. Daffodils are arriving in larger numbers. Last week this stock brought $6 per 100 and prices are being well maintained, as the out of town demand is strong. Paper White narcissus have been bringing $1.50 per 100. Roman hyacinths have shown much improvement in quality and are largely sought by buyers. Tulips in pans are coming in freely this week and meeting with as ready sale as pot plants. Violets have shown improvement and are more plentiful again. Acacia Baileyana is being handled in large quantities by all the stores. Cut cyclamens proved very useful during the shortage of other small flowers. Asparagus has been very scarce, with very little increase of late. The fern situation is a little easier with a strong demand. Very few good flowering plants are being offered, although the azalea family is fairly well represented. Azalea Hinodigiri is coming in and is as popular as in former seasons.

NOTES

The Retail Florists' Association held a special meeting here on January 12. The committee on Sunday closing reported that all stores with a few exceptions are observing the wishes of the association to remain closed. It was also voted to change the regular meeting date to the first Wednesday in each month. On January 18, the committee of 10 appointed by the president met with the San Francisco advertising club, when the association became affiliated with the Better Business Bureau of the advertising club. President Albert O. Stein called a special meeting of the association January 19.

John A. Carbone is growing 5,000 cattleyas in his large orchid range near Berkeley this year. Eight houses are devoted to gardenias and he has a fine stock of laelias, oncidiums, odontoglossums and phalaenopis. Mr. Carbone is of the opinion that the last named orchid will be a thing of the past, unless the tariff on this flower is raised. A shipment of hybrid cattleyas recently received by him from England were considerably damaged. All stock in this vicinity is in fine shape.

The first banquet of the Retail Florists' Association will be held on February 5. P. Vincent Matraia is in charge of the arangements and is being assisted by Chas. W. Brown and Phil Benedetti.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, who is a shipper of cut flowers and proprietor of a retail store, says she does not remember when flowers were as scarce as they are today. She reports the shipping demand as good.

Vincent Matraia president of the Art Floral Company, left for Los Angeles and Santa Barbara where he expects to buy a car of kentias for his store.

B. M. Joseph's store has some fine pans of tulips which are in great favor. In spite of the rose scarcity a fine display is maintained at this store.

The pot grown daffodils that are being displayed by Podesta & Baldochhi are being much admired and the demand for same is excellent.

Walter K. Lewis of Los Angeles, who is with the Art Floral Company, is spending a few days here during the absence of P. V. Matraia.

J. McConnell has opened up a store at 430 Hayes street and is carying an excellent quantity of flowers and plants.

The Dahlia Society of California will hold a meeting this week to elect officers and directors for the coming year

Angelo J. Rossi of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., was relected president of the Downtown Association.

J. J. O'Connor says business has been excellent at his store, especially funeral work.

Robt. Newcomb of the Burlington Willow Ware Co., is calling on the trade here.

Emile Serveau, who has been sick, at his home in Redwood City, is much improved.

Robert Bordeneau of the Serveau store is confined to his home by illness.

DEMAND CONTINUES STEADY

The weather experienced here has been exceptionally mild during the past week and has to a certain degree affected the trade. There is fear of a bad shortage of Easter flowering plants due entirely to the weather. The spring flowers now coming onto the market are the leading sellers with roses and carnations next in lead. Such varieties of roses as the Premier, Columbia, Russell, Butterfly, Ward, and Killarney are in prominence. The supply is good and the demand constant and exceptionally heavy. Leading varieties are bringing ten cents for short stems to 45 cents for long stems, wholesale, and from $3 to $15 per dozen, retail, according to variety and quality. Carnations are plentiful but the demand is good. They are wholesaling from five to ten cents each, according to quality, and retailing from $2 to $3 per dozen. There is a limited supply of fine Laddie carnations on the market. These are wholesaling at 15 cents each. Jonquils are to be had in abundance at $10 to $12.50 per hundred, wholesale. They retail at $2.50 to $3 a dozen and are seen in nearly all florists windows. Narcissi, both yellow and white, are plentiful at from six to eight cents each, wholesale, and $1.50 per dozen, retail. A limited quantity of extra fancy sweet peas is offered at $4 per hundred, wholesale. Good calendulas are scarce this week and are hard to find at any price. Freesia is plentiful at six cents a stalk, wholesale, and $1.50 to $2 per dozen, retail. The demand is good. Lilium Harrisii is plentiful and selling well and is offered at 15 to 20 cents each, wholesale, and at $6 per dozen, retail. Lily of the valley is not plentiful but the price is unchanged. There are a few home grown violets on the market but no California grown stock. Stevia is in great demand and the supply is limited. It brings $2 per hundred wholesale. There is a very limited supply of callas on the market, practically all of which are used for funeral work. They are offered at from 20 to 25 cents each, wholesale, and $5 to $6 per dozen retail. Unusually fine Darwin tulips are selling for 15 cents apiece wholesale. Tulips of the more common varieties are wholesaling for eight to ten cents each and pot tulip plants are retailing from 50 cents upward, depending upon the number of plants in a pot. Orchids are coming in now in large quantities and the demand is great. Cattleyas are selling from $1.50 to $2 a flower, wholesale, and retailing from $3 to $3.50 each. There are very few cypripediums on the market. There are a few snapdragons, but their quality is unusually poor; the demand, however, is good. Cyclamen plants are retailing from $4 to $6, according to size and color. Willows are only sold at retail stores when used with other plants and are wholesaling from $5 to $6 per hundred. Greens are scarce this week due to extensive decorations being carried on here. Asparagus plumosus is bringing from 50 to 60 cents a bunch and Sprengeri the same. Ferns are selling for $4 per thousand. Galax is plentiful at $2 per thousand. Leucothoe is limited and brings $1 per hundred. It has been predicted that prices will take a slump during the coming week and as a consequence business will pick up greatly.

NOTES.

Fred C Weber has an attractive "Dutch Window" this week, the principal feature being a Dutch windmill run by a stream of water. Tulips, primroses, cyclamens, cherries and foliage plants are cleverly combined with the arrangement.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, Mo., arrived home from a recent trip to Washington, D. C., where he attended the National Flower Growers' Association convention. Mr. Rowe states that the trip was a most successful and enjoyable one.

The Gardners' Association held an official meeting February 2, at the Forest Park municipal greenhouses. Herman Schwarz continued his interesting lecture on "Insects."

Street merchants are handling a good quality of roses, carnations, narcissi and violets. Due to the mild weather, they are much patronized.

Scruggs, Vandervoot & Barney have completed extensive decorations for the automobile show; quantities of smilax and plumosa are used.

H. G. Berning and wife have returned after a two weeks' pleasure trip to New Orleans and points in Florida.

The daughter of Mrs. Eggling, of the Eggling Floral Co., died at her home February 5, after an extended illness.

Judging from the amount of his stock on the market, W. G. Rowe, of Kirkwood, must find business good.

The H. G. Berning Floral Co. is disposing of a quantity of roses, carnations and narcissi.

Grimm & Gorley are doing an unusually large funeral business.

BUSINESS SLACKS CONSIDERABLY.

Last week witnessed quite a substantial slackening of business, due principally to less demand for funeral work. But Valentine day ought to stir things up a bit and from then until Easter, the demand should gradually increase. Spring flowers are beginning to make their appearance in greater quantities and help make the flower shops bright and attractive. Jonquils, freesias, sweet peas, hyacinths, and yellow and white narcissi, are in good supply and enjoy a brisk sale. Bulbous stock in pots is excellent for this season and fills in well for those buyers who want something appropriate to send to hospitals and to their sick friends. The weather continues cloudy with now and then a bright day to relieve the monotony.

NOTES.

The most important happening of the past week was the purchase by Wm. Feniger of the flower shop conducted for many years by Mrs. J. B. Freeman. She died suddenly some time ago and since her husband, Walter Crause, was an accountant, and did not wish to continue the business, it was offered for sale. Mr. Feniger has conducted a store on Adams street for some years. Miss Lucille Rice will have charge of the store and it will be known as the Central Flower Store.

The Navarre Flower Shop has arranged a very attractive Valentine day window that is drawing a lot of favorable attention. Mr. Navarre states that he expects a good business for this day.

At Henry Miller's greenhouse, crops of carnations are constantly improving in quantity and quality. There should be an adequate supply for Valentine day and St. Patrick's.

William Krueger is cutting some excellent sweet peas these days and his roses are always good stock. He is optimistic over business for the coming year.

The A. E. Warning flower shop on Broadway has been making excellent progress and reports a heavy demand for flowers of all kinds.

OBITUARY.

John Patrick Mallon.

John Patrick Mallon, head of James Mallon's Sons, one of the oldest retail firms of Brooklyn, N. Y., died suddenly of acute indigestion at his residence, 125 St. Mark's avenue, on February 6. His passing away was, under the attending events, an extremely painful shock to his family and a large circle of friends. On the morning of February 5, he attended the wedding, at St. Augustine's church, of his only daughter, Marie Jeanette, to Alphonse Girard Ring. He was not feeling well in the afternoon, but no serious result was anticipated, a change for the worse taking place in the night.

John P. Mallon was born 60 years ago in a house that stood at the corner of Fulton and Willoughby streets, Brooklyn. His father, James Mallon, who died 14 years ago, had a store at that location, and when they removed about two years ago, the firm had been on that corner for 62 years. At the time of their removal on account of the demolition of the building, Mr. Mallon remarked to the writer: "I feel like being turned out of my home."

Both the deceased and his father had been active in democratic politics and in the days when Hugh McLaughlin was a boss, the old store was a resort for the faithful. Mr. Mallon had been president of the Juanita Democratic Club of Brooklyn and a member of the Association of Old Brooklynites. He was genial and companionable and could give and take jokes. He is survived by his wife, the daughter above mentioned, one son, Harry C. Mallon, who conducts the business now located on Smith street, and one sister, Mrs. M. A. Piggot. His funeral was held at St. Augustine's church on the morning of February 9 with a solemn high mass.

Thomas Boothe De Forest.

Thomas Boothe De Forest, secretary to the Lord & Burnham Company, greenhouse builders of New York and Irvington-on-Hudson, died at the Dobbs Ferry hospital on February 6, after a month's illness of intestinal disorders.

He was born at Derby, Conn., about 38 years ago. Practically all of his business career had been with the above mentioned company, having served there for about twenty years. Mr. De Forest was well known and popular in the horticultural trades, being a life member of both the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club, and had frequently held important committee appointments in the Club. About eight years ago he married a daughter of W. A. Burnham, who, with three children, survives him, also his father, Henry S. De Forest, well known in the trade; his mother, three sisters and one brother. Funeral services were held at the residence of W. A. Burnham, Irvington-on-Hudson, on February 8.

A. F. F.

Max M. Smith.

Max M. Smith, veteran florist and well-known resident of Portland, Ore., for the last 33 years, died February 1, at his home, 872 Sandy boulevard, following a short illness. Mr. Smith was born in Robinsbury, Germany, August 27, 1866. He came to Portland thirty-three years ago and was engaged in the wholesale florist business for many years. In 1906 he opened a retail store at 150 Third street. Five years ago Mr. Smith moved his florist's shop to the present location, 141½ Sixth street. A year to the day before his death Mr. Smith disposed of his interest in his shop to Thomas C. Luke and retired from active participation in the business. Mr. Smith was active in the Rose City and Laurelhurst clubs and prior to his retirement was a member of the Rotary club. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Helen E. Smith.

G. A. Sellethin.

G. A. Sellethin, a well-known florist and landscape gardener of Niles, Mich., died there, January 28, age 70 years. He had been in failing health since last November. Upon coming to the United States from Germany in 1881, Mr. Sellethin, for many years made Winona, Minn., his residence. He afterward lived in Milwaukee and Chicago.

For the past five years Mr. Sellethin had been employed by the Michigan Central Railway as florist and landscape gardener, having followed this pursuit previously. He was highly thought of in railroad and floral circles, and was a member of the Masonic and Oddfellow fraternities. Surviving him are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Carl Becker and Mrs. John Heist, and one son, Albert.

Albany, N. Y.

DECIDED DROP IN BUSINESS.

Since January 1 business with the local florists has dropped markedly. A trolley strike from January 29 to February 8 helped also to depress all classes of business. The wholesale prices of roses and carnations have dropped 59 per cent since the end of January. Daffodils and bulbous stock are coming into the market in quantity.

NOTES.

Two greenhouses owned by George E. Nagengast have been torn down. Mr. Nagengast plans in the spring to build two new houses on a lot at the northwest corner of Washington and Main avenues that he purchased a few years ago. He has built lately on this lot two greenhouses, and the new ones, each 25 feet by 100 feet, will be built alongside them. The houses will be devoted to general stock. A visit to his place a few days ago disclosed as fine and thrifty a lot of primroses, hydrangeas, lilium gigantum, tulips and other Easter stock as one would wish to see. A moth that appeared in greenhouses in this section the past few years is giving Mr. Nagengast and other growers considerable trouble. The insect is kept in subjugation with fumigations of hydrocyanic gas at regular intervals.

At the recent meeting of the Albany County Market Gardeners' Association, George Curran, of West Albany, was chosen president. Others elected to serve with him are: L. H. Myers, Selkirk, vice-president; T. Harvey Holmes, William Noeckel, Water-Emerick, West Albany, treasurer; directors for three years, T. Harvey Holmes, William Noeckel of Watervliet, William Brown and John Lawton, Slingerland, and Thomas H. Holmes, Albany; directors for two years, Louis Selig, Schenectady, and Benjamin Klink, Albany. The members pooled $2,800 to purchase baskets and supplies, and subscribed $110 for the stock of the Grange League federation exchange.

Secretary Schaefer of the Florists' Club, died here on the morning of February 5. Mr. Schaefer was taken to the hospital on February 1, seriously ill with paralysis. His wife and two grown sons survive. Mr. Schaefer had served as secretary of the Florists' Club since January 1, 1920.

On account of the serious illness of the secretary, Louis H. Schaefer, the Florists' Club held only a brief meeting on the night of February 3. Nineteen members were present, and they decided to have a flower show on the night of March 17.

MARKET LIGHT BUT QUALITY IMPROVED.

Market conditions have changed but very little over last week as stock is still scarce and high, but the quality showed some improvement, especially in the color. Roses were wholesaling a very few at eight cents and some few for 10, 12 and 15 cents, but the large portion ran 20 cents and up. Carnations marked an increase and at the end of the week went as low as six cents wholesale, the lowest for months. Sweet peas were more plentiful and naturally took a big part in the week. Paper White narcissi were plentiful and good, bringing five to six cents. Jonquils, hyacinths and tulips are making their appearance on the market but are none too plentiful, and what few are here sell on sight. Pot plants of cyclamens, cinerarias, primroses and begonias are very good and plentiful, and are moving fast, owing to the scarcity of cut stock. The way they are going will find some growers short at Valentine's and Easter.

NOTES.

On February 5 the Florists' club held its meeting at the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower store and was well attended. The principal business of the evening was the discussion of the following resolutions, final action on them being deferred until the next meeting of the club:

PUBLICITY FUND RESOLUTIONS.

To the members of the Florists' Club:

Your committee consisting of the officers and trustees appointed at the December meeting to formulate a plan to raise funds to be used in local and national publicity advertising respectfully submit the following resolutions for your consideration:

1. That a guarantee fund consisting of one-half of one per cent on the gross sales of each contributor be raised by the retail and wholesale florists of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas, and the growers of cut flowers and plants who grow and sell their products within these cities, and the growers of cut flowers and plants who ship to or bring their products to this market.

2. That the name of this fund shall be Kansas City Florists' Publicity Fund.

3. That the fund is to be used solely for the purpose of promoting the sale of cut flowers and plants here and vicinity, and a certain part of it is to be set aside for national publicity advertising.

4. That the moneys so guaranteed and collected shall be turned over and deposited to the Florists' publicity fund, and laid out on order of the advertising committee by check only, signed by the treasurer and countersigned by the president of the club.

5. That an advertising committee be appointed who will have in charge the matter of properly using and proportioning the fund collected for local and national advertising purposes.

6. That the advertising committee consist of two growers; three retail florists; and two wholesale florists, who are members of the club in good standing.

7. That this committee be appointed by the president and confirmed by the members, following the adoption of these resolutions, to serve for the first period until the regular meeting of the club in October, 1921, and thereafter at the regular meeting in October of each year to serve for one year or until their successors are duly appointed.

8. That the committee shall make a detailed report to the club at least once in every six months of the moneys collected and expended.

9. That these resolutions are not to be binding unless at least 75 per cent of each class of florists and growers mentioned in paragraph one shall contribute to the fund.

10. That the contributions to this fund be for one year, based on the gross sales of the previous year, and shall be paid to the club in 12 equal monthly payments in advance.

11. That these resolutions can be amended at any regular meeting of the club by a two-thirds vote of the members present who are contributors to the fund, provided such amendment is presented in writing and read at the previous meeting.

CANNAS are reported moving slow.

REMEMBER your old sweetheart, send her a floral valentine.

PAPER WHITE narcissus bulbs are producing more flowers than usual this season.

PRESIDENT PETER REINBERG, of the Chicago Forest Preserve Committee, says sparrows in that city were building their nests February 9.

MANAGER GEORGE ASMUS of Schiller's, Chicago, says St. Valentine's day should be thoroughly advertised every year well in advance of the occasion.

J. W. KONING, a Holland bulb dealer, says he and other dealers would be quite willing to contribute as a body to the Society of American Florists' publicity fund in the interest of their specialties. Mr. Koning is a member of the firm of Baartman & Koning, of Sassenheim.

Personal.

Eugene Dailledouze and A. L. Miller, New York, are in Florida.

THE co-operative buying possibilities of the National Flower Growers' Association, and its great saving, has been abundantly demonstrated in the Boston district branch, where fertilizers, carnation wire, and various supplies bought in large quantities has saved the members at least 25 per cent over individual purchases.

Plant Quarantine No. 37.

RHODODENDRON AND AZALEA IMPORTS.

The federal horticultural board held an important conference February 1 at the department of agriculture on the subject of the importation of Rhododendron ponticum and Azalea pontica seedlings to be used as stocks for grafting. It was represented that such seedlings were not available in the United States, and could not be grown from seed to a grafting size in this country within a period of two or probably three years, and that unless such seedlings could be imported, these plants would be absolutely unavailable to the American market for this period. In view of this situation, the board has indicated that it will issue special permits for the importation of seedlings of three years' growth, or under, of these two plants for the period terminating June 1, 1922. It is expected that after that time it will be possible to supply further needs from home grown stock. This action was taken as a result of this conference and is supported by the unanimous request of the Ornamental Growers' Association, representing the principal growers of hardy ornamentals in the United States, and with the distinct understanding, which was agreed to by this society, that this action would not be taken as a precedent for demands of similar entry of seedlings or lining-out stocks of other ornamentals. The entry of these plants under special permit will be surrounded with the same safeguards which apply to other special permits issued under the quarantine.

American Rose Society.

Harry O. May having resigned the treasurership of the society, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., has been appointed to fill the unexpired term.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION

The following request has been received from the E. G. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind., for registration of a rose, and this has been approved by the Rose Registration committee. Unless objections are received within three weeks from the date of this publication, the registration will become permanent.

The name of the rose is Hill's America and it is in the H. T. class. It is a cross between Rose Premier and Hoosier Beauty. The description of the plant is as follows:

Habit of plant—Strong, large grower. thornless.

Character of foliage—Dark in color, large.

Freedom of growth—Very free.

Flower—Immense.

Color—Rose Pink.

Form—Pointed bud, finely finished, long.

Fragrance and bud—June fragrance.

Freedom of bloom and lasting quality—Extra good.

The rose is somewhat similar to Columbia, but is different in bud, much longer and superior, for the following reasons:

On account of form of bud and color, which is intermediate between Columbia and Rose Premier.

Billboard Restrictions in Massachusetts.

Billboards and all other forms of outdoor advertising on trees, rocks, fences or poles bordering on highways or within 300 feet of any park, parkway, playground or public building, are expressly prohibited under regulations issued January 1 by the division of the state department of public works. Billboards now located within the commonwealth, in any way conflicting with the new ruling, must be removed on or before July 1, 1921. Where permissible, authority will be granted for the placing of billboards upon payment of a fee of $2.

Floriculture at Cornell University.

The lectures given by practical florists to the regular and short course students in the department of floriculture at Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., during the past semester have been especially valuable. The lecturers were E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., on "Roses;" John E. Lager, Summit, N. J., on "Orchids;" S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., "Wholesaling Flowers and Plants," and H. P. Knoble, Cleveland, O., on "Retailing." The viewpoint of such practical men gives the students an insight into the business of floriculture that they can get in no other way, and the splendid spirit of co-operation shown by the florists in the educational work is appreciated by the college. Farmers week is from February 14-18, when the following lectures and demonstrations will be given by the department of floriculture. There will also be an exhibit of the student's work in arrangement of plant baskets, corsages, bridal and other bouquets, and table decorations, given on February 16 and 17 under the direction of E. A. Slattery, of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y. Owing to the fact that Farmers' week so nearly approaches St. Valentine's Day, there will be no meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, but a cordial invitation is extended to all florists to come to Cornell and enjoy the lectures given not alone by the department of floriculture but by all other departments in the college.

BUSINESS SLUGGISH.

By unanimous consent business during the past week has been very unsatisfactory and conditions at present hold out no encouragement for improvement soon. With about a hundred thousand wage earners without work and no immediate prospects for the restoration of the auto and other idle industries starting up, we can not reasonably expect flower shops to be active. Then, too, to make matters still more discouraging, the florists occupy the anomalous position of maintaining the highest prices ever before experienced in the history of the trade, while all other stores are actively advertising a reduction of from 25 to 50 and even in some cases, 60 per cent reduction on their merchandise. It was hoped the early days of February would bring some relief from the high prices exacted by the growers and wholesalers, but little in that respect was realized. Carnations and even poor ones brought as high as eighteen dollars a hundred, and roses of medium grade, were as high and even higher than at the so-called "influenza" period a year ago. True, there seems to be no great surplus of cut flowers to date, but the season and local conditions demand immediate adjustment of prices to meet the views and the purchasing power of our prospective buyers.

The club meeting at Hotel Statler Wednesday evening, February 2, brought out a small but representative gathering. Those in attendance embraced the three divisions of the trade —growers, wholesalers and retailers. President John H. Warncke called the members' attention to an abuse by the wholesalers selling to the general public to the detriment of the retailers, who are their support throughout the whole year. This even, at first of little importance, has, it is alleged, grown to proportions that prompted the adoption of a resolution condemning the unfair practice and requesting the three local wholesalers to hereafter desist. It is hoped this implied warning will be sufficient to stop the growing evil.

MARKET ACTIVE WITH MEDIUM SUPPLY

There has been no marked change noted in market conditions here during the past week, no big increase in supply and no decrease in demand; in fact a happy medium has prevailed that with few exceptions has kept the market pretty well cleaned up all week, with no noticeable surplus at any time. Bulb stock is more plentiful with the result that prices have declined somewhat on roses and carnations, but at that, prices are high enough so that the grower can realize a profit. The supply of roses remains about the same as it has been for several weeks. What looked like it might develop into a glut of carnations last week has turned out this week to be a shortage. The supply of Easter lilies is on the increase, but they are still short of the demand and prices remain firm, which also holds good of calla lilies. There are not nearly so many Paper White narcissi seen. Jonquils and tulips are in heavier supply and meet with a good demand. Freesia has been in oversupply and at times hard to move, but by the week end most of it was cleaned up at good prices. The supply of sweet peas remains about the same, with daily clearances. The quality is good and prices average from $2 to $4 per 100 wholesale. Some of the best lily of the valley seen here in years is coming in daily. Violets have been in better demand than for some time, and with most of the stores featuring them it should not be long until they are as popular as they used to be. The supply of orchids is equal to all demands. Scotch heather has become quite a factor.

NOTES

The Florists' and Gardners' Club held its regular monthly meeting on February 1. Sheridan of the McCallum Co. entertained with some of his experiences in France, Belgium and England. Cornelius Colyn, Jr., of C. Colyn & Sons, Coorhout, Holland, was the guest of the club. After the regular meeting the election of officers for the coming year was held with the following results: John C. Barnett, president; John C. Walley, vice-president; Carl Becherer, secretary and treasurer, and J. J. Costof, assistant secretary. The executive committee will consist of the following: John Rheineman, Augustus Friskorn and Julius W. Ludwig.

The Retail Florists' Association held their regular monthly meeting and dinner February 3. During the absence of President Harper, Vice-President Scheaff was in the chair. An appropriation of $1,500 was made to carry on newspaper advertising for 1921, and it was also voted to incorporate the association.

The McCallum Co. have re-leased the building they now occupy at 137 Seventh street for a long term of years and in addition have rented the three story building next door, which will be used for additional work rooms for the decorative department.

The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co. are again featuring the week-end dollar box.

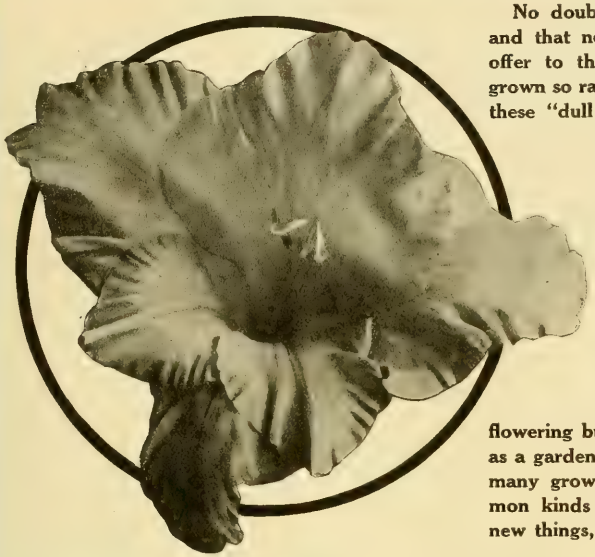
It will pay you to read the letters below from well-known authorities

Mr. Gladiolus Grower:



No doubt you know the Kunderd Gladiolus and that never before have I had a surplus to offer to the trade. These new Gladioli have grown so rapidly in popular favor that even now, these "dull times," I can only spare stock of a limited number of kinds to a few growers. Last year I sold over $53,000.00 worth of bulbs and this year the sales will probably nearly reach this amount if not more, and if not for the "dull times," would have reached $80,000.00 to $100,000.00. All this business has been built up in 10 years and before Gladioli became as popular as now. The Gladiolus is fast becoming by far the most popular of all summer flowering bulbs (or plants), and rightly so, both as a garden ornament and as a cut flower. Too many growers are still growing the more common kinds and not keeping up with the finer new things, and are thus losing the best returns.

Mr. John Zeestraten, East Bridgewater, Mass., in a letter dated January 4, 1921, wrote me as follows:

Dear Sir:

Yours of December 31 received and I thank you for letting me have the 25 Marie Kunderd for $100.00. I am buying this to work up a stock from, and don't care what a bulb costs as long as it is good. I sincerely think your Gladiolus the finest in the world without any exception. And not only that but good money makers for the grower. I grow many varieties originated by you including all your Glorys and have made money on all of them. I have Norton and Mary Fennell which are hard to beat. Purple Glory is a "beaut."

On receipt of above, I wrote Mr. Zeestraten that I would like to use his letter for this advertisement to show other growers what can be done. He replied as follows:

Dear Sir: East Bridgewater, Mass., Jan. 10, 1921.

Yours to hand and you can use anything out of my letter you may see fit. Yes, Mr. Kunderd, I think your Gladiolus wonderful and as a grower know them to be fine money makers. I have sold over 10,000 young bulbs of Norton alone this year, besides its bulblets at $50.00 per quart.

Next year after I have paid for my farm, I am going to get only new varieties from you, and be one of the first to have something new for sale. You are right in buying only the best because a plant or bulb is never expensive when it is good. We always did this way in Holland and found it very profitable, and I am doing the same now. Four years ago I started here without a cent and only a few bulbs and now I own a little place in Mansfield and have a fine 50-acre farm here with good buildings, and almost all paid. I made enough on "Norton," "Orange Glory" and "Mary Fennell" to pay over one-half of this place. So you see what Kunderd's varieties have done for me. I am sure I will make good in a few years on the "Marie Kunderd." I must not forget "Lilywhite." Last spring I bought bulblets of it from Mr. Meader for $150.00. This fall I sold a fine lot of young bulbs from it, but have a nice lot of young stock left for myself.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) John Zeestraten.

Many of our best growers have built up in this way. Some growers make the mistake not to buy new kinds of bulbs or plants when scarce, because while yet scarce the prices are high. The large quantity which can be grown from a new variety in a few years makes the first cost comparatively insignificant. The increase in stock is always far more rapid than the decrease in price for years, and if you wait till the price is cheap, you find you have something which is too cheap by then to grow profitably. A peony plant will double in quantity each year, an iris will increase four times a year and a not very rapidly increasing gladiolus would under favorable conditions multiply by ten each year. Now take your pencil and a piece of paper and see what this means for a period of five or ten years.

A prominent firm of bulb growers in Florida wrote me December 29 last:

"Your wonderful introductions need no praise from us—they are in a class by themselves. We have tried many varieties of other growers, and have gone as far West as California, thinking perhaps that bulbs from there would do well in our climate, but most of these have found their way into our Mixture."

Another grower from Ann Arbor, Mich., January 4 (this year) in a letter, writes:

"You certainly have marvellous varieties and I should like to see you take down the bars and flood the whole world with their beauty, making them accessible to the poorest, who really need them most, as well as to the more wealthy. Personally, I should like nothing better than to run the most of my business into your varieties."

More than a dozen testimonials like the above come in my mail weekly. Now Mr. Grower, would it not be good business for you to grow gladioli that bring such praise and such demand? There is always a surplus of common kinds, but never enough to meet the demand for good varieties. If you are a grower, you need this stock and if you are a beginner, you cannot afford to start without it. Take advantage of this opportunity, as I do not expect to offer a surplus to the trade next season. Write me a list of what you can use and I will make you an attractive inducement on wholesale lots.

FALLING OFF IN BUSINESS

Business this week has been very dull, especially so on cut flower trade. All the retail stores in town report a considerable falling off of business compared with a year ago. The prices on stock of all kinds are only fifty per cent of what they were last year. Bulbs are now arriving in large quantities which also force prices down to the lowest mark seen since the chrysanthemum season. Roses are now coming on crop again with very little demand for fancy stock. The medium grades clean up fairly well and the fancy varieties are moved with difficulty. Sweet peas move slowly, the very best at $3 a hundred. Pansies are still rather scarce and hold to their prices fairly well. Orchids are more plentiful, very fine trianae are arriving, also laelias, cypripediums and oncidium. Carnations have been coming greatly in excess of the demand. Top price on the fancy ones is $6 a hundred.

NOTES

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held their annual banquet and ball on February 3, at Horticultural hall. There were about 400 present. W. H. Judd introduced A. C. Burrage, who delivered a short address. Thomas Roland and W. W. Craig also spoke.

The Florist Association held their monthly meeting on February 1, at the City club. The meeting was opened by President B. Letson. The principal speaker was H. E. Pinkham, Lynn.

Louis Cohen of the New England Florists' Supply Co. was tendered a reception by 25 of his friends on February 3. He is to be married soon to Miss Freidman of Roxbury. E. F. S.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is more plentiful at this writing but has been cleaning up nicely right along at good prices. American Beauty roses are in strong demand and command good figures. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier are having a good call and so are Milady, Butterfly, Victor, Montrose, Golden Rule, Sunburst, Ward, Ophelia. Double White Kilarney, White Killarney, Cecile Brunner and Nesbit. Roses have held their own surprisingly well considering the increased supply, and while prices have weakened considerably at times, it was only for a short period, and while they have not been equal to the high ones the early part of last month, they are more reasonable and will probably be lower from now on. Orchids and lily of the valley had a good call the past few days, owing to the heavy demand for wedding work just before Lent. Sweet peas are moving nicely and violets are being disposed of as fast as they arrive. Carnations are in larger supply and have dropped considerably in price the past week. Freesia, Paper White narcissi, jonquils and tuilps are in better supply and more reasonable in price. Lily of the Valley appear to be cleaning up regularly and the same holds true for callas. Mignonette, daisies, pansies, calendulas, Roman hyacinths, heather and euphorbia, are to be had, together with all other miscellaneous seasonable stock. The out-of-town demand has been very good the past week and the city buying has been heavier. Blooming plants play an important part in the window displays of many of the retail stores, especially tulips, jonquils, cyclamens and primroses. Some of the stores are making attractive window displays for Valentine's day and those who have not already arranged for their supply of stock for this occasion should do so immediately.

VALENTINE WINDOW DISPLAYS.

The retail florists are making a strong bid for the Valentine business this year by making very effective and attractive window displays, some of which are already completed while others merely are in the course of construction. Special heart-shaped baskets, boxes and vases occupy a prominent part in the arrangements with a touch of originality here and there to break the monotony. The Society of American Florists' window poster is prominently placed in some part of the window and has attracted a great deal of attention ment. The Valentine kiddie vase is a sure seller and so are the special to discuss the policy of the firm for the new year. From the figures presented, an increase in sales of $112,919.74 was shown over the previous year. January of 1921 has shown a 20.2 per cent increase for the same period last year, including 15.4 per cent increase of city purchases and the shipping trade was increased 4.8 per cent. H. B. Kennicott, president; J. E. Pollworth, secretary; B. F. Ellis, treasurer and office manager, were elected. Joseph Kohout was elected chairman of the governing board for all the consignors and R. J. Windler and Edward Assa, as representatives of the interest of the grower stockholders, with J. E. Pollworth as secretary and manager. H. B. Kennicott, who succeeded his father, has the satisfaction of seeing the business increase 315 per cent in four years. Market rents, expensive city deliveries and methods of commission accounting brought on considerable comment for the growers' consideration.

Bassett & Washburn have renewed their lease on their store at 178 North Wabash avenue for three years, starting May 1. Mr. Washburn is recovering from a touch of the grip. Miss Netchert of the office force is on the sick list.

OUR DUTY

EVERY ROSE that is grown, EVERY CARNATION that is produced, has a definite value.

OUR DUTY is to sell these highly perishable products within the shortest time at such variation of prices as are created by the inflexible law of Supply and Demand. ROSES and CARNATIONS must be sold each day of the year so as to equal in the end a general average sales price to allow for the grower a reasonable margin of profit above the cost of production.

OUR DUTY is to make SALES PRICES so inviting to stimulate the RETAIL DEALER to BUY MORE — to satisfy the grower to PRODUCE MORE and facilitate such distribution at a maximum of satisfaction.

Heavy Supply Cut Flowers

FOR VALENTINE'S DAY

Everything you need of the finest quality obtainable in this market.

NOTICE---For Your Accommodation we shall be open on Sunday, February 13, with a full line of stock for quick shipment on your telegraph or telephone orders.

N. J. Wietor and Peter Reinberg are back from a trip to Florida. Mr. Reinberg smiled when asked about being groomed for mayor. Some of the strongest republicans would vote for him notwithstanding the fact that he is one of the leading local democrats.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is filling a large number of orders for orchids, of which they have an exceptionally heavy and fine supply. Valentine day orders are numerous and the demand promises to be greater than in previous years.

A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s lease on its present establishment at 164 North Wabash avenue, has a trifle more than two years to run, so they are not worrying about moving or an increase in rental the first of May.

Mangel, the Palmer House florist, is always on the lookout for a chance to beautify his already magnificent store. His window displays are backed with silk draperies, giving the entire showing a harmonious blending of colors.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is pleased with the amount of business that it did during 1920 when the total sales showed a wonderful increase over those of 1919.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is pleased with business this week and are expecting a heavy late demand for Valentine's day.

The Van Buren Floral Co. had a big decoration for the opening of the new Canton Tea room last week at Van Buren and Wabash avenue.

The American Bulb Co. reports good business in all its specialties, including cannas.

Allan Humason is back from a southern business trip.

He has built up a good trade at his present location and was forced to secure larger quarters which he expects to occupy about May 1. The new store will probably give him more square feet of floor space than anyone else in the loop and will be fitted out in keeping with its surroundings.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report the early demand for Valentine day as very encouraging. Stock is in good supply here but is cleaning up nicely each day.

Vaughan's Seed Store is mailing their retail catalogue this week.

Chicago Florists' Club.

On account of the close proximity of St. Valentine's day, an adjourned meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club took the place of the regular meeting, the principal features of which were an exhibition of novelties and a dance at the Hotel Randolph, February 3. There was a good attendance, and some excellent displays of cut flowers were made. The dance was a big success, reflecting great credit on the good-of-the-club committee. Especially noteworthy in the floral display was a fine display of cattleyas, from Poehlmann Bros. Co.

President Kohout occupied the chair at the short business session when F. R. Kilner, 508 S. Dearborn street, and A. F. Thal, Lakeside building, were elected to membership. James Morton of the garden committee, submitted a report stating that there appeared to be no need of his committee this year. In view of the fact that this work is now being carried on by the National Garden Bureau, of which Leonard H. Vaughan, a member of the Club, is chairman, a resolution was adopted, discontinuing the committee.

Chairman M. C. Wright of the committee on President Kohout's inaugural address, submitted the following report: "This committee approves President Kohout's desire to bring the local trade organizations closer together so that they may accomplish their various objects with greater harmony and economy. The committee recommends that the trustees of the Florists' Club be requested to confer with the executives of the other trade bodies, and outline a plan of reorganization, such plan of reorganization then to be submitted to the members of the Florists' Club for their approval."

The out-of-town visitors included James S. Wilson, Des Moines, Iowa; George Blackman and wife, Evansville, Ind.; Messrs. Rieman and Elder, Indianapolis, Ind.; Frank Kuehne and wife, Lake Forest.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., entertained the members with an interesting account of his recent California trip.

EXHIBITION REPORT

Judges George Asmus and Michael Fink reported on novelties as follows: "We find a very fine collection of seasonable novelties from the Poehlmann Bros. Co., several of which are original and were given honorable mention. The A. L. Randall Co. also exhibited several St. Valentine novelties."

Judges James S. Wilson, Albert Erickson and James Morton presented the following on the exhibits of cut flowers and plants:

"Poehlmann Bros. Co. exceptionally fine vases of C. W. Ward, Matchless and Nebraska carnations, lily of the valley, extensive exhibits of Cattleya Trianae, showing thirty different shades of color in 100 blooms, one plant seedling cattleya six years old, also seedling six weeks old, so small a glass had to be used to see it, and one vase Joy's seedling carnation, scoring 89 points, highly commended.

"Richmond Greenhouse Co., Richmond, Ind., one vase each Laddie, Topsy (crimson) and yellow seedling carnations.

"John Eitel & Sons, Greencastle, Ind., one vase Leona carnations, salmon sport of Enchantress Supreme. Flowers in such condition it could not be judged; looks promising.

"Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, Ind., seedling carnation No. 16, scored 91 points. Club certificate recommended.

"R. J. Windler, honorable mention for well grown sprays of white buddleia exhibited by the Kennicott Bros. Co."

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Articles of incorporation have been filed by Henry Smith, Floyd Heisel and F. L. Robinson, for the Henry Smith Floral Co. It is stated the capital is $200,000.

MT. CLEMENS, MICH.—Eight greenhouses, owned by Arthur von Beversley, were recently purchased by Herman Klagge. They have a frontage of 233 feet and he is planning to restock them.

LEXINGTON, KY.—Tobacco growers of this state at a meeting held here recently voted to cut out the 1921 tobacco crop and suspend all sales of the 1920 crop until May 1. Thirty-five counties approved the proposal to eliminate the 1921 crop, while three were against it.

ACTIVE BUYING IN ALL LINES.

A better feeling in florists' circles in Columbus has developed recently. Buying is more active, although orders are still smaller than was the case during the same period last year. But on the other hand, there is a larger number of orders, and as a result, the volume of business done by the florists will average up very satisfactorily. Parties are still numerous and that is a source of demand for corsages and loose flowers. There has been a goodly number of funerals also, and all florists have benefited as a result. The public is showing a disposition to buy more generally and the slump is now believed to be over and things are on the upward grade. Roses and carnations are the best features in the local trade. Some demand for violets and spring flowers is reported. Roses are of excellent quality and sell from $4 to $8 per dozen. The price of carnations is unchanged. Violets, both single and double, are selling briskly and the supply is better. Jonquils, freesias, narcissi, both yellow and white, sweet peas and Roman hyacinths, are selling quite well. Pot plants are still in good demand and the trade appears to be increasing as the spring approaches. Florists are preparing for St. Valentine's day,which is the signal for a good demand. As it comes on Monday trade is expected to appear on the preceding Saturday.

The authorized capital of the Rocky River Greenhouse Co., of Cleveland, O., has been increased from $25,000 to $75,000 by papers recently filed with the secretary of state.

A most interesting annual meeting of the Ohio Horticultural Society was held last week at the Ohio State university in connection with Farmers' week. A number of talks were made and officers for the coming year were elected as follows: C. A. Bingham, Cleveland, president; W. D. Kampf, Coolville, vice-president; R. B. Cruickshank, Ohio State university, secretary; Paul Thayer, Wooster, treasurer, and Frame C. Brown, Westerville, member of the executive committee.

STOCK PLENTIFUL

While stock was plentiful the forepart of last week, things took a change after Wednesday, ending, however, in a satisfactory manner. As the days grow longer, the supply increases, and there will be no shortage for some time to come, except probably for the flower holidays.

NOTES

The meeting of the Florists' club on February 3 was well attended, President F. Gutermuth presiding. Alfred Locker who attended the convention of the National Flower Growers' Association, in Washington, gave information of the proceedings. William R. Schroeder brought up the matter of the higher assesed value on his greenhouses claiming an increase of 50 per cent. It will be taken up at the next meeting. The president then appointed the following committees for 1921: State Fair—H. V. Hunkel, August F. Kellner and H. R. Welke; entertainment—Walter Halliday, Paul C. Menger and C. E. Dettman.

The Retail Florists' Association was organized at a meeting held January 25, at the Blatz hotel. The following officers were elected: Harold Baumgarten, president; C. Dettman, vice-president; A. Leidiger, secretary and Miss Mary Skinner, treasurer.

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Uihlein on February 2, created quite a demand for numerous large and beautiful floral offerings. J. M. Fox & Co. furnished the casket blanket which consisted of orchids, lily of the valley and double violets.

Robert C. Zepnick, prominent south side retailer, gained considerable prominence in the Sunday press February 6, as president of the Bay View Advancement Association, being accompanied with his photograph.

The directors of the Publicity Association held a meeting on February 1, at which time plans and appropriations for the month of February were made.

The Courteen Seed Co.'s loss by water and fire on January 25, was considerable.

C. Kamp has been confined to his home for several days due to an accident.

JANUARY BUSINESS GOOD.

From the standpoint of both retailers and growers, the situation in Indianapolis is good. Reports from both branches show that January was an exceptionally good month, and that February is starting off well. Growers have been well satisfied with the weather, there having been plenty of sunshine during the past few weeks that has aided growing. The flowers being grown are selling well, particularly roses and carnations. Pot plants are having a good call and cut flowers have had a steady demand. Cuttings are being sold, according to growers, in a greater quantity than during December and the early part of January.

NOTES.

A protest has been registered by the State Florists' Association of Indiana against a bill now in the legislature to change the state flower from a carnation to a tulip. The state association bases its protest on the fact that the tulip would be available for use only a short period in the year, while carnations can be purchased at any time and for any occasion. ganization also went on record as favoring the bill advocating more money for the state educational institutions, because it will give Purdue University sufficient funds to install a course in floriculture.

Baur & Steinkamp have issued their new catalogue and report that sales of the new red, Edna, the white, Harvester, and the yellow, Maine Sunshine, cuttings are picking up perceptibly. The company also is introducing two new chrysanthemums, Thanksgiving Pink and Glorious, another pink bloom.

The last will and testament of the late John G. Heinl, a Terre Haute florist, was filed recently for probate in the office of Probate Commissioner Miller. The will names Mary M. Heinl as executrix, and Fred L. Heinl as administrator of the estate.

C. F. Coffey, who was a visitor recently, says the gradual resumption of industrial activity in Kokomo, Ind., is helping business.

Retail florists of this city will soon launch a co-operative advertising campaign to boost business for St. Valentine's day.

PRICES LOWER WITH LARGER SUPPLY.

There is no question but that business is growing. This is proven by the fact that there are at least one-third more flowers in the market now than for the same period a year ago, and there is no surplus, although of course there is considerable shrinkage in values. Carnations averaged last year for the first week in February, $16 per hundred, and this year they will not return half this amount. This difference is due partly to the general readjustments of the times and also to the greater supply of these flowers which is easily twice that of a year ago. Roses are increasing in quantity, the special Columbia, Premier, Pilgrim, Hadley and Russell being exceptionally fine. There are more of the short to medium sizes but not enough. The public are tiring of the high prices for the special stock, and prices have to be shaded more in these grades than for the medium to short sizes which bring more in proportion. American Beauty roses are going well, long stemmed stock being scarce. There are quantities of carnations, but they do not grade up as well as one would care to see, although there is quite a lot of good stock, prices being 25 per cent below those of a week ago. They have been sold as low as $35 a thousand for a very fair grade. The next quantity item in the list is the Daffodil Golden Spur, which all growers appear to have gotten in at the same time. Last week they sold at $10 to $12 per hundred, but while still a novelty they were started down the slide and sold as low as $45 a thousand. The quality was never better. It is surprising the quantity the market has taken the past week. Freesia appears to be hard to move and there seems to be an extra lot of it about. Very good mignonette is seen, but it is a bit sluggish. Calendulas sell up fairly well. Lily of the valley and cattleyas are both just a little in excess of the demand. They will have their innings next week for Valentine's day. Snapdragon is coming in slowly, but it will soon be a factor. Sweet peas are a quantity stock, but there is a demand that takes them all at about last week's prices. The quality is fine. Asparagus is scarce, and while there is any local greenhouse stock, the southern shipments are handicapped but the past week all grades have sold up close at top figures and there was not enough to go around. A wholesaler in speaking on the advent of the Daffodil Golden Spur said there was no occasion for the sudden and heavy decline of the past week. It came on about January 25, opening at $1.50 per dozen, then on January 31 dropped to $10 per hundred, which price it held for one day, and then fell to $8 and with one grower underselling the other forcing stock on the market for which there was already a good demand until the price dropped to below five cents. He declared that if they had all been in the hands of one firm the price would have been eight cents and there would have been just as many sold. The wholesaler further stated that the only men who would make any money out of bulbous stock this year were the foreign growers who got exorbitant prices for their products.

February 7.—The market opened with a brisk demand and there was a good supply of all classes of stock, at last week's closing prices.

READJUSTMENTS.

There is no question but the public are beginning to object to the high prices particularly of the choicer roses. Specials have been forced down from $35 to $20 per hundred in the past two weeks, only very choice stock commanding $25, with extra length Hadleys and Russells at $35 per hundred. Stock is likely to increase rapidly in the next month and there will have to be numerous price reactions to keep it moving. Plants will also have to reach a lower level. All interests will of course get all they can or all they think they can, which is different. Plants and flowers are worth what they will bring and in many instances quite a little more if the salesman, be he grower or wholesaler, has the backbone to hold out for it.

NOTES.

Frank Ross, who returned last week from Porto Rico, reports Robert Craig to be in good health and spirits. His palm nursery looks very promising. He has three acres of fine soil, so near San Juan that he has advantage of city water when necessary. Several thousands of arecas and other palms are already set out as are also dracenas and aspidistras.

M. J. Callahan is getting bravely over his recent disastrous fire, business going on as usual in the store and greenhouse, which were only smoke-stained. Repairs to the dwelling are well under way and in another month the rooms will be ready for occupancy.

The Leo Neissen Co. are featuring Valentine's day, having a poster in every window on both 12th and Race Sts. Business is reported good both in and out-of-town. Extra fine mignonette, gardenias and cattleyas are features of their stock.

The Joseph Heacock Co. are much pleased with the new rose Pilgrim; it has all the earmarks of a variety that is profitable alike to both grower and retailer.

George Cook, who helped build ships for the Emergency Fleet corporation, is now with the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Easter rambler roses are seen in splendid form with the Robert Craig Co., Norwood. Hydrangeas are also showing up well.

STEADY SUPPLY WITH LOWER PRICES.

There was no great change in the cut-flower situation during the past week, but there was a general weakening in prices. The supply of bulbous stock kept increasing and while meeting a fair demand, it did to a certain extent, crowd the other stocks. There was no scarcity of any stock and all that the buyers had to do was to choose that which was the most suitable for their line of customers. It cannot be said that up to this writing, any quantity of good, fresh stock has sold cheap, but as freshness in cut flowers is soon lost, the left-overs must, to put it in an old-fashioned way, take "pot luck." The comparatively light supply of American Beauty roses that has been arriving this winter has kept up the prices on the best of them and it is unlikely that there will be any noteworthy change while the season lasts. Columbia has had a great vogue and is most in evidence in this market, but there has of late seemed to be a reaction in favor of Ophelia and Premier.

February 7.—With clear and mild weather the supply of stock is increasing, with prices on the decline. The usual Monday morning trade is fairly active, but the outlook is for a quiet week.

NOTES.

In his book, "Russia in the Shadows," recently published by the George H. Doran Company, H. G. Wells writes that "there are perhaps a dozen shops still open in Petrograd. There is a government crockery shop, where I bought a plate or so as a souvenir, for 700 or 800 rubles each, and there are a few flower shops. It is a wonderful fact, I think, that in this city, in which most of the shrinking population is already nearly starving, and hardly any one possesses a second suit of clothes or more than a single change of worn and patched linen, flowers cean be and are still bought and sold. For 5,000 rubles, which is about six shillings eightpence at the current rate of exchange, one can get a very pleasing bunch of big chrysanthemums."

The committee on arangements for the ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association as well as the officers, are working hard to make the affair a great success. An orchestra of 50 pieces has been engaged, and preceding the dance, there will be a high grade vaudeville entertainment. James T. Caparell is president of the association; George Hanges, vice-president; James Soteriades, treasurer; S. D. Sakus, secretary, and G. Cotsonas, assistant secretary.

A number of leading growers of New York and New Jersey that ship to this market, attended a meeting February 11, which was held at the Engineering building, 29 West 39th street. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the organization of all growers in connection with the forming of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York.

Frederick Donaho, formerly in the retail business in this city, died on February 2, age 70 years. He was the father of the late William H. Donaho, who was well known in the trade of this city and Boston.

Edward Brenner, a popular wholesaler of the 18th street market, was married to Miss Ida Black of Rockaway Park, on Februray 6. The ceremony took place in the Rockaway Park temple.

The trade has been grieved to learn of the sudden passing away of John Mallon, one of the best known florists of Brooklyn, and Thomas B. DeForest, of the Lord & Burnham Co.

Arthur Herrington, who will superintend the spring flower show, is now a frequent visitor to Secretary Young's office and they agree that it is going to be a great show.

William Spillett, formerly employed by Thomas Young, Jr., at his Bound Brook, N. J., range, is now in charge of the Clement Moore estate, Hackensack, N. J.

Harry Charles, who, on account of a fire in the building, had to remove for a time to another store, is now re-established at the old stand.

The new firm of Doyle & Booth, 121 West 28th street, have made a good start and are getting a good share of business.

From the number of St. Valentine's day posters one sees, there should be a good business if advertising helps.

STOCK SELLING WELL.

It cannot be said that business is as good as at the same time last year, but the demand has been sufficient to dispose of the supply on hand. Considerable bulb stock is coming in. Hyacinths, jonquils and tulips are arriving in quantity and with February 14 near at hand, a record-breaking day is expected. With extensive advertising, the florist can make Valentine's day one of the best in the year.

Julius and Lenhart Vasatka have purchased the retail store and greenhouse owned by Thomas H. Hall, who had been in the trade for fifteen years. A successful future is hoped for the Vasatka brothers, in their new venture.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, has returned from the east.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., is leaving this week for California.

CLEVELAND, O.—C. E. Kendel says the business in poultry and poultry supplies grows better every year.

GRASS and clover seed tariff hearings, paragraph 595, will be held at Washington, D. C., February 12.

SOME seedmen are quoting well below contract prices for the garden seed business of public institutions.

BURPEE'S catalogue offers 10 per cent discount (in vegetable and flower seeds) on orders placed in January and February.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—In the big elevator fire here, January 25, the nearby establishment of the Courteen Seed Co. was damaged some $5,000.

I. W. SCOTT & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., are well located on two streets and have their extensive premises in fine shape for the spring business.

NEWARK, N. J.—J. J. Wilson, of the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., reports early orders from private estates along the coast better than for two seasons past.

VISITED NEW YORK: L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.; C. R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif.

MOORESTOWN, N. J.—Francis C. Stokes, of the Stokes Seed Farms Co., is reported to have given the seed business a vacation while he is honeymooning.

NORFOLK, VA.—Edgar S. Bryan, formerly with the D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa., is now on the sales force of the Williams Seed Co., covering the southern states.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Henry J. Cheney has been appointed chairman of a committee for standardizing the prices of seeds and fertilizers purchased through farm bureau organizations.

CHINESE narcissus bulb cost will be increased, as the American legation at Pekin advises that a sur-tax of 10 per cent of duty will be applied to all goods entering or leaving China on or after March 12.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. say mail orders are more numerous than last year, but smaller in money value, due to declining prices. They feel gratified over the outlook and think that, as a whole, conditions are very satisfactory.

Southern Trade.

H. G. Hastings, of the H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga., writes February 1, as follows: "We have just completed our records for January, and we find that we have received only a few less than 5,000 more seed orders than for January, 1920, which we consider a very fine showing under all the circumstances. The orders show a lower average per order than a year ago, but this is due to the fact that one year ago orders for field seeds of various kinds were active, while this year the orders for field seed items are conspicuous by their absence. As the field seed items, however, are low margin goods we do not consider ourselves hurt very much by the lack of them, as we had not bought field seeds in any considerable quantity with the expectation of selling this year."

The Late Wm. J. Fosgate.
(See Obituary, Issue of January 29, Page 99.)

Grasses and Clover Seeds.

There was little or no change from the previous week in the tone of the seed markets during the week ending January 29. Some declines took place, particularly in red clover, and not many seed prices could be considered as being firm. Most seedsmen are willing to shade their prices in order to make a sale. The local demand for red and alsike clover has been good in many cities but carload buyers at distant points are still deferring their purchases until prices settle and an outlet for the seed is seen.

Arrivals of 750,000 lbs. of red clover seed from France were reported at New York during the week. French and German exporters continue to lower their prices in order to stimulate trade with this country. Because of the present exchange rate, these European countries can obtain considerably more for seed exported to the United States than for that sold at home. A report dated January 5 from Hamburg, Germany, states that the market on red clover was somewhat stronger because of reported American purchases. Red clover was then quoted at $15 to $19 per 100 lbs. but since has declined several dollars, probably because of the falling off in orders received from this country.

An Italian correspondent wrote on January 12 that the farmers in Italy were still holding their red clover and alfalfa seed. Comparatively few of them are selling at prices similar to those being paid to growers in the United States. Unless prices to growers decline in Italy soon, little export business to this country is expected by the Italian exporters.

Alfalfa prices are steady in most cities and in a few are quoted about 50c per 100 lbs. higher than a week ago. Approximately 20,000 lbs. were exported to Germany.

Prices for grass seeds were fairly well maintained. During the week about 160,000 lbs. of timothy, 50,000 lbs. of Kentucky bluegrass, and 30,000 lbs. of meadow fescue were exported from Baltimore and 35,000 lbs. of redtop from New York. During the calendar year 1920 timothy exports amounted to 13,522,134 lbs., according to figures recently compiled by the Department of Commerce.

Wing Receivership.

Darius J. Burnham of Mechanicsburg, O., has been appointed receiver for the Wing Seed Co., of that city, upon the application of Charles B. Wing, president and general manager. The liabilities of the concern are estimated at $200,000. The application for the receiver was filed after the Central Bank of Mechanicsburg had taken judgment on a claim for $14,937.

California Seed Crops.

The L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, advised as follows last month:

"Apparently mother nature is trying to compensate for our scanty rainfall during the past three seasons. The wind-up of our harvest has been interrupted by three inches of rain to date, which is twice the amount received up to this time last year. Let us hope this difference is maintained for the balance of our rainy season. Needless to say these early rains have greatly delayed delivery of a few items which were harvested late in the season.

"Sweet pea planting for the crop of 1921 is nearly completed, and certain varieties of flower seeds will soon follow. We are planning on a normal acreage of all seed crops, contract orders are coming in rapidly, and all signs indicate a healthy condition of the flower seed business."

TOMATO shippers are urged to do better grading.

AT Corpus Christi, Tex., thrip is beginning to work in some of the onion fields.

ABOUT seven cars weekly of tomatoes and green beans are moving from Ft. Lauderdale section, Florida.

LETTUCE acreage in Beaufort county, South Carolina, has increased about 20 per cent, movement possibly 800 cars.

BROCCOLI shipments from central California are beginning, movement locally estimated at 400 cars of the black variety.

WISCONSIN holdings of cabbage are said to aggregate 500 to 700 cars. Thousands of tons went to waste in the fields.

THE acreage of beets and carrots in Hidalgo county, Texas, is reported three times that of last year, spinach acreage increased 50 per cent.

CARL PLOWATY known as the "onion king," says that pungent vegetable has a "powerful kick." Perhaps so have the neighbors of him who overindulges in it.

CHICAGO.—The tercentenary of the planting of the first potato in the United States will be held next December, according to Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at Field Museum here.

STRAWBERRY acreage in Columbus county, North Carolina, is reported increased 10 per cent, the plantings looking well with little or no commercial fertilizer. Present plantings are for the spring of 1922 crop. The crop in Pender county is also reported satisfactory and acreage increased 10 per cent.

Tomato Sources and Shipments.

Nearly 63 per cent of the carloads of tomatoes received for consumption at the New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, St. Louis and Kansas City markets came from the four early shipping states of Florida, Mississippi, Texas and California during the past four years, according to information compiled by the United States bureau of markets. Approximately 6,750 cars of tomatoes were received for consumption in 1919, as compared with 6,600 in 1918, with 7,350 in 1917, and with 8,150 cars in 1916, making a total of about 28,900 for the four-year period, and a yearly average of about 7,200 cars. This amount represents about 49 per cent of the total quantity of tomatoes reported shipped to all markets each year.

Ageratum Frazerii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraseri" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that it is a blue, a decided blue, that will be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about 8 to 10 inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense truss of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can very easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

Forty-sixth annual convention will be held at Chicago, June, 1921.

THE JANUARY issue of Parks and Recreation, the quarterly publication of the American Association of Park Superintendents, is out with many important articles for park men. Emmett P. Griffin, East St. Louis, Ill., is secretary of the association.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association is scheduled to take place February 10 at the City Club, Hartford, with an interesting programme.

Ohio Nurserymen's Association

The annual meeting of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association was held at the New Southern hotel, Columbus, February 3. President W. F. Bohlender's address and the reports of the other officers were followed by a number of interesting papers and addresses, including: "How May We Interest Farmers in Growing Nursery Stock?" by J. H. Dayton; "Nursery-grown Christmas Trees Versus Forest-grown Trees," by H. S. Day; "Through What Medium Will the Nursery Product Reach the Consumer in the Future?" by W. B. Cole, Painesville; "What Is the Outlook for Orcharding At the Present Time?' by T. B. West, Perry; "How Can We Guard Against Overproduction At the Present Time?" by M. L. Carr, Yellow Springs; "What is the Best and Cheapest Material a Nurseryman Can Grow for Bailing Purposes?" "Does the Sudan Grass Solve the Problem?" by Hary Kyle; "Does It Pay to Handle a Long List of Varieties?" by J. S. Burton, Casstown; "How to Get the Best Co-operation with Your Foreman," by H. Bowden; "How is the Best Way to Handle Credits in the Nursery Business?" by J. Jenkins, Winona; "Will Prices in the Future Justify Paying Wages for Skilled Labor in Our Line as in Other Lines?" by A. R. Pickett, Clyde; "Where is the Future Supply of Our Norway Maple to Come From? Is There Any Successful Way of Producing Them in This Country " by Clarence Siebenthaler; "Shall a Good Price Standard be Maintained in this Country or shall we get Right Back to the old Methods of Throat-cutting as soon as Supply is Increased," by T. J. Dinsmore, and "What Percentage of a Normal Supply of Stock will there be on the Market the Coming Spring?" by the members.

Raspberry Anthracnose Control.

Growers planning to start a new raspberry or blackberry patch should set out only such plants as are free from anthracnose and only on such ground as was not devoted to the growing of raspberries or blackberries during the past three or five years, advises H. C. Severin, professor of entomology at the state college and state entomologist, Brookings, S. D. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture, 4-4-50, will control the disease to some extent. Several thorough applications are necessary, however, the first just after the canes begin to grow, the second as soon as the leaves are well developed and when the shoots are about six inches high, and a third just before the blossoms appear.

Woods Go West.

L. C. Everard, of the national forest service, writes in part in Munsey's Magazine: "It is only a little more than a century and a half since the primeval forests around Pittsburgh hid the savage redskin in his ambush; now the Pittsburgher who wants to build a home goes a thousand miles to find the trees. The American frontier has traveled westward at a dizzy speed, largely because of abundance of fertile soil and of wood and water. In wake of the advancing frontier have marched the clearings in the forest. Investigation of the lumber and timber situation just made by the forest service, in accordance with senate resolution, revealed that three-fifths of the original saw-timber supply of the United States is gone. About half the remainder is in the three states that border the Pacific. A good deal of the other half is in the south; and southern pine operators cannot see more than enough for about 15 years' operations.

"Legislation is needed which will permit rapid enlargement of national forests. With these measures should be combined a study of forest taxation and insurance, a survey and classification of our forest resources and a great increase in facilities for forest research. Of prime importance, also, are establishment of state and municipal forests, and state legislation providing for fire-prevention, reforestation on private lands and regulation of methods of cutting."

SEEDS.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date dahlias in existence. No place in the world have dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of peony, cactus and decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised dahlias from it; but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs. Price, $0.50 per package.

RICHARD DIENER CO., INC.
Kentfield Marin County, Calif.

THE DIENER TOMATO

Increase your tomato yield one hundred per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30-40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains very little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED: Sample pkg., 25c; one-quarter of an acre pkg., 50c; one acre pkg., $1.50.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial day and during June. A good, deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and will also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good, strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried-up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes, although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so as to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Spiraeas.

The spiræas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiræas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Back to Hog Raising.

When you get tired of selecting the members of Mr. Harding's Cabinet for him you might devote a little time to deciding what you will plant in your garden this Spring. Harding won't mind.—Southern Democrat, Oneonta.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Flower Shop on the Stage.

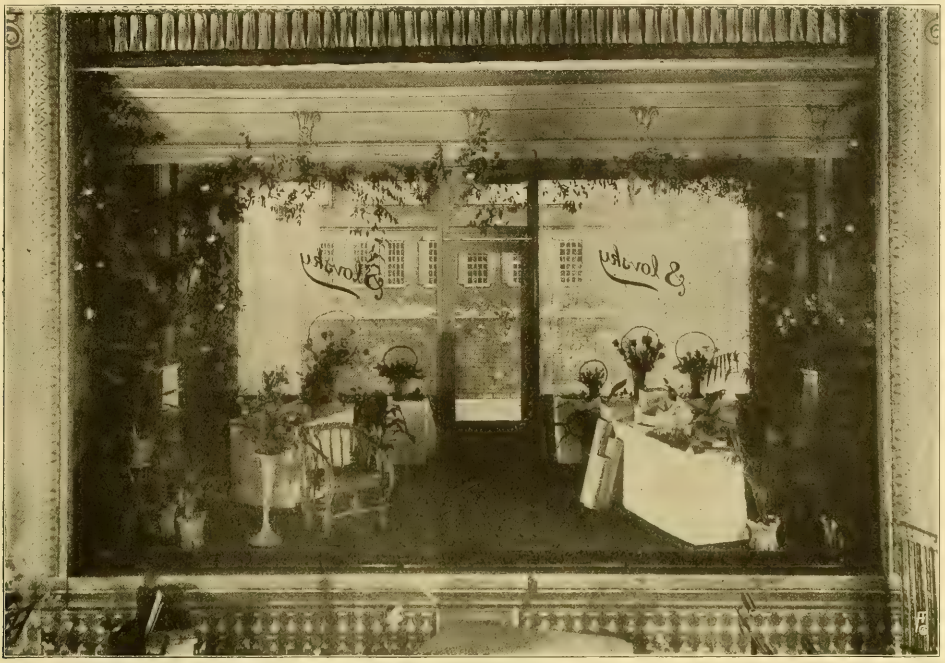
The F. Walker Co. of Louisville, Ky., had a very unique setting of a flower shop on the stage of a motion picture house recently. The display was used in connection with a sketch, entitled "The Sign of the Rose," and produced by George Baban.

Washington's Birthday.

While there is not much to the anniversary of the birthday of the father of his country in a floral way, it gives an opportunity to call attention to the store and its products which should not be overlooked. The story of the hatchet and cherry tree appears to be inseparable with the day and can be played for all it is worth. Twigs from the woods or real cherry branches, when decorated with leaves and cherries, have quite a natural look and can be used to good effect on the outside of cut flower boxes. Miniature trees from the woods that will look well in a six-inch pot when decorated with leaves and cherries are quite saleable. The pot is to be decked with crepe or other covering, and tied with a narrow tri-color ribbon. A miniature hatchet is also a good addition.

Corsages are always in demand on this day as when the theaters and movies do a record business. These, made of red and white carnations and violets and tied with tri-color ribbon, are in keeping with the day. Many other flowers will answer as well. There are many home entertainments and dinners at this time, at some of which the decorations are quite elaborate. Where there is no central chandelier, a good sized cherry tree well decorated with leaves and cherries, makes an appropriate center. Tall, slender vases of red and white carnations, or roses, rising from a plateau of violets, are suitable half centers. If the table is round, a wreath just inside the plate line may be made on a form or built up on the table with smilax and sweet peas, or carnations. Any of the flowering plants can be given a holiday touch with tri-color ribbon, small flags, hatchets and small branches of cherries.

CALENDULAS IN STONEWARE VASE.



FLOWER SHOP ON THE STAGE.

The window should be made attractive, the central feature should be a plaster bust of Washington, decorated with a good sized flag. There are many ways in which this can be arranged, all attractive. If the bust is carefully taken care of, wrapped and put away, it can be used a number of times. All other specialties, corsages, plants, boxes of cut flowers and decorated empty boxes nicely arranged in connection with the central feature, will present quite a handsome window.

The Lenten Season.

Lent starts in early this year and while its strict observance calls a halt on all large social functions, there are a number of every-day events that call for the use of flowers with such frequency as to keep the wheels of the flower shop machinery moving satisfactorily. Flowers are becoming much more plentiful, some, such as sweet peas, carnations, violets, daffodils and other staples, can now be had in quantity, and at prices that will show a good profit on a quick turnover. The progressive retailer always strives to keep things moving. If anything like a lull sets in and business slows up a bit, he immediately gets busy with a rearrangement of his store interior and window, selects stock to be featured and puts it to the front in quantity; arranged as attractively as possible. Daffodils in pots, pans and cut, make a good stock to push at this season. These, combined with pussy willow sprays on the growing plants, and well decorated pots, are springlike and salable. There is a light weight but pliable, parchment like paper that comes in a number of shades that makes a very good cover. Cut in squares, set the pot on a saucer in the middle of the sheet and draw the paper up around the pot and tie with a tape or light tasselled cord the color of the flower. The edges of the paper will be irregular, and should extend three to four inches above the pot, or even higher with some plants. An inside sheet of a color the same as the flower will give a good decorative effect. The outside sheet should be white in most instances. A window full of these with a price card, is pretty sure to start something. The cut daffodils in small vase baskets, or in shallow bowls, or in dozens in cornucopias of waxed or white paper, are very inviting. A little direct mail advertising calling attention to a sale of spring flowers will be worth while.

Sweet peas are another quantity flower that can be moved in much the same way. There are grades to suit every purse, and they can be put up and handled in many different ways. The long-stemmed stock arrange beautifully in tall, slender vases, and in rose bowls for table centerpieces. Several bunches look beautiful in a cut-flower box together. A drive on carnations, in bunches of one dozen or 25, will interest many, particularly when they can be offered at prices much below those prevailing but a short time ago.

A publicity plan that is a bit expensive but nearly always productive of good results, is to send to good customers or prospects, a small sample box holding a bunch of peas or a half dozen daffodils or some other flower that is to be featured. These, of course, must be without blemish and each box should contain the leaflet referring to the spring flower sale or display. These are just leaders or drives to stir things up and the staples, roses, orchids, violets and other standard items of stock are to be in good supply for those who will be wanting something more expensive. Small tables in the store, decorated and calling attention to every-day events, such as a "birthday table," "when the stork comes," "anniversary remembrances," will be found interesting to visitors and will call to mind an occasion in the near future, when they will want some such floral tokens. Such features can be run for a week once a month, as the store's interior should be changed constantly. The same display tables can be used to feature fern dishes, flower bowls, vases, baskets of cut flowers, decorated plants and many other stocks to which it is desired to call special attention. Articles displayed in this manner at each table with an explanatory card with prices will effect many sales that would not have been made if the stock had to be asked for.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The most continuous and profitable work of the retail florist is the demand for flowers for funerals. Many shops make this work their specialty, and I do not refer here to the "crepe pullers," who are in a class by themselves, but to a certain type of store, where no attempt at display or featuring of plants and flowers is made, in fact very little perishable stock of any kind is carried, the necessary material being purchased after the order is secured. Certain people are not educated to the use of flowers, and only buy them for funeral occasions. Such are the patrons of these stores.

The legitimate, enterprising and up-to-date retailer, who caters to all branches of the business, with a good stock to meet his every-day requirements, works up a family trade and confidence that insures other orders. their funeral work as well. Some retailers in order to increase such trade, obtain membership in a number of societies, hoping through the prominence gained to be able to influence a certain amount of business. Some who would not pull door bells, issue small illustrated and well worded booklets. The designs and sprays described are such as they make to advantage and find most profitable, and graded prices are given. These booklets are mailed to fresh additions to the death announcements as they appear in the morning and afternoon papers. When the deceased is seen to be a member of a union, lodge or society, or where the invitation is to his late fellow-employes here is an opportunity for business that is thought by some to be worth looking up and which may be solicited without overstepping the bounds of propriety. Frequently a flower committee is appointed who are glad to have suggestions and be relieved of the work, and quite often good orders are secured in this way.

THE YEAR BOOK.

In the year book should be kept a record of all kinds of anniversary occasions. Particularly those of the store's own customers. Weddings, birthdays, store openings, school class days, and anniversaries of death, when flowers are frequently sent to the cemeteries, are some of the important days. Much work for every week in the year may be obtained by a close follow-up system, which sees that a few days before the annual date, an anniversary circular is mailed together with a letter, announcing the flowers sent for the event, birthday, etc., could be duplicated and given the firm's best attention. Much business can be picked up in this way that would otherwise be overlooked or possibly be given elsewhere.

Roses are now getting more plentiful and when they can be purchased to advantage, a special sale of the short to medium grades will make a good impression. Sweet peas are now at their best and should be recommended for all kinds of table decoration. Their exquisite form, coloring and fragrance, makes them one of the most popular of cut flowers. In their various grades, they are priced to suit all purses and there should be a good stock on hand at all times. It is also daffodil time and the comparatively low price at which they can be sold should insure the stock being turned frequently.

It is well to keep trace of all customers, particularly those that are missed for a while. Some slight misunderstanding may be keeping them away, and if so, it should be explained and corrected as soon as possible. A small but choice box of sweet peas or other popular flower, with compliments of the store, is sure to be well received and answered with a personal call or note of thanks.

A basket or two of growing foliage and flowering plants are sure to be admired and give a decorative effect to the store. It will soon be time to keep these to the front as Easter is not many weeks away. Frequently they are taken when cut flowers are thought too dear or on account of their lasting qualities.

Are you keeping the Florists' Telegraph Delivery service to the front? It will repay handsomely all the featuring you can possibly give it. It is like the rolling snowball which grows in size as it is pushed along. Many possible customers who pass your store daily would, with a knowledge of this service, come in and purchase. See to it that they are educated and enlightened. Do not slight such a good business opportunity by waiting for the other fellow to send you his orders, get busy and go after them yourself.

Keep your store window brilliantly lighted and remaining on duty until 11 p. m., always display something in it that will be of interest to the passer by. Or at times with the top lights out try a spotlight on a picture frame or a choice basket or wreath. These will be sure to attract attention.

A Lost Opportunity.

Washington is a city of refinement, and its magnificent public buildings, monuments, broad boulevards, and parks system cannot but have an uplifting effect in educating the citizens to a love for the beautiful. The success of its numerous and well managed flower shops show that there is an exceptional demand for flowers both from the residents and the large transient population many of them people of wealth who crowded the city during the social season.

The recent exhibition of the American Carnation Society, at the national capital, was a wonderful display, splendid in variety and exceptionally fine in quality. Nothing better or perhaps as good has been seen in the past decade. There have been times in the past few years when it was said the carnation was losing its prestige and popularity; some even going so far as to wonder whether it would ever come back; it came back all right and is here to stay. Beautiful as the flowers were, however, it was but a growers' exhibition of their best products from all parts of the country. New and old varieties were brought together for comparison. There was no attempt at decorative display, the flowers being bunched together as called for by the schedule, 50 to 100 in large fibre vases, and placed in single rows in the middle of the display tables. The judges made their awards and for the balance of the day and evening they were open for inspection. All the next day they stood as originally placed, in fine condition, but in splendid isolation. The growers were in convention, but neither the public or the flower lovers of Washington had been invited, and this opportunity to exalt the carnation and show the perfection to which it has attained was lost. With this wealth of flowers there was a splendid opening the second day to exploit the carnation and exhibit its decorative possibilities in artistically arranged baskets, vases, and table decorations. There is no doubt but the local florists would have been glad to lend their assistance in the tasty arrangement of flowers, given them by the growers' committee for this purpose. A most attractive exhibit was a basket containing 100 Laddie grown by S. J. Goddard, beautifully arranged by Harper Hetherington, and also an artistic vase basket, exhibited by Strout's, Inc. All such arranged exhibits could have had the name of the grower and also the decorator on them. Had such a one-day exhibition been well featured in the papers for a week before, together with some photographs and stories of the flower, it would have resulted in a splendid attendance and great publicity for the carnation as well as the flower business in the nation's capital.

Has Our Publicity Campaign Helped

TO SELL MORE FLOWERS?

This was a query we would get very early in the stages of our advertising. Then came the period when our campaign sunk in a bit and was followed by retailers doing more advertising on their own initiative and by encouragement from our national campaign. The co-operative advertising in many of the cities then followed, which has kept increasing in some centres due to the efficient manner in which they are receiving local subscriptions and where all are paying in like proportions, which of course, is the healthful way. We also note a tendency in localities were the plan is not equitable to fall off in the co-operative advertising as well as in retail florists' personal advertising, due to the enthusiasm being on the wane caused by the relaxation of the co-operative advertising, which of course is the natural trend of action, one depending on the other. Have you noticed in the districts where advertising is being carried on, the inceased demand made for flowers, also the contrary condition where advertising is not put forward? Success will come only by continued and persistent advertising.

Now, a new query comes to me every now and then, which is a healthful sign and should ordinarily be a regular thing, namely: What has become of national advertising in the magazines? How many have missed it lately and why has it not appeared the past few months? Well, the answer is simple. Your publicity committee cannot function unless they have the money to carry on, and they prefer to wait until the funds are available and in the treasurer's exchequer before they can contract for magazine advertising. We will soon feel the need of its continuance, and when we do we will have to use twice the effort to get back where we were a year ago. Phillip Brooks once said: "Be courageous. Be independent. Only remember where the true courage and independence came from." How well this reminds us of our national campaign. Let's see: Be courageous—we were, particularly when we entered into a campaign when the majority felt it was not the proper time. Be independent—we took a decided stand, and went ahead. Only remember where the true courage and independence came from. In the midst of co-operative and other forms of publicity do not forget your national campaign which gave the support and lent enthusiasm for still greater advertising among florists than ever before. Support your fund and keep the ball rolling so that all will benefit as well as yourself.

NEW SWEET PEA FLAMINGO.

In Mulberry Bend.

No Fifth Avenue wedding, when an American beauty married an English earl, ever brought out a bigger or more patient crowd, or a greater display of flowers than were seen recently in the Mulberry Bend neighborhood. The occasion was the commencement exercises at Columbus school, Mulberry and Bayard streets, when 130 children of Italian, Chinese and possibly a few American families received their diplomas. It was estimated that the floral tributes represented an outlay of more than $2,000; certainly it looked as if every florist's shop below Fourteenth street had been stripped to make the commencement a festive one.

While the exercises proceeded on the fourth floor, relatives of the diploma recipients waited below in the hall and outside in the street, their arms blue from the biting winds, but their faces bright with anticipation of the surprise in store for Salvatore or Serafina, or little Mary Foy, when they walked straight into the red and white bouquets that made the wintry street bloom like a June garden. Mulberry Bend never saw anything quite like it before. Neighbors hung out of the windows and parents made it a special holiday with a family celebration which, in many instances, continued through the evening.

Cactus Candy.

Lousiana has a new product. It is cactus candy. The cactus is peeled, dipped in hot syrup or molasses and coated with powdered sugar. Many cane syrups and other similar products are common in every home in the south, so the confection is easily made. Sugar mills are also taking it up as a side product to be turned out during the slack seasons of the year.—Popular Science Monthly.

WITH THE GROWERS

The Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn.

The Joy Floral Co.'s gardens are about three miles from the city's center. As one nears the plant he sees a fine range of greenhouses of imposing appearance, and gives one the realization of the success which the Joys—father, son and grandson, have accomplished. The entire tract comprises 90 acres. Thomas H. Joy, who is married, with one son, has a pretty home. On the other side of the lot are the cottages of the employees, of whom there are 40.

CARNATION MAINE SUNSHINE AT STROUT'S, INC., BIDDEFORD, ME.

The rose range consists of five new houses, 31 by 500 feet, and an imposing lot filled with strong, vigorous roses. The rose houses are of steel construction. The range was completed late last summer. All the new roses are grown here, Columbia, Kaiserin, Milady, Mme. Butterfly, Premier, Russell and Cecile Brunner. These houses have been continuously in bloom since they were put in and now a number of the benches have been topped for Easter. The benches are four feet wide and there are six to a house. A concrete walk will be constructed between the greenhouses, so the extra dirt and fertilizer can be moved. The daily cut is 3,000 roses. This enables the firm to suply their Chattanooga and Atlanta stores also. The roses are of the very best grown, in size, color and foliage. Some have stems three and four feet long. In the 14 houses there are 88,000 rose plants. There is a total of 325,000 square feet of glass.

Carnations occupy no little space, different houses being filled with red, pink and some with white varieties. They have a beautiful white seedling which the young men have named for their grandfather, "Thomas S. Joy," who founded the business but who has now retired. The other houses are filled with all kinds of plants needful for every purpose, and available at different seasons of the year. One large house is devoted entirely to Easter lilies, timed to come on just at the Easter season. A perfect riot of color was in the house, where 2,000 cyclamen plants were ready for the Valentine trade. In other houses were hydrangeas, baby ramblers, bulbous stock. Lorraine Begonias and sweet peas, which are now on sale, with a great demand. We must not overlook a perfect forest of hanging baskets, prepared for the spring market.

Recently the American National bank consolidating with the Cumberland Valley National bank and moving into a splendid new building, had an opening. The Joy Floral Co. furnished them with any number of handsome, floral baskets, decorated birch boxes and 6,000 carnations, which were presented to visitors. Another concern was furnished with 5,000 carnations and a large quantity of roses, at their opening.

The Joy Floral Co. does all their own propagating, having a long house devoted to the purpose. Mr. Smith, an experienced grower, has this matter in charge, while Mr. Johnson has taken care of the rose growing and Mr. Lish has supervision of the potting of plants. One of the most important features, and up to date in every particular is the heating apparatus, a veritable industry in itself. Large buildings in the middle of all the glass houses have a perfect network of pipes, pulleys, valves, machines and pumps, all necessary to the business. Last summer the plant was equipped with new boilers, with a greater heating capacity. A vacuum pump that works automatically, pumps their water from a never-failing well into a reservoir, from which it is conveyed to the pipes. It generally takes 125 carloads of coal to run the plant through the winter, but this winter being so mild, they needed only 80 carloads.

Ten acres are reserved annually for out-of-door flowers, and sweet peas, jonquils, peonies, iris and other out-of-door plants are then in profusion.

Too much cannot be said of the young men who are handling this wonderful enterprise, Messrs. Thomas H. Joy and Harold Joy. The former has charge of the store and all branches, and the younger, Harold has supervision of the growing end of the business with 40 capable men to assist him. The venerable grandfather, hale and vigorous, despite an advanced age, no longer worries with the details of the plant, but leaves it to the younger members to run, while he enjoys a well-earned respite from cares.

Carnation Handicaps.

Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., in a talk before the Florist Club of Philadelphia at its January meeting, pointed out some of the difficulties which handicap the carnation, which flower, he stated, needs a friend at this time. The main trouble is that, as a flower, it is held to be greatly inferior to the rose, when as a matter of fact, it costs equally as much in expense and care to produce. In Christmas price lists sent out by high class retailers, the prices of red carnations were so high as to be prohibitive, for the reason they did not want to keep in stock or handle them. City florists should remember that with four-fifths of the grower-retailers over the country, the carnation is their quantity flower, their standby for funeral sprays and loose cut flowers.

There are several groups of carnations. Some are great producers of medium sized flowers, fine for local trade, but not good shippers. Certain varieties were croppers and late bloomers, and others were good until the middle of January, and then burst their calyx so badly as to be unprofitable. Five to 10 years ago, an average price the season through of two and one-half to three cents was profitable and satisfactory. Then skilled greenhouse men commanded $2 per day, and coal at the boiler was $4 to $5 a ton. Now, with labor $6 per day, and coal $11 a ton, it is necessary to get an average return of $6 per hundred.

Recently, in the New York market, he had seen improved methods of packing and shipping carnations, that, to him, looked very practical. Shallow pasteboard boxes containing 150 flowers, nicely packed in layers, with paper between the rows, the stems overlapping in the center from each end and tied down with a tape over a paper pad which held all firmly in place. A number of these boxes came packed in a wooden case. All had carried very well and were sold by the box at prices that averaged 20 per cent more than the average bunched stock, over which they had the preference with all discriminating buyers.

In describing his varieties on exhibition: Roslyn, a flaked pink sport of Matchless, and as good a producer, much the same in everything but color, improves to a deeper shade as the season advances. Lady Norcliffe, salmon pink, an English variety, was fine to be grown for local consumption. Thirty-five flowers to the square foot of bench space was its record with him. Snow White was a medium sized flower, very fragrant and spicy. It bore last year 41 2-3 flowers to the square foot. Peerless Pink, a large flowered type, a bright cerise, did well until the middle of January, when it burst so badly that he then threw it out and followed with snapdragons. White Delight is a steady producer, wonderful keeper and free to root. Its record is 31 to 33 flowers to the square foot. Improved Pink Ward showed no streakedness that so often mars the original variety. This and Crystal White are the parents of his fine yellow, Maine Sunshine.

Mr. Strout urged that all carnation men should mark the date of the American Carnation Society convention and exhibition in Washington, January 26 and 27, and arrange their affairs so as to be able to attend and bring some of their best flowers with them. K.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SEEDLINGS.

New York Spring Show.

MARCH 14-20.

With the various promises of support in the way of interesting exhibits taking material form, all doubt is removed as to the success of the Spring show as far as the larger exhibits are concerned. In addition to the big exhibits already reported, our committee is pleased to announce an exhibit by W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, of what will most assuredly be regarded as the most comprehensive collection of camelias ever staged in this country, or perhaps in any other. Plants in tubs, in profusion of bloom, will be exhibited, and it is expected the number of varieties will be large, as the collection now possessed by Mr. Coe includes 57 varieties. The collection of cut camelia blooms staged by him at the last exhibition was most interesting and attracted a large amount of attention. It was especially pleasing to the older among the public, inasmuch as they saw the blooms which, years ago, took the place of the orchids and gardenias of today, and the procuration of which was always a matter of concern to the florists of days gone by. Another exhibit expected to attract considerable attention will be one composed of cut material from the greenhouse of Joseph Widener of Elkins, Philadelphia, Pa.

The plan of the show, as laid out months ago, is now practically complete. Competition in the largest group class is likely to be very keen, entries already received assuring this. All the other group classes are well filled, and this year there is an increase in the entries for the class covering the 500 feet group of flowering plants arranged for effect, orchids excluded, but suitable accessories allowed. It was difficult in previous years to secure two entries, but this year there are three. The prizes in this class amount to $1,000. It has been necessary this season to allot much more space than customarily for the competitive exhibits, and the committee is greatly elated over this condition. It seems more than likely that the final show in the Grand Central palace will be the largest and best ever staged on its floors. The committee is most earnest in the request made for small exhibits. Very many florists, and private growers as well, could stage a vase or two of some flower or other. Subjects such as antirrhinums, wallflowers, iris, myosotis, or stocks, for instance, are interesting to everybody, and the more they are seen, the better for the florist's business.

The official catalogue of the exhibition is well under way—it really should be called a handbook, for it is full of valuable information on horticultural matters, and is preserved as a book of reference. Available space in the trade section is growing less almost daily. Exhibitors in this section evidently appreciate fully the advantages presented by a class exhibition of this kind, which brings prospective customer and nurseryman or merchant into personal contact, resulting to the good of each. The window poster cards and the large billboard three sheets are ready, and many of the former are already displayed in florists' windows. The management will be grateful for the courtesy of proffered assistance in window display of the poster, and will forward cards to all who can find a place for them in their establishments.

ADDITIONAL EXHIBITORS.

Additional exhibitors not previously reported are: Burlington Willow Ware Shop, Burlington, Ia.; Flowerfield Co., Bemus Point, N. Y.; W. H. Lutton Co., New York; Associated Motors Co., New York, and S. A. Dawson, New York.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Turkey Awake.

Mohammed VI, Sultan of Turkey, plans to establish a model farm and agricultural school, and is considering the use of American equipment throughout. Through the Constantinople office of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, he has sent to this country for specifications and price lists covering up-to-date machinery and implements for use in agriculture and forestry.

Rare Old Garden Books.

In a list of old horticultural books recently offered we find the following American publications: The American Rose Culturist, New York, 1852; The Flower Garden, or Book of Flowers, by Joseph Breck, New York, 1862; The New England Fruit Book, Etc., by Robt. Manning, Salem, Mass., 1844.

New York Cut Flower Growers' Ass'n.

At an enthusiastic meeting of cut flower growers held in the Engineering building, New York, on the afternoon of February 11, an organization was perfected and the name New York Cut Flower Growers' Associaton adopted. After some discussion it was unanimously agreed to pay in a six months assessment on the basis of $2 per 1,000 square feet of ground space covered by glass, and that this sum be expended by the executive committee for local advertising, as soon as possible, when the conditions prevailing in the market seemed favorable.

The growers, at this meeting, calling themselves the New York Cut Flower Growers' Association, for the work of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York, elected officers as follows: F. R. Pierson, president; F. H. Traendly, vice-president; and A. M. Henshaw, secretary and treasurer. The directors elected were: Eugene Dailledouze, C. H. Totty, Wm. H. Duckham, F. B. Abrams and H. O. May.

Growers representing 2,747,000 square feet of glass were present or represented as follows: F. B. Abrams, Ed. R. Asmus, W. G. Badgley, Bedford Flower Co., Briarcliff Greenhouses, L. Chevalley, L. B. Coddington, Crestwood Greenhouses, F. S. Dean, Duckham-Pierson Co., Jos. Fasanella, E. W. Fengar. Chas. Fish, A. M. Henshaw, Springfield Floral Co., H. Hentz, S. Kahn, Le Cluse & Le Cluse, J. A. Manda Co., M. Matherson, H. O. May, F. L. Moore, H. L. Patthey, Geo. Peters & Sons, F. R. Pierson, Richmond Floral Co., Reimels, Wm. A. Rodman, Anthony Ruzicka, W. H. Siebrecht, Robert Simson, Wm. H. Stone, C. H. Totty, F. H. Traendly, Wm. Vert and John Wallenborn.

TRADE RETURNS TO NORMAL.

After two weeks of rather light business trade has again returned to normal and business may be said to be quite active. It is not expected that the Lenten season will have any bad effect on business here, for in former years the demand for stock during this season has always been brisk. The shipping trade has been excellent throughout the season and at the present writing is still strong. Roses still continue to be in short supply with not enough stock arriving to fill all orders. Russell is not plentiful and stock is still held at very high figures. The limited supply coming into the market is however, of the best quality. Ophelia is also scarce with prices firm. Very little Columbia is to be had. All red varieties are in more generous supply this week, but stock cleans up quickly. Cecile Brunners still continue to be in short supply. A few Irish Fireflowers are to be had. Violets are now very plentiful owing to the warm weather. Princess of Wales is in over supply but shipping demand keeps the stock of the Giant violet cleaned up every day. Carnations are a little more plentiful the past few weeks. Prices are being well maintained for all standard varieties with Laddie bringing its usual high figures. Sweet peas continue to arrive in increasing numbers and nearly all colors are now available. Daffodils are coming into the market in large quantities. The large supply has caused a sharp drop in prices. Paper Whites are cheap and plentiful. Tulips are arriving more freely and are popular as a spring flower. Roman hyacinths are also in ample supply. Dutch hyacinths are beginning to put in appearance and are being sold in made-up pans of various sizes. Cut ericas, principally Melanthera, is one of the most popular flowers this season and is being handled in large quantities by all the stores. Gardenias are in short supply. Cattleyas are now at the peak of the season and are in heavy supply. The demand for them is very strong. There is a large cut of cypripediums in variety which find much favor in the stores. A few white chrysanthemums can still be found at the various establishments. The flowering bulbous stock, such as Dutch hyacinths and tulips are now to the fore and are the most in demand at present. Very good azaleas can also be had. Cinerarias are coming in freely and add greatly to the appearance of the shops. Bostons move well as do all other nephrolepis. Acacia Mollissima and Baileyana is in large supply and is largely used for decorative purposes. The demand for all green goods is excellent. Both asparagus and adiantums are scarce with not enough stock to go around. Freesias are in heavy supply but the demand is so strong that the daily cut is quickly disposed of. Colored freesias can be had in limited quantities. Lily of the valley is another scarce item. Lilium Rubrum in pots made their first appearance during the week.

NOTES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held February 2. J. Kilroy, of the membership committee reported that practically every flower store in the city now remains closed all day Sunday. B. M. Joseph made a plea for the Far East Relief fund and the members responded generously. In the future the regular monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association will be held on the first Wednesday of each month at Native Sons' Hall, 414 Mason street.

A feature of the last meeting of the Retail Florists Association was the vase of Kenneth S. Murray's new pink rose. This is a sport of Columbia, the color being a flesh pink. Mr. Murray says it is a more robust grower than Columbia. The flowers were of the largest size and the stem and foliage all that could be desired in a commercial rose. It was accorded much praise by the leading retailers, who said the color made it a decided acquestion.

The first annual banquet of the Retail Florists' Association was held February 5. It was the largest gathering of the trade ever held here, 285 being in attendance. Ferrari Bros. contributed over 400 cattleyas for the tables. Angelo J. Rossi told of the aims of the association and of what had already been accomplished. Albert O. Stein, president, concluded with a short talk.

The Thomas Floral Co. has purchased the Conservatory Flower Shop. Michael Thomas will manage both stores, and has sold his interest in the Thomas Bros. store on Polk street in order to devote his attention to the two other establishments.

J. A. Axell says he is busy with his shipping trade, and that there is no slowing down in the demand for violets. He hopes the rose shortage will soon be over.

The Retail Florists' Association carried a very attractive 4-column St. Valentine advertisement in all the local papers February 12.

National Association of Gardeners.

The National Association of Gardeners has engaged space at the New York Spring Flower show, to be held at Grand Central palace, March 14-20, for a reception room and information bureau for the convenience of country estate owners. The secretary will be in attendance throughout the show to discuss any subject that may relate to the gardener or his profession, and the engaging of efficient gardeners for country estates.

A gardeners' conference under the auspices of the New England members of the association will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, on Thursday afternoon, April 7. This will be during the week of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society Spring show, and exhibition show of the American Rose Society. As many out-of-town gardeners will attend this show, a large attendance is looked for at the gardeners' conference.

The 1921 convention committee appointed by President Craig will meet at the association's office in New York, February 18, to organize and to discuss the plans for the 1921 convention, which will be held in New York this fall. The committee is already in receipt of an invitation to have the attendants at the convention visit some of the fine gardens on Long Island on an automobile trip, with luncheon at one of the prominent country clubs,

A movement is on foot to organize a local branch of the National Association of Gardners in Nassau County (Long Island) N. Y., to promote the interest and welfare of the profession and its members in that community, by informing the country estate owners of the aims and purposes of the association, and by keeping them advised on the activities it is engaged in—in brief, to establish a more confident relation between the gardener and his employer.

Vice-President Osborn.

Newell C. Osborn, vice-president elect of the American Carnation Society, is a native of Connecticut, and has been connected with the florist business since boyhood. For over 12 years he has been employed by John Coombs, the well known grower of Hartford, Ct. Mr. Osborn is a family man, his home being at Newtonville, a suburb of Hartford.

STOCK MOVING SLOWLY.

St. Valentine's day did not cause much excitement in the local market. While there was an extra demand for small flowers suitable for corsage work, all other lines moved slowly, and with the exception of short roses, there was plenty of stock for every need. While this is written on Sunday and Valentine day is not until Monday, it is hard to tell what last minute orders will amount to. It is certain that there will be sufficient for all needs. At the present writing there is an over-supply of bulbous stock, which keeps things in an unsettled condition. Golden Spur, Paper White narcissi and tulips are coming in faster than they can be moved to advantage. The rose situation remains about the same with a daily clean-up on all arrivals; still prices have dropped on all grades. On some varieties the quality is not as good as it might be, due no doubt to the mild spring-like weather we have been having. The supply of carnations is on the increase, but in most cases the quality is not first class, as has been the case all season, and it is not likely that they will improve much from now on. Easter lilies are moving freely and is the one item that is holding up in price. The suply of Calla lilies is small and makes no impression on the market. Supply and demand in sweet peas remain about equal with heavy arrivals daily. Violets move slowly and while Valentine day caused an increased demand, it was nothing compared to former years. Freesia, mignonette, calendula and Baby Primrose sell slowly. Orchids and lily of the valley are in heavier supply and are good property.

NOTES.

Jake Gerwig of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has acquired local fame by figuring in the big money in a local ten pin tournament, he and his partner having carried off first place in the two men events and his team captured second place in the five men events.

IMPROVED CONDITIONS NOTED.

St. Valentine's day, looked forward to with much interest and some anxiety by the florists, brought an activity in business that indicated to some degree, at least, a restoration of improved conditions. Advance orders placed Friday and Saturday with many retailers led them to stock up plentifully to meet the expected demand that followed on Monday. A complete assortment of the season's offerings could be found in every shop, and eager buyers bought liberally at the reduced prices everywhere prevailing in both cut flowers and plants, the popularity of each class being pretty evenly divided. Violets, perhaps the finest ever offered here, were said by some to lead in the choice of cut flowers, closely followed by sweet peas, the stock of which was somewhat limited. Roses were the only item that higher prices were demanded for and these correspondingly moved slowly. Daffodils were popular and many were sold. Bulbous stock in pots and pans were fine and were perhaps with most retailers, the leaders for the day. Some of the shops made a display of plant baskets filled with assortments of flowering plants and these were largely used for the more expensive effects. Baskets of cut flowers too were a feature of most places and ranged from the small dainty ones to the more elaborate examples. The weather was bright and mild and most favorable for the very satisfactory business enjoyed by nearly all the florists.

RETAILERS ORGANIZE

An organization of retailers has been effected with the following officers: President, W. B. Brown; secretary, Harry Breitmeyer, and treasurer, J. K. Stock. The organization will be known as the Community Flower Shops and starts off with 11 florists as members. Any retail florists is eligible to membership and the initial sum of $50 is required with the application for membership. This fund is primarily for the purpose of defraying the expenses connected with the weekly meetings to be held, and includes luncheon. These meetings will be held every Friday at noon in Harmonie hall.

At the meeting of February 11, a full attendance was present and reports were made by committees appointed at the previous meeting. President W. B. Brown outlined the purposes of the newly organized body of local florists, which are: To provide a fund for newspaper publicity to be used at such times throughout the year that will be the most effective for the movement of the stock of cut flowers and plants that will in its effect prevent hereafter any of the so-called "gluts" that have in the past been a loss to the growers and a detriment to the trade in general. In this phase of the work of the Community Flower Shops it acts substantially as the sales end of the growers and wholesalers and in no manner antagonistic to those interests. Week end sales will be a permanent feature of the work outlined and Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays are designated as the week end period for special sales. The daily papers will carry advertisements of these sales the first of which will be held the week ending February 19, featuring a holly fern for $1.50 each. A Valentine advertisement is announced under the publicity plan and all the members names will appear in connection with every announcement made by the Community. The funds for this feature are to be furnished pro rata by every member whose name appears and all such bills will be paid monthly, but all purchases of stock for sales will be paid for on the Friday following the sale period of the same.

The purchasing committee at present is J. Klang, John Mast, Robert Jean and Louis Charvat, whose duties specifically will be to keep familiar with the available stock deemed most suitable for special sales and make the purchases and designate the distribution of the stock to the different subscribers after the meeting determine upon the choice of such stock for the purpose of special sales. The publicity committee is headed by A. Pochelon, with P. Papes and Walter Toepke as his associates. It is expected that nearly all of the retailers of the city will join the organization which proposes the elimination of any evils that may be met with and the adoption of any method deemed wise for the general advancement and improvement of the retail florists' business.

NOTES.

The second annual meeting and exhibition of the Michigan State Florists' Association will be held March 8-9, at Saginaw, and the local Armory will be used for the occasion. There are now 137 members and a strong effort will be made to have a big successful meeting and exhibition. Secretary Robert M. Plumb, Detroit, will try to fill a chartered car with visitors from here. Big preparations, it is understood, are being made to entertain the visitors.

Visitors: E. G. Westman, Chicago; S. S. Skidelsky, New York.

OBITUARY.

Louis H. Schaefer.

Louis H. Schaefer, former secretary of the Florists' Club, of Albany, N. Y., died there, age 56 years. The deceased was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., coming to Albany in 1894. Mr. Schaefer was an experienced seedsman and had learned the business from some of the oldest firms in New York. A few years ago he organized the seed house of Louis H. Schaefer & Son. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Louis and Henry.

John S. Nicholas.

John S. Nicholas, proprietor of the flower and fruit store at the Grand Central terminal, New York, died February 16, age 68 years. Mr. Nicholas was born on the Isle of Crete, coming to the United States in 1886. Beginning in a small way as a florist, he eventually became very successful, and was the owner of considerable real estate. He is survived by his wife and two sons, who ably assisted him in business.

Albert S. McDonald,

Albert S. McDonald, for more than 50 years a prominent florist of Boston, Mass., was buried from his late residence in Lexington, February 13. Mr. McDonald served throughout the Civil War as a lieutenant and was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He is survived by his widow, one son, Arthur and a grandson, Albert F. McDonald.

Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club.

It was a surprise to most of the members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club to see such a large attendance at the regular meeting February 1, 1921. Of course it was election night and the contest was spirited. The election resulted as follows: President, John Barnet; Vice-President, J. C. Walley; Secretary, Carl Becherer; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, John Costoff; Executive committee: Augustus Friskhorn, E. C. Reineman and Julius W. Ludwig. Each of the winners gave a little speech pledging their best efforts for the good of the club. After partaking of the lunch prepared by our genial De Forest Ludwig, we were entertained with humorous stories from France and England by the speaker of the evening, J. B. Sheridan, who has seen service in the great war. To put it mildly he certainly gained the attention of the club members and visitors during his speech.

It was also carnation night, but the exhibits promised from novelty growers, failed to arrive in time for the meeting. The McCallum Co. showed Belle Washburn; James Murphy showed Laddie, Matchless and White Wonder; John Carman displayed some splendid seedling carnations of his own raising. The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. presented roses, Premier and Milady, which were much admired. Some splendid cyclamen were shown by John Carman and William Thomson.

The visitors included: C. E. Ganton, William Jones, H. C. Girton and Wm. Graham of the Western Pennsylvania Florists' Associtaion; F. S. La Bar of the La Bar Nurseries, Stroudsburg, Pa.; C. Colyn Jr., of the firm of C. Colyn & Sons, Voorhout, Holland, and P. W. Popp of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Of all months in the year,
Curse a fair Februeer.
—Old English Saying.

THE warm weather is said to be responsible for the large quantity of Paper White narcissus blooms on the various cut flower markets.

ST. VALENTINE business, which was expected to show some falling off on account of the day coming in Lent this year, is reported generally good.

DIRECT mail advertising by retailers is being taken up this season to a greater extent than ever before. Most of the literature is that prepared by publishers who make a specialty of this form of publicity.

Plant Quarantine No. 37.

PROVISIONS FOR PLANT INTRODUCTIONS

In addition to the unlimited commercial entry which is permitted under Quarantine 37 of certain classes of plants, it is perhaps now generally understood that provision is made under Regulation 14 of this quarantine for the importation of all other plants whatsoever in quantities to meet any legitimate introduction needs. In order to give a fair opportunity to secure necessary stocks for such purposes, the board will issue to all applicants during the first two-year period of the quarantine special permits for any particular plant variety, new or old, unavailable commercially in the United States. In other words, such permits will not be refused to late-comers because permits for perhaps quantities of the plant concerned have already been issued to others. A two year period, however, would seem to be sufficient to allow practically all plant propagators opportunity to stock up with unavailable plants. Thereafter the issuance of permits for such plants will be made absolutely dependent on a showing of need and of commercial unavailability in the United States. It should go without saying that this provision will not restrict the issuance of special permits for the importation of new horticultural creations or discoveries.

This decision of the board is to correct a situation which had arisen in the administration of the quarantine where permits were being refused with respect to plants for which entry had previously been authorized and it was felt that it was better to give all an opportunity for a definite period to secure any of the plants which had once been authorized, rather than to arbitrarily stop the issuance of permits perhaps after only a few individuals had secured the plants in question, under the belief that sufficient stocks of these plants had already been imported. Importers and the public probably now fully understand that importation under special permits are only for reproduction purposes and the plants so imported must be kept for a period of one to five years, designated in the permit, and employed for such reproduction purpose under the control of the board and subject to such inspection from time to time as the board may require.

In this connection it may be a matter of interest to state that special permits under Regulation 14 have been issued, authorizing importation of approximately 5,000 different varieties of plants. Many of these varieties have been included in many different permits and the importation of some of them, notably in the case of bulbs and bulblets, has been authorized in very large quantities. Since the quarantine was promulgated some 650 permits have been issued for the entry for this purpose of the so-called "prohibited plants." These permits authorize the importation, if they can be found for purchase abroad, of upwards of 16,000,000 plants, including bulbs and bulblets, and also several hundred thousand ornamental and other plants. Importations made under these permits are now being successfully propagated and reproduced in hundreds of establishments in some 25 different states.

The policy of the board and the department of agriculture has been liberal as to the amount of plants which may be imported under these permits with the intention of giving ample opportunity to establish reproduction enterprises on as large a commercial scale as the market demands of this country warrant, and with the object of eliminating as rapidly as possible the dependency on foreign supplies and thus attaining the main purpose of the quarantine in greatly lessening the risk of entry of new plant pests.

Sweet Pea Bud Drop.

The results of our sweet pea bud drop studies this winter indicate that the lack of light causes the most of the drop. These results also indicate that the use of artificial light during periods of cloudy weather will greatly increase bloom production. In studying the effects of fertilizers and soil moisture on the bud drop, it was found that the buds began to drop on January 24 during a period of dark weather and they all continued to do so during the cloudy period until February 8 when a 100 watt mazda light was placed above the 12 plants used in the experiment. Twelve flowers were picked from these plants on February 10 and eight more on February 12. The weather continued cloudy during this period.

To check the effect of the light, a like number of buds of the same variety (Zvolaneks red) at the same stage of development were tagged in the college greenhouse, where bud dropping was also severe. These buds were tagged on February 9. On February 12 five out of the 13 buds under the light had made a full blossom while none of the buds without artificial light had developed any color. It is interesting to note that blossoms developed with artificial light on plots which had not up to this date produced a single bloom. Previous lack of bloom may have been influenced by the different fertilizer and water treatment. For the sake of gettting pronounced results the light was left burning night and day during the cloudy period but was turned off February 12 during the day as the sun appeared on that date.

This experience is given not because it is considered especially conclusive but because it is thought that florists might try it on a small scale during cloudy weather and draw their own conclusions. The effect of the light on other crops growing in the greenhouse probably need not be feared. In fact the few experimenters investigating this subject report that additional light has good or indifferent effects on forced plants. It is quite likely that the bud dropping of sweet peas is dependent upon the relation of the plant foods which the plant obtains and the amount of light secured. If blossoms can be secured during the cloudy days of the winter months with artificial light, florists will certainly profit financially.

Corrections.

In quoting James W. Heacock at the National Flower Growers' Association convention, in our issue of February 5, page 138, 50 per cent should read one-half of one per cent, which Mr. Heacock suggested as being more likely to find favor with growers who were being asked to join the association.

John Eitel & Son, Greencastle, Ind., call attention to the fact that in our report of the January meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, the award of a certificate of merit to their dark salmon sport of Enchantress Supreme was recorded as being made to a rose pink sport of the same variety.

BUSINESS ACTWE IN ALL BRANCHES.

Business has been rather active during the past week, and is the best week since the holiday season, and florists are accordingly well satisfied. The slump is now thought to be over and buying will be on a better plane from this time on. St. Valentine's day of course was one of the factors which stimulated trade towards the latter part of the week and indications point to an active trade. Many orders for corsages of violets and sweet peas were placed Saturday. Flowers as a rule are in good supply, with the possible exception of carnations, which are rather scarce. Roses, sweet peas, violets, narcissi and other flowers are plentiful. Prices are unchanged from the levels of the previous week and in fact there has been no material change for the past six weeks. Flowers are of good quality as there has been more sunshine to bring out the buds. Roses are probably the best feature in the ordinary trade. Carnations are also in good demand and the same is true of violets and sweet peas. Plants are plentiful and are selling briskly. They are principally cyclamens, primroses and orchids. Jonquils are selling well also and the same is true of Roman hyacinths and freesias. Both single and double violets are in the market and both are rather strong. Funeral work has been rather brisk and party orders are also good, although Lent is at hand and these are not expected to continue as active as formerly.

NOTES.

Walter A. Jones, head of W. R. Jones & Co., makers of greenhouse glass, is mourning the death of his mother, Mrs. Lydia Davidson Jones, who died recently at Los Angeles, Calif., from the effects of an automobile accident. She was the widow of W. R. Jones, the founder of the company. The burial took place at Kent.

T. J. Ludwig, head of the company bearing his name, and Walter Stephens, a florist at the Greenlawn cemetery greenhouses, are working for the reorganization of the Florists' Club. A meeting will soon be called of leading florists and a temporary organization will be formed. Many florists are in favor of the reorganization.

The Art Floral Co. had an attractive window display just prior to St. Valentine's day. In the window were choice cut flowers, plants and many valentines. The store has been enjoying excellent patronage under the new management.

Albany, N. Y.

About 200 members of the Albany County Market Growers' Cooperative Association and their wives and friends held at dinner at the Hampton hotel on February 8. Harvey Holmes, the secretary, was toastmaster. The speakers included: Congressman Peter G. Ten Eyck; County Judge George Addington; Roy S. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Attorney William T. Byrne. Closer cooperation among producers was the main theme of the gathering.

The death of Louis H. Schaefer, former secretary of the Florists' Club, is noted in the obituary column.

The piece was presented by Italian and other members of musical societies, "Who Say It With Flowers."

Coppersmith

Burpee's New Dahlia for 1921

COPPERSMITH Dahlia is an ideal garden variety which is unsurpassed for cutting or general decorative work. The habit of the plant is perfect, the growth sturdy and upright and only of medium height.

COPPERSMITH blooms early and continuously, and is most floriferous. The plants are literally smothered with flowers, which are borne clear above the foliage on stiff, wiry stems. In type it is midway between Peony-flowered and Duplex.

One of the outstanding features of COPPERSMITH is its glorious autumn color, which may be described as a pleasing shade of light copper or bronze, with a glistening-like suffusion of salmon-yellow. The reverse side of the petals is reddish-bronze.

For the past three seasons COPPERSMITH has been one of the most admired varieties in our dahlia fields at Fordhook. Although brilliant in daytime, the unique color of COPPERSMITH is intensified under artificial light. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the Dahlia Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, September, 1920.

Strong plants, $2.00 each; 3 for $5.00; $20.00 per dozen, postpaid.

VALENTINE DEMAND GOOD.

The demand for stock for Valentine day was good but not as brisk as some expected. Several of the wholesalers report that the total sales were considerably below those of Valentine week last year while others say that they were almost equal if not better. The out-of-town demand was not as heavy as it should have been but the city trade was surprisingly good. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and prices were reasonable. Violets had a good call and sold at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50 per 100, which of course refers to the New York doubles. Single violets sold at fairly good prices. Orchids and lily of the valley were plentiful and no complaints were received in regard to the prices asked on these two items. Sweet peas were in short supply and commanded high prices. Tulips, jonquils, Paper White narcissus, freesia, calendulas, daisies, pansies, mignonette, stevia and other miscellaneous seasonable stock was included in the offerings. American Beauty roses had a good call and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. Cecile Brunner and Nesbit were in strong demand and cleaned up quickly. Other roses suitable for corsage work moved nicely while roses in general had a good call. Carnations were in large supply and reasonable in price. Blooming plants played an important part in the Valentine demand this year especially hyacinths, tulips, cyclamens, jonquils, cinerarias and primroses. The weather was ideal for the occasion and while business was not as brisk as it might possibly have been some were pretty well satisfied with the results considering the general conditions and have no complaint whatever to make.

NOTES.

The Alpha Floral Co. report that its sales for Valentine week were the best in years with a strong demand for violets and sweet peas. Johnson & Chronis were pleased with the sales at the Forty-seventh street store. James Mollar, of the Alpha Floral Co., will neither deny nor confirm the report that he is going to join the ranks of the benedicts.

Gust Alles, of Wietor Bros., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his 12-year-old son Raymond, whose death occurred February 12. The funeral was held from the home the following Monday morning with services at St. Henry's church and interment at St. Henry's cemetery.

B. Juergens and son Fred of Peoria passed through here this week enroute to New York, where the latter will enter the auto business with an uncle.

Do not take any fake or imitation thread, claimed to be the Meyer silkaline, or smilax threads. Be sure the name Meyer in on the end of each spool, as we find there are a lot of fake brands being put on the market to imitate our green florists' thread. Weigh up our threads and then weigh up the other parties' that you are buying from and you will notice that our threads run full two ounces of thread to the spool. Be sure and get the Meyer thread.

HEAVY SUPPLY CREATES LOW PRICES

The past week found the market very much glutted in regards to bulbous stock and long roses. Short roses are slightly scarce but long ones are to be had in any number. The Lenten season coming on has something to do with the business, it being this way almost every year. However, St. Valentine's day helped matters somewhat.

Spring flowers of all kinds, such as freesia, daffodils, hyacinths, tulips and Paper White narcissi are to be had at a fairly reasonable price. Freesia can be had at $4 to $6 per hundred and hyacinths and daffodils the same; good tulips are still bringing $8 per hundred. Carnations are now arriving in good numbers and quality, owing to the bright weather during the past two weeks, and are selling at $6 to $8 per hundred. Some white Buddleia Asiatica arrived and went well, owing to the scarcity of novelty stock. Sweet peas are now coming in good condition and selling fairly well, only the inferior grades are left. Owing to the limited amount arriving the price was high at $5 per hundred. Snapdragon, calendulas, primulas and Marguerite daisies are arriving in goodly numbes and going well. Lily of the valley is now to be had at this market and at fairly low figure of $8 per hundred. The past week found quite an abundance of blooming plants, including begonias, cyclamens, primulas and bulbous stock.

IMPROVED CONDITIONS HELP MARKET.

The mild weather during the past week has effected the trade to a large extent. The sale of violets and other spring flowers has increased considerably. Valentine bouquets both for corsage and home are to be seen in practically all the florists' windows. They offered some very attractive valentine and surprise boxes at very moderate prices to attract the Valentine day trade. Prices remain about the same. It may be said that the most fashionable valentine this season was a corsage of violets and roses, or orchids and sweet peas, calendulas and other combinations. The supply of flowers on the market is not enough to fill the demand. Roses and carnations are headliners with narcissi both yellow and white, calendulas, sweet peas, and lily of the valley following closely in popularity. Greens are limited this week and the demand is great with prices good. Many windows are showing fine specimen plants of tulips both common and Darwin varieties. Hyacinths are not seen as yet. Such plants as cyclamens, primulas, stevia, ferns, draecenas and other pot plants play an important part in the decorations. A few callas are on display and Lillian Harrisii is plentiful. The supply of snapdragons is increasing but the quality of the blooms is not of the best. Freesia is a good seller this week and is retailing at $1.50 to $2 per dozen. There is an increase in the quantity of bulbous plants coming onto the market, but the demand is greater than the supply. It is feared that there will be a bad shortage of Easter lilies due to the excessively mild weather for the past 10 days.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting February 10, President W. A. Rowe presiding. A subject discussed was the "State Flower for Missouri." The Club was addressed by Miss Betty Boyd, who stated there were two flowers before the legislature—the red haw and the daisy. It was moved that the Club go on record favoring the daisy, but it was thought the wild rose, a more representative flower, would be better. J. F. Ammanns, Edwardsville, Ill., gave a short talk. A carnation show was held in connection with the meeting. Several new seedlings were sent by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., and locally by J. W. Steidel. The judges awarded a certificate for both the new carnations, Harvester, a white, and Edna, a red type, each of which gained sufficient points to be awarded a certificate by the Club. A new seedling exhibited by J. W. Steidel was also awarded a certificate

MOST STOCK IN GOOD DEMAND

With the coming of Lent there has been a slight falling off in trade, although everything gives promise of a big Valentine trade, for advance orders are being booked. Bulbous stock such as tulips, daffodils and jonquils, poeticus, Paper White narcissi and fressia, are very plentiful and in great demand. Sweet peas are excellent just at present. There has been a decided drop in the price of roses, and the quality is very good. Lily of the valley is plentiful and so are catteleyas and orchids. Pansies, yellow daisies, forget-me-nots and some late stevia are on sale. Blooming plants of all kinds are available for Valentine's day.

NOTES

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Association was held February 11. The new officers were installed, after which T. M. Campbell gave an interesting talk on "Paternalism Gone to Seed," in which he discussed the interference of federal and state governments with the agricultural and horticultural industries. Plans have been started for a flower show this fall. Ambrose H. Secker, our new secretary, is makings things move by sending out snappy announcements.

TRADE CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED

Trade the past week has been about as good as could be expected. Social events and weddings were not as numerous as earlier in the month. Stock is becoming more plentiful. Roses are in good supply, also carnations, while bulb stock is to be seen in profusion in all stores and at variable prices. Pot plants seem to have a ready sale. Funeral work has been somewhat plentiful.

The event of last week was the opening of S. A. Anderson's new flower shop, which took place February 10. The new store is about as up-to-date in every particular as could be wished for. The store is patterned after the Adam period and is of the most delicate design. Deep ivory is the color of the walls and arched ceiling. The handsome medallion work has been done in robin's egg blue. The incidental furniture and appointments are in keeping with the main design. A refrigeration system with thermostat attachment has been installed by Mr. Anderson to insure the stock being kept in perfect condition and at a proper temperature. The location of the store is the oldest in Buffalo, being opened on November 20, 1872, by Elias and David B. Long, and with the exception of a short period when it was the home of the German-American bank it has been a flower shop. The store was thronged with people all day admiring the shop and the handsome display of plants baskets and cut stock. Several baskets were sent by florist friends and others in the trade, and by the Retail Florists' Association.

INCREASED DEMAND CLEANS UP STOCK.

The market has been quiet up to the last of the week, when the demand increased and stock cleared up very well, with little or no advance in prices. Carnations and roses are the leaders, with bulbs following closely. Jonquils have shortened up but the easy demand has kept the price down. Freesia is arriving in fairly good quantity and cleans up with difficulty. There is a large amount of peas coming in but they are mostly short stem and of rather mediocre quality. The long stem peas clean up fairly well from day to day but at only a fair price. Violets are in good demand, which is owing to the fact that the growers are only picking enough flowers to fill current orders. The outlook for Valentine's day on violets is very promising and consequently they are holding them for a better price. Sweetheart roses are also in good demand and bring good prices. Callas are not selling well and move only with great urging. Gardenias are also more or less of a drug.

General trade conditions here are improving and there are fewer men out of work than in December last. The florists' business in January was good, but February shows a slight falling off. DECIDED DECLINE IN PRICES.

Business the past week as compared with the same period a year ago has been anything but satisfactory. Prices are now not half what they were last February and the same can be said of the demand. There has been no life to the market, which considering the light demand, was overstocked particularly with daffodils, which in two weeks dropped from $12.50 to $3 a hundred. There was considerable said about cold feet, but the fact is there was far too much stock bought and at one time, with the inevitable fall in price to as low a level as any pre-war time. Carnations are much more plentiful and hold their own fairly well; the stocks of some of the growers are of excellent quality, but there is also a lot of short stemmed inferior flowers that is far below standard. Roses are backing up a little, particularly specials, the call being for 12 to 15 cent grades and shorter. The specials that should bring 20 and 25 cents are being tabooed as the storekeepers say customers will not pay the price. Very good sweet peas are seen in quantity, and sell about as well as anything; the choice long stemmed stock is fine. Violets have been too plentiful but sold well for the week and for Valentine's day. There appears to be enough lily of the valley but much of it does not grade up very well. This flower should be left to specialists, who by producing superior stock would soon get it in favor again. Snapdragon is slowly coming to the front; it will soon be seen in quantity. Larkspur will be cutting in about 10 days; it was very good stock last year. Formosum lilies now are chosen before Giganteum, their full bushy foliage, stiffer stems and better flowers making them favorites. Callas are much more plentiful with a shading in price. Mignonettes of high grade move slowly. There is very good forget-me-not which brought $8 a hundred sprays, for Valentine's day. Cattleyas were in good demand at last week's prices.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

Dan Cupid with his quiver of darts or arrows was about as busy as usual; flowers were his medium where they were invitingly displayed and featured, and a number of the stores were kept busy supplying his demand. The H. H. Battles, Century, J. J. Habermehl's Sons, Pennock Bros., Chas. H. Grakelow, Robert Craig Co., Chas. H. Fox, L. A. Geiger, John C. Gracey, Victor Ridenour, Chas. B. Stahl, London Flower Shop, Bellevue-Stratford, Vollers House of Flowers and Ritz-Carleton stores who made a bid for the Valentine trade were pleased with the business of the day. Corsages in fancy heart-shaped boxes, baskets and boxes of loose flowers, decorated plants and plant baskets together with Valentine novelties in paper and china figured flower holders, were the features. Chas. H. Fox offered a standard rose tree of pink wooden roses which were very attractive. The fact that flowers of all kinds were more plentiful and much cheaper than last year, less than half the price in fact, helped some, but only those who came to buy, as this important fact was not advertised. Except for the direct by mail circulars, there was very little publicity, only a few about the Square having advertisements in the newspapers. There was a fair out of town demand on Friday and Saturday and a fairly good local business on Monday in the commission houses, but nothing like the cleanup of last year, for the reason that there is twice the stock in the market as there was a year ago. One large dealer stated that it was up to the retailer now to adjust his prices as the wholesale men had done, and help work off the increased stocks that were now coming into the market.

NOTES.

The business for Valentine's day was very good where the proper bid was made for it. Pennock Bros. had been featuring it in window decorations for three weeks and had all the trade they could handle. J. J. Habermehl's Sons filled up a number of small plant baskets with Primula malacoidies, hyacinths, cyclamens, and ferns. These were very chic when ribboned, making acceptable valentines. Charles H. Grakelow also ran small plant baskets and baskets of cut flowers. All the stores handled Valentine kiddies in both paper with caps for flowers and the more expensive bisque figures. All the stores pushed the flowering plants: primroses, cyclamens, freesias, daffodils in pots and hyacinths and tulips in pots and pans.

One wholesaler quoting from the Valentine price list of a retailer said that his prices were outrageous, $2.50 per dozen for daffodils, that he could buy for $3 to $4 a hundred, $3 to $4 a dozen for carnations costing 6 to 8 cents each, and so on through the list. A legitimate profit was right and just but such gouging should be corrected by the trade in some way.

The first subway flower shop in this city was opened by the Colonial Florists on the level of the subway platform, 13th street station, under the Colonial bank, 13th and Market streets. The proprietors are Messrs. Mullen, Cohen and Nelson. They have for some time carried on a street stand in front of the Colonial bank.

Charles H. Grakelow was the guest at dinner of the Florists' Club of Scranton on Thursday night last, after which he made a fine address on "Organization." As a result 27 new members were added to the membership.

The Leo Niessen Co. had a very good Valentine's day demand, particularly all from out of town. Lilacs, carnations, roses, sweet peas and bulbous stock were quantity items of their sales.

Now for Easter is the foreword of the H. Bayersdorfer Co. Sydney Bayersdorfer declared it was the best Valentine day's business they had ever had.

Callas, Easter lilies, daffodils and sweet peas were leaders of the Berger Bros. stock. There was a good clean-up at the week end.

Wm. J. Baker passed his eightieth milestone on Wednesday and we are pleased to say is in very good health.

Visitors: J. H. McVea, of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

DECLINE IN PRICES NOTED

Business was exceptionally dull during the greater part of last week, with falling prices on all stocks, excepting American Beauty roses, and gardenias, which on account of a scarcity held up American Beauties to $18 and gardenias to $9 per dozen wholesale. Tea roses, carnations, bulbous and a variety of miscellaneous stock are much cheaper than they were two weeks ago. February 12 being Lincoln's birthday and a holiday, there was a little more activity in the retail stores than on the preceding days of the week, but it was far below what it should have been.

February 14.—The buyers seem to be expecting a good St. Valentine's day business as they arrived early, and with fair weather and an abundance of stock at reasonable prices it should be a good day.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The Club met in its hall in the Engineering Building on February 14. President I. S. Hendrickson presiding. It being Ladies' Night the president called the meeting to order promptly at 7:30 P. M. so that the business could be quickly transacted. The budget committee reported, but as there was then but a small number of members present it was voted to table the report until next meeting in order to place the matter before a larger number of members. Chas. H. Totty and Arthur Herrington made favorable reports on the outlook for the spring show. A meeting of the committee had been held at the secretary's office in the afternoon. Roman J. Irwin reported on the Club's annual banquet to be held March 17. The committee on awards judged the exhibits and will report at next session. A. M. Henshaw spoke of further activities at the Allied Florists' Association. See report of the meeting elsewhere in this issue. The deaths of Charles Millang and Thomas Boothe DeForest, life members, were reported and a commitee appointed to prepare suitable resolutions. Elected to membership were the following: Arbur R. Addy, 808 Lenox Road, Flatbush, Brooklyn; Allen W. Edminster, 174 Emerson Place, Brooklyn; Wm. McLeod, Roslyn, N. Y., and Bernard Rynveld, 61 Vesey street. A new pink carnation named Leona, grown and introduced by John Eitel & Sons, Greencastle, Ind., was exhibited. A new red carnation named Edna, grown by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., was also exhibited. Roman J. Irwin displayed two plants of giant cyclamens, grown by Leing & Winnefeld, Hackensack, N. J.; H. Langler, New York, exhibited a painting of a new iris, Filfolia Imperator, which had taken prizes at Amsterdam and Haarlem, Netherlands. After the brief business session the floor was cleared for dancing. There were also recitations and instrumental music by a company of entertainers. Chairman Gerlaird and his house committee assisted by a corps of waiters served supper at 10 o'clock. There was a large gathering for the dance and entertainment and it was a successful affair.

NOTES.

The Chas. A. Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, displayed a large portrait of Lincoln in a border of palm leaves, with a fine American flag as a background. In another fine window of this store, during the past week, there has been an elaborate St. Valentine's decoration.

George Hanges, vice-president of the Greek-American Florists' Association, is now one of the busiest men in the trade. Up town he has two retail stores to look after and he superintends a large restaurant on 14th street. An additional activity is the chairmanship of the committee on decorations for the ball of the Association. In this last feature he is now deeply interested as he says it must be artistic in every way.

In the show window of Hession's store, Madison avenue and 76th street, there was a most appropriate reminder of Lincoln; a large portrait of him encircled by a handsome wreath decorated with the national colors. In the wings there was a small log cabin and a pile of miniature split rails. A wreath of flowers were appropriately arranged with the exhibits.

Chairman Roman J. Irwin of the dinner committee of the Florists Club announces that the 34th annual dinner dance of the Club will be held at the Biltmore hotel on the evening of March 16. The tickets are $7 each and Chairman Irwin requests those who propose to attend, to make early reservations. His address is 43 W. 18th street.

Alexander Kupperman, former manager of Fleischman's Hudson terminal store and his wife, bookkeeper there for the past seven years, have opened up a large retail establishment at 74 Trinity place in the heart of the downtown business and financial district.

Malandre Bros., Broadway and 72nd street, have as a centerpiece for their window decorations two large and beautifully flowered acacias, a variety of other plants and spring flowers being distributed in the wings.

William Hanft, a well known designer and decorator, with A. Meyer, Madison avenue and 80th street, is on the sick list with influenza.

An account of the meeting of growers held in this city on February 11, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The location is within two minutes' walk of the old store, High avenue being at the corner of 2135 Ontario street. The lease is perpetual.

Tariff Hearings.

CLOVER AND GRASS SEED SECTION.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Representatives of the field seed industry today appeared before the house ways and means committee, holding hearings on the tariff, to urge that congress take no steps to place a duty upon seeds. The retention of seeds on the free list, it was declared, would be of inestimable value to the American farmer, whereas the levying of a duty would be followed almost surely by retaliatory measures of a like nature by the countries from which we now import.

"The country produces an oversupply of certain kinds of seed, which it cannot consume but must export," said William G. Scarlett, president of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, who acted as spokesman for the seed delegation, "while it does not produce sufficient of other kinds to supply our home demand.

"America is normally in a position to export large quantities of timothy, Kentucky bluegrass, meadow fescue and red top, while at the same time she is under the necessity of importing large supplies of crimson, alsike, alfalfa and white clover, Canada bluegrass, orchard and rye grass, rape and vetches. An import tax on these would produce a very small revenue, but the bad influence on the American farmer would far outweigh the small gain from revenue collected.

"If America places import duties upon seeds now on the free list, it is reasonable to expect that foreign countries will promptly retaliate with duties aimed against our export trade in seeds. This congress just recently passed legislation designed to encourage foreign trade, and here surely is a specific instance where foreign trade can be furthered by simply allowing existing conditions to continue unmodified.

"Inasmuch as we already have a carefully enacted and rigidly enforced federal seed import act, which effectually prevents seed of inferior and unknown quality from gaining entrance into America, import duties are not needed as a protection against the dumping of low-grade European seed in this country. Import duties on field seeds would tend artificially to restrict stocks and thus hold up American seed prices and increase the cost to the ultimate consumer—the farmer."

Mr. Scarlett told the committee that during his experience as a seedsman—since 1894—field seeds have been on the free list, and he declared that to remove them from that list now would be of serious consequence, not only to the seed trade but to the country at large.

Mr. Scarlett was accompanied at the hearing by F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C.; Marshall H. Duryea, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York; and Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, representing the American Seed Trade Association. B. F. L.

Field Seeds.

A slight improvement in the demand was noted in some of the seed markets during the week ending February 5, but others indicated that conditions showed but little change from those prevailing during January. Some seeds were being quoted a little lower than last week but on the whole there were no large recessions in prices. During the past 30 days, however, the decline in prices has been rather marked in the case of red and alsike clover, which are about $2.50 per 100 lbs. lower, and sweet clover which is about $1.50 lower.

Declines of 25 cents to 50 cents were recorded during the same period for timothy, Sudan grass, golden, common, Siberian and broom-corn millet, and amber and orange sorgo; declines of about 15 cents occurred on kafir and milo. Seed grain prices dropped 5 cents to 15 cents in some markets. Prices during the past 30 days were fairly well maintained for redtop, Kentucky bluegrass, orchard grass, Japanese millet, rape, common vetch, Canada field peas, and cowpeas. Soy beans and lespedeza prices increased a little.

CLOVERS

Approximately 750,000 lbs. of red clover seed from France and 16,000 lbs. from Italy arrived at New York during the week. Red and alsike clover prices declined about 50 cents per 100 lbs. in most markets. The movement of these seeds from the growers and country shippers is increasing weekly and seedsmen's stocks are becoming more nearly normal for this time of year. The local demand for these seeds continues fair to good in many cities but orders placed by country dealers are smaller than usual.

Lespedeza prices were advanced in Richmond and St. Louis. During the past few weeks there has been a freer movement of lespedeza from growers at prices ranging from $12 to $16 per 100 lbs. and more than half of the 1920 crop has been sold by growers.

GRASSES

There were only a few changes in quotations of the inportant kinds of grass seeds. In a few markets timothy was quoted about 25 cents lower than last week. The export demand for timothy has continued to be fair. During the week about 112,000 lbs. were exported to the United Kingdom from New York and 50,000 lbs. to Ireland from Baltimore. Redtop exports amounted to about 24,000 lbs., of which 22,680 lbs. were billed for England. Meadow fescue exports to the United Kingdom and Scandinavia totaled 32,368 lbs. and were made from New York. Arrivals at New York of approximately 50,000 lbs. of rye grass from the United Kingdom and 10,000 lbs. from Germany were reported, likewise 9,000 lbs. of orchard grass from Scandinavia.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

At the annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association, held at Hartford February 10, officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Henry W. Gottschalk, Manchester, president; Wm. W. McCartney, New Haven, vice-president; Frank J. Rippim, Manchester, secretary; Wm. W. Hunt, Hartford, treasurer.

Ohio State Nurserymen's Association.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Ohio State Nurserymen's Association was held at the New Southern Hotel, Columbus, Feb. 3, 1921. Almost every nursery of the state was represented. Out-of-state nurseries were Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. Y.; Rice Bros. Co., Geneva, N. Y., and P. H. Stannard Co., Ottawa, Kan. The meeting was called to order by the president, W. F. Bohlander. After the transaction of the business of the association, the program, covering matters of vital interest to our members, was presented and discussed. The general feeling of the members of the association was optimistic and a good, healthy spring business predicted. The Farm Bureau, with 75,000 members, was in session in the capital during the week, and this was pointed out as a good field for educating the public in general to the importance of planting our products and showing the class of stock we handle, by placing on exhibit at the next annual Farm Bureau meeting, a display of general line of nursery stock, showing different grades, sizes and shapes of commercial planting stock.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Chas. Ernst, Eaton, president; T. L. Byers, Clyde, vice-president; Clarence Liebenthaler, Dayton, treasurer, and A. R. Pickett, Clyde, treasurer.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association was held at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, February 9-10, President A. M. Augustine, presiding. Miles Bryant, Princeton, who took for his subject, "Readjustment and the Nurseries," brought out that it would be necessary to systematize labor employed by nurserymen, so that they would be able to cope with any glut in the market that might occur. Another address that might be especially mentioned, was the one presented by Dr. K. F. Kellerman of the Federal Horticultural board, Washington, D. C., on the "Value of the U. S. A. Bureau of Plant Industry to Nurserymen." He told of the great fight that his bureau is waging in fighting pests, and that through the operation of Plant Quarantine No. 37, a great service has been rendered nurserymen.

Other papers presented were "Activities of the Bureau of Plant Industry," by P. A. Glenn, Chief Inspector, Urbana; "Systematization," by J. L. Jacobson, Business Engineer; "Not Readjustment but Expansion," by M. Mierisch, Glenview; "Making an Income Report," by Edward J. Forrest, United States Internal Revenue department, Chicago, and "Nursery Sprayings," by Prof. W. S. Brock, State university, Urbana.

The following officers were elected to serve during the coming year: A. M. Augustine, Normal, president; Arthur Hill, Dundee, vice president; J. A. Young, Aurora, secretary, and Miles Bryant, treasurer. Executive board: J. A. Young.

Firms represented at the meeting included the following:

Ageratum Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that it is a blue, a decided blue, that will be continually in bloom, in our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about 8 to 10 inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense truss of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can very easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 15.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $7.00 to $9.00; leaf lettuce, per box, 22½ to 25 cents.

New York, February 11.—Cucumbers, per dozen, 75 cents to $4.00; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $4.00.

Tomato Fertilizer Demonstration.

Final reports on two of the Webster county fertilizer demonstrations have been received by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture from County Agent Thomasson. An increase of 4,560 pounds an acre in use of 16 per cent acid phosphate, 4,578 pounds from 3—12—0 fertilizer, and 4,240 pounds from 3—12—3 fertilizer was shown on one plot of rather fertile second bottom land. These tomatoes were sold at 75 cents per 100 pounds, giving the owner a return of $34.20 for 200 pounds of acid phosphate, $34.40 for a like amount of 3—12—0 fertilizer, and $32.40 for the 3—12—3 brand. A thinner plot gave less returns with the fertilizer used. An increase of 2,940 pounds an acre from the use of 16 per cent acid phosphate, 3,064 pounds from the 3—12—0 fertilizer, and 4,104 pounds from 3—12—3 fertilizer was shown on this plot of thin upland soil. These tomatoes selling at 75 cents per 100 pounds gave the owner a return of $22.05 for 200 pounds of acid phosphate, $22.98 for a like amount of 3—12—0 fertilizer, and $30.78 for the 3—12—3 brand.

Fertilizer, in all cases, was applied at the rate of 200 pounds an acre. The tomatoes were valued at 75 cents per 100 pounds, some of which were sold at that price, but it was lower than the market price.

It will be seen that acid phosphate was by far the most economical fertilizer on the fertile land. On the thin land, the 3—12—3 gave $8.72 more returns to the acre than did the acid phosphate, but the phosphate gave splendid returns for the money invested. In both cases, 3—12—0 made a slight gain over acid phosphate, but on the fertile land, the phosphate produced 320 pounds more to the acre than the 3—12—3 fertilizer.

Hartford, Conn.

The Florists Club held its meeting February 9. Plans were discussed for the convention and exhibition of the American Carnation and the American Rose Societies, which will be held in Hartford, in January, 1922. Vice President-elect, Newell C. Osborn, of the American Carnation Society, was present and gave an account of the recent convention and exhibition held at Washington, D. C. Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, was also in attendance and gave a short talk. The proposition of a state organization of florists, which had been taken up at the January meeting and for which a committee had been named, received favorable consideration. On this committee were Messrs. Regan, Waterbury, chairman; Thomson, Hartford; Greenbacker, Meridian, and Dawson, Willimantic. This committee will report at a later date. It has not yet been decided what hall or building will house the exhibitors. The officers of the club are as follows: President, William Thomson, Hartford; vice president, J. Andrew, Bristol; secretary, George B. Marchant, Hartford; treasurer, J. Albert Brodrib, Hartford.

NOTES

The Hartford retailers made splendid St. Valentine's displays in their show windows the week preceding the date, and as one of then expressed it, "tried to make the most of it." There were noteworthy features at the Welsh Flower Shop, Spear & McManus Co. and John Coombs.

At the range of the W. W. Thomson Co. a fine crop of sweet peas, in all the popular colors, is being cut.

The Killarney rose pays him the best, states Carl Peterson at the Whitney greenhouse.

At the John Coombs range, of which N. C. Osborn is foreman, there is a large stock of roses and carnations. Laddie is doing well there.

Thomas Cogger, grower of gladioli, Melrose, Mass., spent February 9 and 10 in this city and attended the Florists' Club meeting.

George G. McClure is giving away a neat card on which is the motto, "Say It With Flowers," and a picture of the "lowing kine" winding "slowly o'er the lea."

A bowling team from the Florists' Club will play against a team from the A. N. Pierson, Inc., range at Bristol, February 22. A. F. F.

Nashville, Tenn.

STOCK IN GOOD SUPPLY.

The near approach to St. Valentine's Day brings a prospect of another harvest to the florists, and everywhere one can see beautifully decorated windows and the pretty plants and flowers displayed therein. There is, no doubt that it will be observed extensively. Novelties in the way of Valentine boxes, which will also hold the flowers as a vase, are something entirely new this season and will appeal to a large number of buyers. Roses and carnations which are blooming more freely than for some weeks past, will for the most part supply the cut flower demand. Violets will be scarce, and few are being raised here now. Lily of the valley, hyacinths, Paper Whites and Yellow narcissi will make of the day a complete success. There will be cyclamen, all colors in profusion, potted hyacinths, primulas of all kinds and tulips. Corsage bouquets will be largely in demand.

A violent but short hailstorm did considerable damage to some of the florists. C. H. Tritchler suffered a loss between $200 and $300, principally glass, as well as L. H. Haury & Sons, who were damaged to the extent of $600.

SEEDS.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date dahlias in existence. No place in the world have dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of peony, cactus and decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised dahlias from it; but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs. Price, $0.50 per package.

RICHARD DIENER CO., INC.
Kentfield Marin County, Calif.

THE DIENER TOMATO

Increase your tomato yield one hundred per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30-40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains very little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED: Sample pkg., 25c; one-quarter of an acre pkg., 50c; one acre pkg., $1.50.

Society of American Florists.

Meeting of the Executive Board, New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., January 24-25, 1921.

Many Problems Discussed.

The annual meeting of the executive board of the Society of American Florists was held at the New Willard hotel, Washington, D. C., on January 24-25. President Thomas Roland called the Board to order at 9:30 a. m. on January 24, and appointed A. L. Miller, who volunteered for the office, sergeant-at-arms. Roll call showed the following directors to be present: President Thomas Roland, Vice-President Adolph Gude, Secretary John Young, Treasurer J. J. Hess, Joseph H. Hill, C. C. Pollworth, Herman P. Knoble, Paul R. Klingsporn, Thomas H. Joy, Carl Hagenberger, Ex-President A. L. Miller, W. F. Gude, George Asmus, Henry Penn, Robert Pyle, Charles W. Johnson, J. F. Ammann, I. S. Hendrickson, Joseph Kohout, W. A. Rowe, A. Rasmussen, Robert L. Graham Jr., W. H. Englehart and A. M. Campbell. After the credentials of the new members of the board had been passed upon, the minutes of the last meeting, as published, were, on motion, formally approved.

The secretary presented his financial report for the year ending December 31, 1920, showing as summarized in the auditors' report attached, receipts from all sources for the year to have been $22,511.85. This amount was shown to be about one half the amount collected for the year 1919, but this was largely accounted for by the fact of the reduction in receipts for life membership, only $745 being received during 1920, as against $24,550 in 1919. In the report of the auditors was a complimentary comment upon the completeness of the secretary's records. Disbursements by voucher totaled $25,875.46. A special statement was presented showing cost and income connected with the publication of the Society's Journal. A separate report made by the secretary, as superintendent of the trade exhibition at Cleveland, O., showed a balance or profit amounting to $6,354.60. The reports were, on motion, accepted and approved. In the course of a discussion on financial matters, it was brought out that a seeming large increase in the expenses of the administration headquarters in the last two years had been due very largely to the drive for life members, the expenses covering which, including the engrossing and framing of certificates, and incidentals, had all to come from the general fund, while life membership fees all went into the permanent fund intact. The new life members numbered 1,032, yielding over $25,000 to the permanent fund, and taking from the anual list a very large number of members whose dues were thus lost to the general fund. Mr. Asmus expressed the opinion that it could now be realized that the only way to increase the society's revenue would be to make a drive for new members.

The Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer J. J. Hess presented his report covering receipts and disbursements for the year 1920, with credit certificates from the different banks as to the amounts on deposit. The report showed a balance on hand for the general fund of $651.53, and in the permanent fund, including investments, of $49,443.47. Mr. Hess pointed out that there was the sum of $10,772.91 in the permanent fund to be invested. It being understood that all the financial reports should be turned over to the chairman of the finance and audit committee, Mr. Asmus moved that the finance and audit committee be given power to call a meeting, with the sanction of the secretary and president at a date to be determined upon later, and at that time to make the annual audit, and copies of that audit to be sent to each member of the executive board, and that the audit be reported at the convention in August. Mr. Campbell seconded the motion, and it was carried.

Secretary John Young referred to the installation of the new bookkeeping system authorized and directed by the finance and audit committee, and to a request for the services of a certified public accountant to audit the accounts of the different funds. The work was as yet incomplete, so there was only a partial report to make, but he would like, he said, to have the whole matter referred to the finance and audit committee. He then introduced Mr. Joyce of Joyce & Mattis, New York, certified public accountants, who he said would explain the new system to the board. Mr. Joyce then produced the proposed new books and other material, and proceeded to explain the system being installed, showing how a record could be kept of all transactions of the society on the books at the secretary's office, including a record of daily balances of the different funds in banks.

Report on Tariff and Legislation.

W. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation, made a verbal report for his committee, in which he stated that their work was now largely in regard to tariff matters. Tariff matters in general had, he said, been fully considered at a meeting of the committee in New York last December, at which it was decided to let well enough alone, and only seek rectification of a few ambiguities existing in the present tariff. The result of the meeting and the letter dispatched to the officials at Washington was published fully in all the trade papers. Since that meeting, however, the gladiolus growers were clamoring for the committee's help in their effort to have the duty on gladioli $10.00 per 1,000, instead of 50 cents as at present. There was to be a hearing next day, January 25, before the congressional committee on ways and means, at which the gladiolus duty was to be discussed, and he asked for a volunteer committee from the board to accompany him to the hearing.

This precipitated a long drawn out discussion as to whether or not a high tariff should be asked on Dutch bulbs as well as gladioli. Mr. Asmus led the discussion, insisting that a high tariff would stabilize the bulb business for American growers and prevent the dumping of surpluses from Holland growers into the United States at prices vastly lower than the prices obtained by the same growers for their earlier shipments. This sort of competition, he said, was ruinous to florists who had bought their bulbs at the high prices. Messrs. Hagenberger, Campbell, Rasmussen, Klingsporn, Knoble, Ammann, Miller, Rowe, Kohout, Penn, Hill and Hendrickson took part in the discussion, some on the negative side. Finally, a motion Mr. Ammann had made, "That this board go on record as recommending to the committee on tariff and legislation that it was advisable that a tariff not to exceed $10 per 1,000 be placed on all Dutch bulbs, and include gladioli for importation." Mr. Asmus seconded the motion, and a polled vote was called for the same, resulting in eleven votes in favor of the motion and ten opposing, two members not voting. The motion was declared by the chair to be adopted.

The discussion being resumed, there seemed to be a misunderstanding as to the scope of Mr. Ammann's motion. Mr. Hendrickson pointed out that Mr. Gude wanted the board's action as to gladiolus bulbs alone, and moved reconsideration of the motion, the motion being seconded by Mr. Ammann. This motion was duly passed. Then Mr. Ammann offered to withdraw his motion entirely, his offer being also acceptable to the seconder. The chair declaring the question again before the house, Mr. Hendrickson moved that a duty of $10 per 1,000 be asked on gladiolus bulbs. The motion was seconded by Mr. Hess. Some speakers expressed opinion that the matter had not been given sufficient consideration. The motion being finally put to the meeting was adopted unanimously. The matter of the Dutch bulbs was allowed to rest. The board then adjourned for lunch, as the guests of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Second Session.

Reconvening, the chair announced that the discussion of the desirability of a tariff on Dutch bulbs would be continued. Without speaking further on the subject, Mr. Asmus moved that a committee of five be appointed to gather data as to the feasibility of regulating the importation of bulbs, or to ascertain if there was a necessity for such regulation, and to report at the convention next August. Mr. Knoble seconded the motion, and it was carried. The chair remarked that he would appoint the committee from the board later.

Washington Convention Arrangements.

W. F. Gude reported on the possibilities for housing the convention. Wardman's Park inn, he said, was a first class hotel, about 15 minutes away from the Willard, which could house the trade exhibition, the meetings, and the president's reception all under the one roof, and there was a large lawn in front upon which tents could be erected to cover any exhibit which could not be taken into the building. There were about 5,000 rooms in the hotel, each an outside room, and probably 600 to 1,000 convention visitors could be accommodated. The hall in which the exhibition could be held was 60 ft. wide, 400 ft. long. Another building available was the Emery building, known as the census office, and a third was Convention hall, at Fifth and Case streets; he would like a committee to visit all three. Mr. Ammann moved that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the different propositions to report back to the board next morning. The motion was seconded and carried, and Messrs. Ammann, Asmus and Young were appointed the committee. Messrs. Asmus and Ammann were also appointed a committee to appear with Mr. Gude before the house ways and means committee.

On motion, a committee of three was ordered to be appointed to consider rates of space, program, etc. The board then went into a discussion as to what the program should cover. Although objection had been raised to long addresses, President Roland declared that the convention in Cleveland had been made interesting very largely by the speakers, whose topics were of interest to all. In this opinion he was joined by others, although it was suggested that speaking on business topics he restricted to daytime sessions. Mr. Kohout said that at the last meeting of the Flower Growers' Association of Chicago, it was resolved to request that the Society of American Florists bar artificial flowers from its trade exhibitions—artificial flowers of paper, wax or wood, not prepared foliage. Secretary Young stated that the same question was brought before the Minneapolis convention where it was beaten. It was a matter which had to come before the convention for ruling. Such flowers are barred from national flower shows, but it was considered that they were quite in order in a trade exhibition.

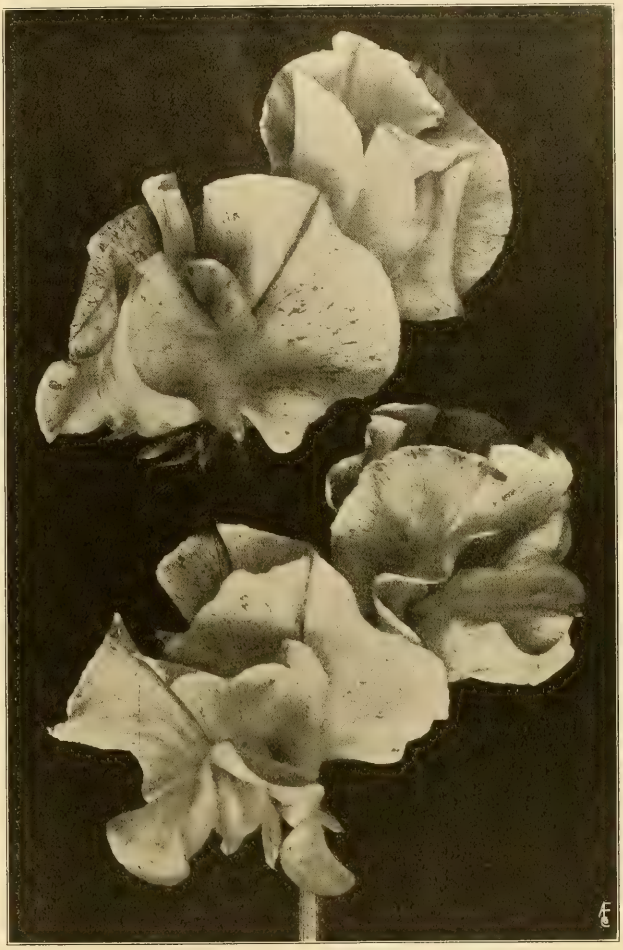
Secretary Young presented a plan for florists' endowment insurance, which Charles Henry Fox of Philadelphia, had prepared for submission to the publicity committee, and which he had laid before them at their meeting. The plan was an elaboration of the plan which Mr. Fox had previously presented, a synopsis of which appeared in the trade papers. The matter was, on motion of Mr. Joy, ordered to be laid over until a more preferable date.

A communication to the Secretary from A. T. De La Mare of New York, was submitted, suggesting the adoption, at the next convention, of a system of registration of visitors which he described. On motion of W. F. Gude, the communication was referred to the program committee.

The secretary referred to correspondence had some time ago with the Leo Niessen Company, Philadelphia, Pa., in regard to certain shortcomings in express service, and which led to W. F. Gude as Washington, D. C., representative taking up the matter with the vice-president of the American Railway Express Company, who attributed the troubles complained of to conditions of congestion which were largely due to the lack of express cars, and expressed the hope that the society might expect to hear further in the matter. The Niessen Company had recently complained that the same or worse conditions still existed, and express service was now equivalent only to the fast freight service of a few years ago. In a short discussion wherein several members of the board gave experiences in regard to express service, Mr. Gude stated that a new ruling was to go into effect on February 4, putting in the first class all express shipments of nursery stock. No relief in express conditions could be expected, he said, until the Interstate Commerce commission had fully readjusted the service.

Awards For New Varieties.

A letter from A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, was read in regard to a request made by him that the board appoint a committee to make awards to meritorious new varieties of various plants, such awards not being provided for in the by-laws specifically. Mr. Johnson made a verbal statement in support of the request, and the board seemed in favor of the suggestion. Mr. Asmus explained that the awarding of merits was, under the by-laws, in the hands of the national flower show committee, and that committee could recommend the medals if it were possible to have some committee pass upon the subjects. If the matter were referred to that committee, he said, some plan might be worked out whereby plants offered could be judged. Mr. Johnson then moved, seconded by Mr. Hagenberger, that the matter be referred to the national flower show committee with power to act, and the motion was carried.



SWEET PEA IMPROVED MARGARET ATLEE.

The meeting then went into a discussion which was largely confined to bringing out of the views of members of the board present through the affiliation with the society of the organizations they represented. A good deal of information was evolved from the discussion, and the speakers were most earnest in their sentiments respecting the value of co-operation.

National Flower Growers' Association.

The chair called for a report from Mr. Ammann as secretary of this Association, but he had no written report, and simply reported progress. He hoped that in the near future the organization might prove to be of great benefit to the Society.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

The secretary read a courteous letter from Mrs. George Asmus, president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, requesting closer cooperation at the conventions. She pointed out the fact that her organization made it their aim to take care of all lady visitors at the annual gatherings, which was considered to be quite an undertaking. The organization, the letter stated, would not ask for any unreasonable expense, but would suggest that a little be said about it and its objects in the mail that so often goes to the Society of American Florists' members. After a short discussion, which was quite complimentary to the ladies, the letter, with a recommendation covering an appropriation to the Ladies' Society of American Florists, was, on motion of Secretary Young referred to the finance and audit committee.

The plan in regard to collections presented at the Cleveland Convention by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company and referred to the executive board was presented by the secretary, and, on motion of Mr. Hill, was referred to the finance and audit committee.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The unusual weather of the past month has brought forward all kinds of cut flowers with a prodigality never before equaled at this season. February, generally a month of severe snow storms, has been especially kind to the florists, one full sunny day following another producing a wealth of flowers of all kinds.

Retailers should take advantage of this bounteous supply as stocks of all kinds can be bought at moderate prices, and by elaborate displays educate the people to the fact that cut flowers and plants have again resumed their former pre-war prices. Daffodils, violets, carnations, calendulas, sweet peas and others of the list are reaching a low price level and effort should be made to see that the deadly surplus does not gather force and eat into the grower's returns.

The coming week there is the birthday anniversary of the "Father of his Country." Those who do not think it important should take an hour or two off and read something of that dreadful winter at Valley Forge, then there will possibly be a little more doing with flags and patroitism. The cherries and the miniature hatchets give a humorous touch to the situation that is commercialized and made the most of in connection with flowers. Connecting up with and featuring all holidays is good publicity. The papers are always filled with stories of the event and their principal characters, and the store displays are then certain to attract more attention.

Run a campaign on flowering window plants. A well written leaflet, short but to the point, describing primulas, cyclamens, begonias, cinerarias, freesias and all kinds of bulbous plants and their care in the house, if sent to the store's list of customers and prospects, is sure to bring in returns, particularly when backed up with feature displays of such stock in variety. Small baskets filled with flowering and foliage plants that can be sold at a moderate price will find favor as gifts for the hospital or sick room. They are decorative in the store and very few will be found to go to waste for their fine appearance suggests them as a suitable gift for a friend which would likely otherwise have been overlooked.

PREPARATIONS FOR EASTER

Every spare moment should now be engaged in preparatory work for the coming Easter holiday, the busiest week of the year. Every hour spent on wreaths or other designs for cemetery decoration in getting them in readiness relieves the stress of this rush period. Pot covers in various sizes could be made up out of all the standard materials and are a wonderful help when ready for use. All the store's decorative material and accessories should be gone over and put in shape for immediate use when required. Keep the street front of the store attractive. It counts so much to the throngs who are constantly passing. A framing of the window with six inches of colored crepe paper next to the inside edge of the glass makes a fine setting for the display. Boards mossed and filled with laurel or hemlock to make a frame for the outside of the window, have a heavier look but are sure to attract attention to the inside display.

Acacia pubescens, one of the loveliest of the greenhouse shrubs, is now in, and its beautiful feathery yellow sprays are excellent for basket and all kinds of table decorations. Cattleyas are more plentiful and should be featured in baskets of the Glory fern. When arranged in flower tubes which the ferns conceal they present a very decorative appearance. A fluffy orchid ribbon at the handle makes a good finish. The flowers will keep very well and can be sold from the basket the same as from vases kept on the top shelf in the case, where they would to most people be out of sight.

Be sure to keep your store clientage posted by weekly or semi-monthly leaflets with the new things, as they appear and while they are still novelties. A line about sweet peas with extra long stems has a novelty touch to it. The first of the larkspurs, snapdragons of a fancy color, wallflowers and choice lilies of the valley, are subjects worthy of mention, and show the store's business to be progressive.

It is none too soon to make selections of choice Easter stock that is always scarce. There is never enough of small heather, and in many other plants first selection guarantees a choice that late comers envy.

Minnesota State Florists' Association.

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering of the members of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, and others, at the Athletic Club, St. Paul, Thursday evening, February 17, brought together for improved organization and to promote the big flower show it is proposed to hold in one or other of the Twin Cities the coming fall. The proceedings began with a banquet at the club and when the coffee had been served, President Max Kaiser warmly welcomed the visitors and appointed Theodore Wirth toastmaster. The genial park superintendent of Minneapolis filled the office in fine style, claiming that was the first occasion on which he had acted in that capacity. O. Olson read messages of regret at their inability to attend from J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., John Young, New York and Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Wirth emphasized the president's greeting and gave an outline of the history and work of Minnesota trade organizations, closing with a strong appeal to get together and put floriculture and horticulture upon a better plane. He then called upon J. F. Ammann of Edwardsville, Ill., secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, who gave a splendid address on organization, the greater part of which will be printed in a latter issue, George Asmus, of Chicago, the Society of American Florists' publicity and national flower show man, followed with an able discourse on advertising and the ways to raise funds for it, illustrated by stereopticon views, prefacing his remarks with a message to the ladies from President Mrs. Asmus of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, cordially inviting them to attend the annual convention in Washington, D. C., next August, and promising an interesting and highly entertaining programme.

The other speakers along similar lines included Paul R. Klingsporn and Michael Barker, Chicago; W. B. Shotwell, Fargo, N. D.; D. F. Siebrecht, Aberdeen, S. D.; Calvin D. Kinsman, Austin; J. J. Le Borious, Duluth; Hugh Will, Prof. L. Cady and Hans Rosacker. Among the out-of-town visitors we also noted E. J. Gestie, Fargo, N. D., W. E. Peterson, of Moninger's, Chicago; Chas. Nordeen, Lake City; John E. Sten, wife and daughter, Red Wing; G. A. Clausen, Albert Lea; N. Nielsen and son, Mankato. The visitors were most enjoyably entertained at the St. Paul and Minneapolis athletic clubs and by Theodore Wirth, Holm & Olson, Rice Brothers, Max Kaiser, Hans Rosacker, and Gustave and Hugh Will.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Associtaion, of Chicago, exhibited some vases of Premier, Russell and Milady, which attracted considerable attention, and Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., displayed a number of their new carnations in good form.

A large number visited the huge and splendidly equipped seed establishment of Northrup, King & Co., where George C. Thomson received them and had the oustanding features of the business explained.

TUPELO, MISS.—The Tupelo Floral Co. suffered a loss of about $20,000, on February 8, from hail.

RICHMOND, IND.—Recent visitors included Samuel Murray and A. F. F. Barbee, Kansas City, Mo.; Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; Glenn Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., and I. F. Frey, Lincoln, Neb.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The garden committee of the Evansville Kiwanis Club is planning to open headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building for the distribution of seeds to individuals, factories and institutions. A large number of packages will be given out. A garden contest will be conducted by the club with a view of beautifying the city. The city will be divided into zones. Cash prizes will be awarded by the club for the best arranged gardens. George Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., has been appointed on one of the committees to arrange for the garden contest.—W. B. C.

THE ROSE.

Roses in the Past, Present and Future.

Address by Andrew Benson, Manager Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood, Ill., before the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, February 17, 1921.

It will be next to impossible for me to give you a thorough impression of the roses in the past, as the time when I first began seriously to work with roses under American conditions was about the time the grand old Killarneys first entered the field and forced the Brides and Maids to the wall. Far be it from me to revive past history when discussing rose growing—the grower of today is more interested in the future roses than the ones past their zenith. It entered my mind the other day that in the life and history and its commercial value as a cut flower, the rose is so much like the career of a baseball player. Each spring we hear of new men entering the game, some we see, others fade away before the teams enter the home town, and ever so often one will stand up under the strain, develop and be a star and money maker for his organization; but he, like the standard rose, which has proven itself, will in the allotted six to eight years give way for younger blood and activity.

Every fourth year, history has shown, gives us new roses of value—and also new methods of growing. We no doubt all realize the fact the old Killarney family made more rose growers and built more greenhouses than any other rose. We have today men, many of them who can thank the introducer of Killarneys for their dollars and possessions, but the old, easy methods of 10 years ago did fast pass away as are the easy growing varieties we had, until Russell and Milady appeared.

The roses in the past have been rather easy to grow, able to withstand a certain amount of abuse. The period between the eclipse of the Maids and Brides and to the time when the Russell and Milady flitted across the scene, we had varieties that nearly could grow in water alone; it used to be a slogan—water, more water and then still more water. When the new varieties came forth they were given the same treatment, and to that fact I contribute several failures of new roses to make good. Although it has taken years, it is gratifying to realize that the progressive, experienced grower has been keen to observe the needed cultural change, and as a result the present indication is that the old slogan of "soak them" is getting weak in the knees, ready to collapse and like old John Barleycorn is a goner.

The failure to study new plants and cling to old methods instead of adopting new ones, I attribute the cause of the poor showing of roses here in the middle west during the four years prior to 1918. It is interesting to note that each locality has its preference for different varieties.

In the east they do wonders with Francis Scott Key; plants are growing well and flowers are larger than American Beauty roses. Hadley is a leader and grows in the various places, wth strong stems, and a dark rich velvety color. It must be admitted it has a place all by itself. I see no reason why we here in the middle west so hastily discarded the Hadley rose. I am fully convinced it was a rose not given a fair trial. My opinion is that the best natural conditions for winter growing of roses are found within a radius of 500 miles of Chicago; although the method applied here may do equally as well further east, it will not do 300 miles south of us or 1,000 miles west.

FERTILIZING THE SOIL

We use rough cattle manure mixed with our soil with admirable results. Should we apply manure to the soil of California it would mean absolute failure. It is hard for an eastern man to conceive why such rich, black loam as they have in California should not, with the aid of natural manure, produce still better results, but natural manure mixed with the soil under the climatical condition prevailing there, have time and again proven detrimental to the plants. Good roses can be grown to a profit from coast to coast, but will not grow and prosper unless given the utmost care and attention; even the varieties of robust heart and vigor require the proper soil condition, perfect drainage, ample feed at the proper time; constant attention must be the watchword. A rose plant is a living organism; it suffers from inattention and any careless or haphazard method of culture is not conducive to its well-being; yet given a square deal, it will amply repay the grower for its existence. In the soil and climatical conditions we too often overlook an analysis of the soil, which is of utmost importance. Too often we do not know the soil the plants are growing in. What soil improvements can be made, or rather how cultural methods can be applied to make a certain kind of soil and climatical condition produce, is best proven in the undertaking of a man who went west 10 years ago to grow roses in the hills of Utah. It was taken for granted that roses could not grow in the soil, although almost any other plant did well; the result is that Utah has today one of, if not the most up to date, rose growing establishments in the country, where plants grow with life and vigor, mildew and spot free, and flower with better color than ever seen hereabouts.

We can grow any rose successfully, if we want to grow it bad enough. The successful rose grower must be a keen observer, paying strict attention to all small details. We all know ventilation, fertilization and irrigation if applied at the proper time must give results. My experience has proved that I get the best results from sod plowed under in July and in October mixed with one-third of manure. As feed for the plants during the growing season, I prefer fresh cattle manure, as the plants seem to take that up more readily and without harm to the leaves, with low feeding between each crop alternating with sheep and cattle manure. Overfeeding will do more harm than starvation. In my opinion blood and bone is not worth the time it takes to put it on, but an application of potash is a wonderful and strong stimulant both for producing heavy stems and better colors. I consider potash cheap at $100 per ton. We always allow ½ lb. of raw ground bone per plant, mixing it with the soil before planting. We try to use 15 cents per plant for fertilizer a season, but would rather spend 17 cents per plant than 12 cents. We feed young plants very little, if ever, before the first crop, and the first crop I prefer to use as a plant builder instead of as a moneymaker. The sacrificing of the first crop to build up a strong and solid plant will amply repay you later on.

Plenty of fresh air is needed; there is no market for weak and spindly flowers. Burn five more tons of coal per 1,000 plants; keep the ventilator open, for it will improve the quality of the flower and make the plants more productive.

It is indeed a pleasure to grow roses, but the success does not entirely depend on the proprietor or manager. There is plenty of precedents pointing to the value of loyal, good assistants and helpers. The real fact is that the future progress and success of the rose growing industry, and any other national industry, depends largely on the intelligence and training of the men. As to young plants, whether it is cheaper to buy or do your own propagating and grafting seems to be something of a question; as for making direct money from that kind of work, I think very little is made; however, to do your own propagating and grafting you have the satisfaction of knowing what kind of plants you are getting. That alone may mean a balance on the right side of your bankbook and relieve you of many a worry.

It is indeed a wonder that so many of us can be cheerful, knowing the handicaps we had starting the season with weak and diseased stock. With the various diseases, such as crown-gall, canker and rose midge, it surely pays to know from where your stock comes. It is gratifying to know that the firms who of late years sent out weak and diseased plants are now slowly but surely paying for their indifference. We have a quarantine against importation of infected plants. I look to the day when we also will have local quarantine making it unlawful to sell or ship any plant affected with disease that will spread. Thousands of dollars have been lost by growers in the last few years through diseases and pests brought on the place from local firms. Five years ago E. G. Hill, speaking before the Florists' Club, stated the fact that we nearly had the perfect forcing rose in Ophelia. All we needed was a white Ophelia, dark red Ophelia, pink Ophelia, and the rose grower would be satisfied. Now turn your thoughts to the roses of today—the introductions of the last few years have put Ophelia on the shelf. Ophelia has helped produce these new wonders, but at the sacrifice of being crowded out.

PASSING OF CERTAIN VARIETIES.

This year will see the last of the once so dominating American Beauty rose. In passing up the Beauty we may properly remark that due to its strong and long stems we have the call for long roses today. Milady and Russell have in the past been the best moneymakers. In the last eight years there have been other red roses, but the fact remains that for form and finish, and perhaps you will allow me to add that for beauty, Milady has not been beaten since its introduction. The Russell did abnormally well for some growers; when cut at the proper time, it is a marvelous rose, a good keeper and ships well.

When Premier appeared the Russell went to the mat, but it seems it only took the count of nine, for it is coming back strong. I look forward to its giving Premier a close race for supremacy for the next two years. Russell as a moneymaker will vindicate itself and win out.

Of the Premier, with its freedom of growth, its knack of recovering from setbacks, its productiveness; the same similarity as the Killarney in that it can be pinched at a given date and brought in crop at will, I may say, as Mr. Hill said of the Ophelia—give us a Dark Red Premier, a White or a Yellow, and we shall not ask for more. Columbia is winning more and more favor with the buying public, but it is now a cheap rose for the grower. I look to see Crusader with us for two years, the Pilgrim and Dunlop to strike their flags this coming season, for it seems their arrival was about eight years too late.

My opinion is we have been spoiled with new roses; at the present time we are so apt to measure a new rose with too large a rule—we have not recovered from the surprise introductions of 1918 and 1919. We ask, can it be possible the future will bring others to surpass them, and we will be inclined to answer "yes." There is no fun marching with a funeral procession, therefore I am a believer in novelties and new introductions. I do not care to buy 100 or 1,000 plants; I want five, 10, 20,000. It means money—big money—for a new introduction pays well for two years, brings 40 per cent more money per square foot than small varieties. If a new rose worth while would appear, I would replant the entire place every two years and when others made $3 I would make $5.

The unlimited potential possibilities of commercial rose growing have not been reached, the ensuing years will witness an enormous expansion of our industry, and we need never fear that the rose like the carnation will drop in public favor. The rose we all know is the backbone of the flower industry and always will be. The only competitor it has is the orchid. The peak of high prices has long since been reached, and if we desire to maintain a forward-carrying pace, a direct road to financial success, traveled comfortably and without worry, and to avoid the pitfalls of the past, our future plantings should have an eye for quality rather than quantity, and we also must work forward to a better co-operation with the wholesaler.

What is the outstanding problem of the grower today? What is the big fundamental need upon which depend the future growth and security of our business? It is the absolute confidence, based on business dealing and past experiences with the plant producer, the man on whom we must rely for our stock and most of all the honesty, the sincere honesty of the originator of new roses. Do we always give the originators not alone the credit due but also the thanks for the work he does to make it possible for us to go forward? His work is never finished. It goes without saying that perfection and finality can never be reached. Were such results possible, progress would cease. It is the ideal, not perhaps even mentally visible to the originator, that makes him carry on. With the results they have produced and the new wonders to come, it is easy to conceive that the future of the rose combined with the new prosperous and successful era this country of ours is going forward to, will, as it has in the past, make life worth living for the growers and bring sunshine to many a home.

New York Spring Show.

MARCH 14-20.

Final arrangements for the Show are now being actively pushed. Various little details that, necessarily, had to be settled at the end of the season of preparation are being disposed of rapidly, and plans will all be completed several days in advance of the opening date.

The Garden Club of America has decided to offer a silver cup, value $50, in a class calling for "best bird bath with planting, not to exceed 50 square feet of floor space, or seven feet by seven feet, open to member clubs of the Garden Club of America." This competition will be judged by the following scale of points: Color harmony 25, planting 25, accessories 25, general effect 25. Exhibits must be in place by noon, Monday, March 14. This class is somewhat of an innovation, and to encourage competition, the management offers the silver medal of the Spring Show as second prize, and the bronze medal as third.

The Garden Club of America also offers a silver cup, value $50, in a class, open to member clubs of the Garden Club of America, for "best vase or basket of cut flowers—any green or foliage may be used—not to exceed three feet or to be less than two feet in diameter." Judging in this class will be according to the following scale of points: Quality of blooms 40, artistic arrangement 20, general effect 20, color harmony 20. Exhibits are to be staged by noon, Wednesday, March 16. In this class also, the management offers the silver medal of the Spring Show for second prize, and the bronze medal for third.

For "the best exhibit in the show" the Garden Club of America offers its gold medal. The award will be made upon the following scale of points: Quality of blooms or plants 25, artistic arrangement 25, color harmony 25, general effect 25. The medal will be awarded on Tuesday, March 15, and the judges appointed by the Club are as follows: Mrs. Arthur W. Butler, Bedford Garden Club, Miss Marian Coffin, member at large and William R. Mercer, Garden Club of Philadelphia.

A greater insistence is this year to be placed on the observance of Rule 14, which directs that all plants exhibited for prizes or other awards must be plainly and correctly named, on cards to be supplied by the management. Such labeling is considered to be very important as furnishing one of the educational features of the exhibition. There is not now the slightest room for doubt as to the success of the Show, at least from an exhibition standpoint. Unless something unforeseen happens, it will be the largest and most handsome flower show yet staged in the palace, and this is what the committee has all along been striving for. Conditions which had to be met last year were responsible for a seeming smallness of the competitive section, but this year the committee has not been called upon to face any difficulties not easily surmounted, and the various large exhibits planned to form the bulk of the Show are all to materialize. According to reports, there will be in attendance at the Show an unusually large number of out-of-town members of the trade, particularly from the middle west and west, among them some who will bring exhibits long distances.

Trade tickets are ready for distribution, and will be supplied as follows: Where no less than 20 up to 100 are purchased at one time, the price per ticket will be 50 cents. For orders of 100 or more tickets purchased at one time the rate will be 40 cents each, war tax included. These trade tickets must be paid for when received, used, which are bought in lots of 100 or more. Send in your order for tickets now. The price of general admission is $1.00, exclusive of war tax.

Very little available space in the trade section of the exhibition is now unreserved, and what is left is expected to be taken up some days before the opening. This feature of the Show is quite up to the usual standard, in fact, is somewhat larger.

ADDITIONAL EXHIBITS.

In addition to the exhibitors already reported, the following have reserved space:

Bateman Co., New York.
Wm. M. Hunt & Co., New York.
Jos. Manda Co., West Orange, N. J.
Muller-Sealy Co., New York.
Joseph Ott, New York.
Western Union Tel. Co., New York.

OBITUARY.

Peter Reinberg.

The trade and the public generally were greatly shocked to learn of the sudden death of Peter Reinberg, Chicago, at his home, 5643 Sheridan road, February 21. He attended to business as usual Saturday the 19th, lunching down town with a friend. Returning home early in the afternoon he complained of slight illness and the family doctor was called when the case was diagnosed and treated as acute indigestion. He progressed satisfactorily and had apparently recovered Sunday evening, but in walking from the bathroom to his bedroom later in the night was stricken with cerebral hemorrhage and died.

Mr. Reinberg was born in Chicago March 5, 1856. The son of a truck gardener, he followed that business in early life and later gave his entire attention to the production of indoor flowers on a scale previously unknown and of such magnitude as to attract world-wide attention. He specialized in roses and carnations and frequently his blooms were of such high quality that they received the highest honors and premiums at the leading exhibitions. The increasing value of the real estate, however, has prevented in recent years the further development of this business, which still ranks with the most extensive in the country.

Mr. Reinberg, during the latter half of his life, devoted a considerable share of his time to politics with remarkable success and distinction. He was an unswerving democrat, but enjoyed the highest esteem of all parties. Entering the field in 1894, he was elected member of the city council. In 1904 he was re-elected and served continuously until 1912. In 1911 he was given a diamond star by Mayor Carter H. Harrison, in recognition of his services to the city. A year later, following the expiration of his term as alderman he was rewarded with appointment to the board of education and was president of that body until 1914, when he became president of the county commissioners, retaining that office until his death.

Mr. Reinberg's eminent service to his native city in all these positions of the greatest responsibility are, however, far surpassed by his monumental work as head of the forest preserve commission, where, with such associates as J. C. Vaughan and Wm. A. Peterson, he spent millions of dollars in preserving to the community forever many thousands of acres of beauty spots in and about the city. He was the first to "Say It With Flowers" to any appreciable extent in political campaigning, using carnations freely.

Mr. Reinberg was a director of the Lincoln Trust Co. and Ravenswood National bank. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic order of Foresters. He was a most unostentatious man, beloved by the thousands who knew him. His charities were widespread and he was generally spoken of as the most conscientious public official who ever held office in Cook County.

Mrs. Reinberg and an adopted son, Charles, 16 years old, survive, also a brother, George, and five sisters, Mrs. Margaret Weiland, Mrs. Mary Zender, Mrs. Catherine Smith, Mrs. Anna Hoffman, and Mrs. Helen Zender.

Arrangements are being made for the remains to lie in state in the county building, which is draped in mourning. The funeral will be held Thursday at St. Gregory's church, with burial at St. Henry's cemetery.

APPRECIATION.

J. C. Vaughan telegraphs from Miami, Fla.: "In the death of Peter Reinberg, Cook county has lost a devoted and conscientious public servant."

James C. Scorgie.

James C. Scorgie for the past 25 years superintendent of Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., died February 16 at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton Mass., where he recently underwent an operation.

Although best known for his ability as a draughtsman and civil engineer, Mr. Scorgie was what is often spoken of as an all around man, and was eminently qualified for the position that for many years he ably and creditably filled. Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1850, as a boy and young man he lived and received his early education in that place. In 1873 he came to this country and located in Cambridge, Mass., where he became a draughtsman for a stone cutting firm. Seven years later he accepted a similar position at Mount Auburn. During his service as a draughtsman he had studied civil engineering.

During his quarter of a century of service in the position which he held at the time of his death, many improvements were made in the cemetery.

James C. Scorgie was a member of many societies, among them being the American Association of Cemetery Superintendents, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Horticultural Club, the American Society of Civil Engineers, and the Massachusetts State Highway Association. He was also a Mason, a Granger and a member of the Scots Charitable Society, Boston, Mass. He is survived by his wife, and three daughters, the Misses Anna and Elvira Scorgie, who conduct a farm in Harvard, Mass., and Dr. Helen Scorgie, who is engaged in the practice of her profession in Boston.

Mrs. Laura A. Norman.

Mrs. Laura A. Norman, a life-long and beloved resident of Painesville, O., and mother of T. R. Norman, well-known nurseryman, passed away at her home February 14. The floral tributes were both profuse and beautiful, speaking silently in the esteem which she was held. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES is one of the best flowering pot plants ever introduced. It will make a handsome well flowered specimen in a four-inch pot in which size it can be used to brighten with its wealth of blossoms, a foliage plant basket, or entirely fill a small vase basket which with a knot of ribbon presents a very saleable article.

IN THE February "Ladies' Home Journal" an excellent rose story entitled "Making the Rose Really Universal in America," is from the pen of J. Horace McFarland. It is splendidly written and tells the story so concisely that anyone can, from a catalogue, order the various types that will do the best in their locality. The rose zone map of the United States department of agriculture is also included.

Personal.

Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich., and J. A. Peterson, wife and daughter, Cincinnati, O., are among the recent arrivals at Miami, Fla.

Eugene Daildedouze, New York, is at the Hotel Windsor, Daytona, Fla.

Scientific Assistant Examination.

The United States civil service commission will hold an open competitive examination for scientific assistant, throughout America, April 13-14, 1921. A vacancy in the Department of Agriculture at a salary ranging from $1,320 to $1,620 a year, at Washington, D. C., or in the field, is to be filled, as are other vacancies requiring similar qualifications at higher and lower salaries, from this examination. Satisfactory appointees may be allowed the increase granted by congress of $20 per month. Applicants must have graduated from a four-years' course at a college or university of recognized standing, or be a senior student in such an institution and furnish proof of actual graduation within six months from the date of the examination. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their seventieth birthday on the date of the examination. The subjects are: 1, arithmetic, 10; 2, report writing, 10; 3, practical questions on each optional (scientific) subject choosen, 30; 4, thesis (to be delivered to the examiner on the day of the examination), 15; 5, education, training and experience in each optional (scientific) subject chosen, 35—total 100. Both men and women may enter this examination, though the appointing officers have the right to specify the sex desired in requesting the certification of eligibles. Application blanks may be obtained from the local secretary of the United States civil service board at any postoffice.

Agricultural Almanac.

We are in receipt of the Agricultural Almanac for 1921, compiled by Bristow Adams from sources within the United States Department of Agriculture for the use of farmers, gardeners, householders and others, issued at Washington, D. C., as Farmers' bulletin No. 1202 by the department.

Market to Bar Orientals.

Los Angeles Calif., is to have a wholesale flower and plant market conducted exclusively by Americans, and managed along co-operative lines, as a result of the formation of the American Florist Exchange. The Japanese will be barred from the association. The market will be located at 248 Winston street.

About 50 florists and growers already have become members of the Exchange. A feature of the new market will be a large American flag in front of the building. The object of the organization is to prevent Orientals from monopolizing the flower and plant industry. Norman Gage is president of the Exchange. Albert Goldenson secretary and T. H. Wright treasurer.

Fertilizer Experiments.

A recent bulletin of the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva describes investigations made under greenhouse conditions in an effort to determine the effect of fertilizers upon the productiveness of soils from different parts of the state and the influence of fertilizers and crop production on the soluble material of the soil.

Varying amounts of peat, stable manure, and commercial fertilizers were applied to nine different soils, each soil receiving the same treatment. Commercial fertilizers increased production to a much greater extent than did manure supplying the same amount of important plant food elements. The application of different combinations and amounts of commercial fertilizers to a highly productive soil and to a poor soil resulted in larger crop production on the latter than on the fertile soil.

When commercial fertilizers were added to an uncropped soil it was found that the proportion of soluble plant food elements was greatly increased, and was maintained at a high level for several months. However, soils which were producing crops showed a marked diminution of water soluble material even in the early stages of the growth of the crop. Before the plants had completed their of the soil were reduced to a level which was maintained during further growth. It was concluded, therefore, that an adequate supply of immediately available plant food is essential to successful crop production.

Those interested in a detailed account of the experiments should write to the station for a copy of Bulletin No. 473, which may be had free of charge.

TRADE GREATLY IMPROVED.

Business in this city for Valentine's day was excellent. There was a good demand for flowers and plants of all kinds. The increase in trade for this day was without question due to the extensive advertising campaign of the Retail Florists' Association. The strongest demand was for medium priced boxes of flowers. There has been very little improvement in the rose situation as regards increase of supply. We are now receiving Russell of the best quality but there is not enough stock to fill the demand. Some very fine American Beauty roses are arriving, but in small lots only. There is a fair supply of Ophelia, but stock of good quality is hard to obtain. There is much improvement in the quality of the red roses coming in. They were in heavy demand for Valentine's day. Cecil Brunner, Irish Fireflame and Irish Elegance are coming in slowly with prices holding very firm. Violets enjoyed a big sale for Valentine gift boxes. Owing to favorable weather the heavy arrivals found a ready market and all stock cleaned up in a satisfactory manner. The demand for violets from the shipping trade was said to be the heaviest in years. Shipments to the middle west of this flower continue to be as large as ever. The demand for carnations is due in a great measure to the rose shortage. Stock being received is now at its best and prices are holding up well. Laddie is a prime favorite but remains in short supply. Sweet peas are gaining in popular favor as the quality of the offerings improve. Stevias are getting longer and better. Prices for this item remain high as no outdoor stock has come in as yet. Snapdragon in small lots is being received and commands good figures. Daffodills continue to come into the market in large quantities. Prices are low and it is only first class stock that will bring remunerative prices. The street peddlers are handling a large part of the output. Tulips are becoming more plentiful every day. They are sold chiefly in pans, however, and not much cut stock is being handled as yet. The same is true of Dutch hyacinths. Both of these bulbous flowers were in much demand for Valentine's day. Roman hyacinths are in ample supply as are Paper White narcissi. Cattleyas are quite plentiful and enjoy a steady demand. Gardenias still continue on the short side, with the call strong. Lily of the valley is coming in steadily. Erica Melanthera is in large supply with the demand very brisk. Acacia mollissima is to be had in large quantities and is in strong demand for decorative work. Flowering fruit blossoms is another spring flower that is in great favor at the present time. There continues to be large receipts of freesias. The heavy arrivals have caused a slump in prices for the white variety. Colored freesias are held at good prices. Some extra good cinerarias are being shown by the various stores. Azaleas in variety also add to the flowering plant assortment. There are no pot lilies on the market. Pot grown ericas are in good supply. The demand for foliage plants continues to be fairly active. Adiantums are arriving more freely than heretofore and it is believed the shortage is over for the season. Asparagus is coming in slowly.

NOTES.

The advertising campaign conducted by the Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco for Valentine's day is conceded to be the most artistic and effective publicity yet produced by the Association. It is the intent of the association to continue the good work throughout the coming year, on all days when the sale of flowers can be pushed, such as Mothers' day, Easter and Decoration day.

A movement is on foot, among prominent members of the Retail Florists' Association to erect a large building, or purchase one outright, in the wholesale district to be used exclusively as a wholesale market for white growers. Angelo J. Rossi is the leader in this movement which in itself is enough to assure the most skeptical that it will be brought to a successful conclusion.

The Art Floral Co. has a very unique Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association window this week. It is a large wooden map of the United States with telegraph wires attached to the name of the most prominent cities in each state. A small electric light bulb marks the principal cities.

Several houses of rhododendrons that promise to be in full bloom for Easter are to be seen at the MacRorie-McLaren Co.'s green houses. They re-

BURPEE'S DAHLIAS

JEAN KERR

Burpee's Sensational Decorative Dahlia

The most valuable of all white decorative dahlias. Let the weather be as it may, and no other dahlia blooming, JEAN KERR will be a mass of flowers. It is one of the first to flower and blooms continuously until killed by frost.

In type it is a short-petaled decorative, and by some classed as a show or ball dahlia. It is an outstanding variety because it never fails to bloom freely. The pure white blooms are carried gracefully on long and strong stems. The illustration, reproduced from a Fordhook photograph, shows the compact growth and free-flowering habit. JEAN KERR is a foremost variety for cut flowers, and equally as important for garden use. JEAN KERR was awarded a Certificate of Merit by the American Dahlia Society when first exhibited in September, 1916. After it was tested in the trial grounds of the American Dahlia Society it received a second Certificate of Merit on September 24, 1920.

port the demand for trees and shrubs of every description is much ahead of former years.

George A. Meyer, the Burlingame nurseryman, has established an extensive sales yard there.

The greenhouses of Eric James, Elmhurst, are filled with a fine lot of pot plants for Easter.

Podesta & Baldocchi report a heavier Valentine day trade than last year.

Frank D. Pelicano has been cutting a heavy crop of ericas.

Daniel MacRorie returned from a trip to Los Angeles.

TRADE VERY GOOD.

Weather has had much to do with the growers in this territory, not only during the past two weeks, but for the greater part of the winter. There has been little sunshine, which has retarded growth, but during the past week the warm weather has caused a little oversupply of carnations. Business for St. Valentine's day was exceptionally good. There was a slight shortage of sweet peas and violets and others of the smaller flowers, but the carnation men report a wonderful business. The supply was just about equal to the demand. During the past week, following St. Valentine's day the demand for carnations appears to be off just a little, but they still are selling for from $6 to $8 per 100. The rose market continues good, but the weather is slightly against production. Pot plants are selling well.

NOTES.

No more will fraternity men at the State university send expensive corsage bouquets to their dancing partners and mail the bill home to father, disguised as "board and clothing." A rule passed by the men's Pan-Hellenic council forbids the practice of sending flowers in connection with university dances. The taboo rule applies to any dance attended by fraternity men, whether they be sorority, fraternity or open affairs. The penalty for violation is expulsion from the council.

The florists of the state are watching closely the progress of a bill in the general assembly that would make possible the establishment of a course in floriculture at Purdue university. The bill is still in the lower house, but is being carried along with the routine of business. So far there has been no forceful opposition to it.

Many of the local trade men are planning to attend the meeting of the state association to be held the first Tuesday in March with W. Frank & Sons, Portland. The train will leave this city over the L. E. & W. Railroad at 7 A. M., and will reach Portland before noon.

J. J. B. Hatfield, 80 years old, a pioneer florist of this city, died at his home February 18. He had been retired from business for some years, but was an honorary member of the State Association of Florists.

The Liriodendron tulipifera was well on its way February 19 to become the state tree of Indiana. The senate passed the bill introduced by Senator Joseph Henley, Bloomington, recognizing the bloom.

Visitors: Samuel Murray and A. F. F. Barbee, Kansas City, Mo.; Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; Glenn Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; Wm. Lohman, Richmond; W. C. Peter Rush, whose main store is at 542 Michigan avenue, has opened a branch in the new Cass Woodward market. Here he carries a nice stock and complete equipment which is in charge of a competent manager, Miss Frances Konkel.

The Strand Company with a store in the Book building was taken over February 1 by Jos. H. Seaman, the manager of the place the past four months. Oscar Strand, the original manager, is now city salesman for the Chas. H. Plumb Co.

Peter Reuss & Co. are now nicely located in their new store, 1452 Broadway. Peter Reuss, manager, reports entire satisfaction with the new location which is regarded much better than their former place.

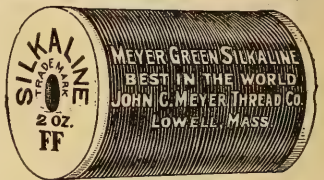
STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is much more plentiful at this writing and prices are lower than they have been for sometime. American Beauty roses are selling fairly well and fancy Columbia, Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russell are commanding good prices considering the general market condition. Roses in general have dropped considerably in price the past week and some buyers report securing quantity lots at very low figures. Carnations were sold in large lots at low prices the latter part of last week, which were probably the low marks of the season. Lily of the valley is plentiful and orchids have made their appearance in some of the smaller stores, which means that they are now within reach of most buyers. Lilies have had a good call but considerable pushing is needed to move them which also holds true for callas. Paper White narcissi are not as plentiful as they have been and the end of the crops are in sight. Freesias are in large supply, especially Purity, which is to be had in quantity at low prices. Rainbow freesias are plentiful and fancy stock was sold ridicuously low the past week. Tulips and jonquils are much lower in price. Violets are to be had in quantity and the same holds true for sweet peas, which are in good demand. Snapdragons, calendulas, mignonette, for-get-me-nots, stevia, daisies, pansies and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is obtainable and is seen featured along with all other flowers in the window displays of the local retail stores, which reminds one of old times, considering the quantity now on exhibition everywhere. Plants are to be had in large supply at low prices, especially tulips, cyclamens, hyacinths, primroses, cinerarias, etc., which condition is affecting the demand for cut flowers to some extent. Business was unusually quiet the past week according to many of the leading retail florists who are hopeful of a change for the better now that stock is more reasonable and within the reach of practically all the buying public.

NOTES.

The trade was greatly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Peter Reinberg, president of the county board and well-known wholesale florist, February 21, an account of which appears in the obituary column this week. Mr. Reinberg had a host of friends in the trade who honored and respected him for his honesty and square business dealings which earned for him the reputation for being the most conscientious public official who ever held office in Cook county. The trade unites in extending its heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Reinberg in the loss of a loving husband in this her great hour of sorrow.



Do not take any fake or imitation thread, claimed to be the Meyer silkaline, or smilax threads. Be sure the name Meyer in on the end of each spool, as we find there are a lot of fake brands being put on the market to imitate our green florists' thread. Weigh up our threads and then weigh up the other parties' that you are buying from and you will notice that our threads run full two ounces of thread to the spool. Be sure and get the Meyer thread.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, visited the greenhouses of the principal lily growers this week to get a line on stock for Easter. He says that lilies will be in good supply compared to last year but that there will not be as many flowers to the plant, taking the entire quantity as a whole.

N. J. Wietor, who spent several weeks in Florida recently with the late Peter Reinberg, was as much surprised as anyone else in the trade to learn of his sudden death February 21. They were cousins and boon companions and it is needless to add that he feels his loss keenly.

Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., spoke on general business conditions, pertaining to the trade, and told why Red Columbia is a good commercial rose. Fred H. Lemon of the same city also addressed the meeting, and August Poehlmann spoke of the good work done by the Allied Florists' Association and stated that much of the business the trade has enjoyed was due to the fact that the local publicity campaign was launched at just the right time. Andrew Benson, of the Premier Rose Gardens, read a very interesting paper on "Roses of the Past and Future."

There will be an exhibit of miscellaneous cut flowers and potted plants at the March meeting. The folowing had exhibits at the last meeting:

Joseph Kohout, Libertyville.—Vase of splendidly grown Columbia and Premier roses.

A SMALL DECLINE IN PRICES.

There has been a sharp change in the weather and this has to a certain extent stimulated the trade. It may mean a serious set back to all out-of-doors grown material. Business is dropping off slightly at present, which is due to the observing of Lent by many patrons and flower lovers. Carnations are leading the list in popularity this week. The stock coming in is of excellent quality and is bringing good money. Roses have taken a slump due to the market being overloaded with them. Choice stock of Premier, Russell, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney and Butterfly roses are wholesaling for from $5 to $6 per 100. Very few are being shown in florists' windows. Good money is being made on jonquils which are scarce. The stock to be had is of the best quality. Narcissi are shortening up and are to be seen practically everywhere. The demand for them is moderate. There is a limited supply of fine Darwin tulips and a plentiful supply of the common varieties. Cattleya orchids and lily of the valley are valuable stock with plenty on hand and the demand rushing. Single, home-grown violets of unusual size and fragrance are plentiful, selling rapidly for use in corsage bouquets. Sweet peas are plentiful and the demand is good. Snapdragons are few and far between and are snatched by customers when seen. There is a limited supply of gladioli coming in. Bulbous stock is strengthening each day. Primroses are shown in many windows and bring top prices. Freesias are valuable stock this week and are plentiful. There is a good demand for them. Cyclamen are practically all gone and only a very few poor specimens are to be had at any price. This is also true of Jerusalem cherries. Cinerarias with their wide range of gorgeous colors, are now coming into their own. The demand is great and undiminishing but the supply as yet is rather limited. Many florists are making a special feature of them. Pandanus, dracaenas and ferns are seen in many windows. Several stores are displaying the so-called "prohibition dishes" which it is expected will gradually take the place of the well known and popular Fern Dish. Greens are plentiful this week and the demand is equally good. Ferns have taken a jump, due to their present scarcity. Prices in general have come down and they have not yet reached their minimum. This will hold until the Easter trade.

TRADE BELOW NORMAL.

After all the preparation and anticipation for Valentine day, it was somewhat of a disappointment to the trade, and sales fell behind those of a year ago; but a very good business was done nevertheless. Since Valentine's day, business has been very quiet, only a few funeral orders occupying attention. Flowers are now coming in nicely. Roses, carnations, some lily of the valley, violets, sweet peas and a few of the smaller flowers are enough for all demands. Yellow jonquils are blooming out-of-doors, and are retailing on the streets at 10 cents a dozen.

TRADE EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

St. Valentine business was much better than was looked for, although the florists were stocked more this year than any previous Valentine period. A number of the trade said the large business was due to cooperation, club advertising in newspapers and Valentine day stickers that were used weeks before. Pot plants were the best they had been in years. Sweet peas, violets, roses, carnations, freesias, orchids, stevia, jonquils, Paper White narcissi and tulips made up the cut flower line and the prices were at their lowest this year. Novelties went good. Business for the past week was very good, in fact it kept the market cleared so well, that no old stock accumulated. There has been heavy funeral work and hospital boquets as well as luncheons, parties, etc. The auto show which attracted large crowds, also helped make more work for the trade.

The committee which has been working on the publicity fund have about two-thirds of their labors finished and they will start again February 21, to complete the work. The committee reports the stores and especially the greenhouses in fine condition. James Payne for the Missouri side and the Stockdale Greenhouses for the Kansas side, were the winners of prizes given by the committee for upkeep and neatness.

DECIDED DECLINE IN PRICES.

The long expected and overdue break in the market has arrived at last; not a serious glut, but a decided increase in every seasonable flower on the list, with a drop in prices on every item. The demand is not large enough to absorb it all, and it takes pushing and price concessions to move the surplus. St. Valentine day's business was satisfactory to everyone concerned. While total volume was not as large as 1920, it was larger than 1919, which is the year that it should be compared with. Stock was plentiful and with no increase in prices, and in some cases lowered prices, vast quantities of it were moved. Following St. Valentine day, large quantities of bulbous stock were dumped on the market, which caused an unsettled condition, and for the first time in weeks the wholesaler found his ice boxes full at the end of the day's business, but by Saturday night everything was pretty well disposed of. The rose cut is on the increase and the quality is of the best. The varieties include Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Pilgrim, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hilda, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Maryland, Milady, Richmond, and Double White Killarney. A few Pink Killarney are seen but not enough to amount to anything. The carnation supply has nearly doubled in the last two weeks, with a noticeable drop in price. The supply of Easter lilies has also increased, but not enough to cause any big reduction in price. Calla lilies are still in short supply and clean up daily. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities with a light demand, as also holds true of violets, lily of the valley and orchids; in fact the demand for corsage flowers is very light during Lent. Last year it was not noticed as every item could be used in funeral work. Jonquils, daffodils, Paper White narcissi and tulips are coming in large quantities, and are hardly bringing enough to let the grower break even. The trouble is there is entirely too much bulb stock brought in at this time, and with the present high price of bulbs the grower is going to be the loser.

NOTES.

The florists of Beaver Falls, which includes H. L. Thompson, E. H. Carey, A. W. Smith Co., and D. MARKET HOLDING ITS OWN Conditions on the market this week have been variable. Prices were high at the opening but softened somewhat later in the week. The business in general is rather quiet and stock cleans up with difficulty. There has been considerable stock shipped to other markets this past week which has been a boon to the local market. Lilies both Easter and Callas have been somewhat of a drug on this market, but according to reports clean up at a fancy price in other markets. There is quite a supply of spring stock coming in at present with not a very ready demand. Sweet peas especially are coming in great quantities with no call for them. Roses are still shy on quantity but there seems to be enough to meet the demand. Carnations have dropped in price from a week ago. The very fancy ones will only bring $6 a hundred. Valentine business was very brisk, larger quantities of violets were sold this year than for four or five seasons back. The stock in general had a rise in price for a few days previous to Valentine's, but gradually got back to the old prices just after that.

STOCK SELLING CHEAPLY.

The past week has been one of extremes, very little business one day and quite a spurt the next, at times various items of stock cleaned up at good figures and again touched bottom. Take it all and all it has been a buyer's market. Daffodils and freesias were the quantity items, these being overstocked the entire week. Prices were as one wholesaler said, just what you could get. All kinds of stocks are getting more plentiful. Sweet peas are at about their height, some of the first cutting are exceptionally fine; there are rather more than can be moved at what are considered good returns for the growers. Snapdragon is now a factor, there being a large supply of from 18 to 24 inch stems. The quality is fine. Carnations have held their own and considering conditions sold up fairly close. Roses are increasing and there appears to be more short stemmed stock around. White Killarney of splendid quality is offered by several growers. The four leading varieties: Russell, Columbia, Premier and Pilgrim, are so large and fine that new sorts will have to have exceptional merit to get even a trial. Calendulas, daisies, pansies, mignonettes and other small items are increasing in the spring flower section. Easter lilies and callas are coming stronger every week, the high grades bring near top figures, but indifferent stock sells away down. Cattleyas are about equal to the demand and violets are a bit draggy. The green market has filled up again, some very good Florida asparagus being offered.

BULBS OR NO BULBS.

The Hollanders are around again smiling and energetic, but their glowing tales fall this year on ears that are not interested. Growers are wondering how they are going to get back in returns enough to pay for the bulbs they bought last year. Paper White and Golden Spur narcissi have been exceptionally good the past winter. No better production could be asked, but it is conceded because of an overstocked market that no grower has been able to get enough for the flowers to pay the initial cost of the bulbs, while all the overhead charges of growing and selling will have to be taken out of the profits of other lines. Growers' associations should have compiled reliable data on the needs or extent of their market, and then agreed among themselves that only such an amount should have been grown. Otherwise as in the present instance none of their dreams will come true. Had the growers for this market known of the size of the various stocks being brought in during January and February they might by a prepared schedule have avoided the overstocked market and arranged for a more or less continuous supply to cover the whole season.

CLUB MEETING MARCH 1.

The meeting of the Florists' Club on March 1 is to be the gala night of the season. There will be extensive exhibits of Easter plants and cut flowers. The W. Atlee Burpee Co. will stage a full line of their new seedling early flowering orchid sweet pea. A number of these varieties have not as yet been introduced and will be seen here for the first time. All who are interested in this popular flower should not fail to see the coming favorites. There will also be exhibits of commercial sweet peas by the best growers for this market. New roses, carnations and other choice cut flowers are also promised. There is a full literary program, Senator Geo. W. Cartwright, California, a most talented speaker, will address the Club on a subject we all know. J. Otto Thilow will tell of his recent trip to Porto Rico, while Geo. W. Kerr, president of the Sweet

NOTES.

The meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held February 15. The features were a lecture by J. Otto Thilow on Hawaii and the South Sea Islands, and a collection of choice cut flowers and plants. Very well flowered cattleya hybrids from the collection of Mrs. F. E. Dixon; cut flowers of choice cattleyas by Alphonse Pericat and Kurume azaleas from Henry A. Dreer were prominent features.

S. S. Pennock is to spend the coming summer in Germany with headquarters in Berlin. He goes in an official capacity, representing the Friend's Relief Association, whose succor to starving poor of that country since the close of hostilities has been of incalculable benefit. Mr. Pennock leaves on his mission immediately after Easter and expects to be gone six months.

The large St. Leonard greenhouse, boilers, sheds and farm of 75 acres, is to be sold peremptorily and awarded to the highest sealed bid received up to March 1. This operation cost the Lord and Burnham Co. something over $122,000 but it will be sold even if the best bid is not half this amount. Here is a great bargain for a man willing to take a chance.

Over 100,000 two-inch pot shamrocks for St. Patrick's day are coming along nicely with W. K. Harris. All are practically sold as most of the stock is grown under contract.

Pot coverings for Easter are a specialty with H. Bayersdorfer & Co. Curled edge crepe paper and bamboo pot covers in all colors are leaders.

Mrs. Chas. A. Russell roses, carnations, sweet peas and lily of the valley are specials with the Leo Niessen Co. Acacia pubescens is a novelty.

Tulips in variety are leaders with Berger Bros. Easter lilies, callas and sweet peas are also quantity stocks.

STOCK MOVING SLOWLY.

Although it did not appear that St. Valentine's day business averaged up to that of last year, there was considerable activity. For the remainder of the week the wholesale districts were quiet with increasing supplies of stock that moved slowly at falling prices. The only exceptions were American Beauty roses and gardenias, which were scarce. Beauties wholesaling at $18 per dozen and gardenias at $12 per dozen. Tea roses are wholesaling at about half the figures they were commanding a month ago and there have been heavy cuts on prices of bulbous stock, carnations, sweet peas and practically all minor stocks. Both orchids and violets are plentiful and move slowly. Aside from their cut flowers, some of the wholesalers are carrying pans and pots of tulips and hyacinths and in practically all of the retail stores such stock is being featured and seems to move fairly well. In minor features in cut flowers, such as mignonette, marigolds, pansies and other varieties there is an increasing supply.

February 21.—The snowstorm that raged all day Sunday passed off in the night, leaving slightly over one foot of snow. There is clear sunshine today and the city is busy digging itself out. Auto-truck service outside of the main north and south thoroughfares, is about paralyzed and no flowers have arrived this morning by that service. The Long Island steam and trolley lines have had much trouble, but steam lines through New Jersey and to up-state points seem to be fairly regular. In the city, the street department by making an early attack on the snow, did good work. The worst feature is the sidewalks, as the stores being closed, no one was on hand to shovel and the snow was tramped down. Little business is expected in the markets today.

NOTES.

A law suit has just been settled, at White Plains, that may be of interest to florists. Frederick W. Smythe of Wadley & Smythe of this city and Newport, R. I., sued Samuel Untermeyer, the noted lawyer, to recover a balance of $7,800 in commission for laying out and planting the Untermeyer gardens on the estate known as "Greystone" at Yonkers. Hearings have been going on for some time before a referee. The case was settled for $5,000. Mr. Smythe's total commission is said to have been $138,000. He stated that in 1915, Mr. Untermeyer told him that he wanted the finest floral gardens in America. Work was started in 1918 laying out Grecian gardens, planning temples and great floral displays. It was in evidence that about $1,000,000 was spent on the estate. The amount asked was on a basis of 10 per cent on the materials and plants. Mr. Smythe said that he went to England and bought more than $20,000 worth of rhododendrons. Mr. Untermeyer set up a counter claim contending that Mr. Smythe had received a commission from the English florists and nurserymen. Testimony was taken in England as to the value of the rhododendrons.

Sympathy is extended to Alfred H. Langjahr, the well-known wholesaler, on account of the death of his wife, Mrs. Agnes M. Langjahr, the sad event occurring on February 18. The funeral was held at the family home, Corydon Road, Jamaica estates, February 20. Besides her husband, she is survived by several children.

Costas Sakelos, formerly in business at Broadway and 181st street, as the Fort Washington Florist, has sold his interest there to his former partner and has purchased a retail store located at Eighth avenue and 125th street.

News has been received in this city of the recent death at Barrie, Ontaio, of Matthew Sampson, Sr., father of Matthew, Jr., William and Ernest Sampson, all well known in the trade here. He was born in Scotland in 1843.

A snowstorm that would do credit to Duluth, Minn., or Medicine Hat, Canada, struck this city at an early hour on the morning of February 20. The present outlook at noon is for an almost complete tie-up of traffic.

A. C. McCann and wife have taken the retail store at 5205 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, long conducted by the late Henry Murphy and later by his widow. Mr. McCann had been with Joseph Trepel for seven years.

Hugh Peake, a veteran of the war with previous experience in the wholesale business, and Leon Devlin, also an experienced man, have formed a partnership and taken space with Harry Charles.

The Nippon Florist, who several months ago opened a retail store at 265 Columbus avenue, has recently made large additions to his stock of dwarf trees and other Japanese novelties.

L. A. Hauser, the well known salesman of the Cut Flower Exchange, has so far recovered from his recent attack of pneumonia as to pay the Exchange a short visit.

Peter F. McKenney, 42nd street near Fifth avenue, had an interesting and amusing window exhibit of St. Valentine's dolls, with appropriate floral decorations.

Joseph Trepel, Brooklyn, has leased another store, at 95 Main street, Flushing, and will take possession as soon as extensive improvements are completed.

At the store of Wadley & Smythe, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, it was stated their business had been good on Lincoln's birthday.

It is rumored that a new retail store will soon be opened on Thirty-fourth street, near Lexington avenue.

The Chas. A. Dards store reported that their St. Valentine's day business was excellent.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., February 9. Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. Y., gave a short talk on the spring show soon to take place in New York, and W. A. Sperling, New York, told of the Sweet Pea exhibition to be held there in June. Various prizes were awarded by the Society, one of the winners being Jack Everett, for a pot of Mrs. Charles Pike freesias. The committee on the tulip show reported that conditions looked favorable for a record exhibition. Exhibits for the March 9 meeting will consist of a pot of tulips, 12 antirrhinums, mixed, and three heads of cauliflower. Seven members were taken into the Society.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Members of the Minnesota Garden Flower Society recently held a meeting, at which several papers were presented.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Green Lake Floral Co.'s range was damaged to the extent of $15,000 February 1, the principal loss being to plants and stock destroyed by the wind.

E. C. DUNGAN, of the Wm. Henry Maule Co., is confined to his home with illness.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Northrup, King & Co. report their commission box business excellent to date.

THE nominal price of bags at Chicago, February 23, was $30 to $32 with a few brands holding out for $35.

THE big eastern snowfall of February 20 has closed out the premature spring weather and slowed down the seed business.

HON. W. H. WOODRUFF, of F. H. Woodruff & Sons, Milford, Conn., is at Harvey, Ill., in jumper and overalls cleaning onion sets.

MECHANICSBURG, O.—The manager of the Wing Seed Co. is reported combining Florida interests, with new headquarters at Jacksonville.

CHAS. P. GUELF, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., who was detained a week in New York with influenza, is again on the trail.

CINCINNATI, O. — The Cincinnati Seed Co., has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000 to operate a seed business and conduct nurseries. The incorporators are Robert O. Strong, A. C. Creamer, D. R. Van Atta, Milbourne D. Moore and H. P. Henderson. —J. W. L.

VISITED CHICAGO: L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., returning from the east; C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., Ed Reynolds, of the Crabb, Reynolds, Taylor Co., Crawfordsville, Ind., L. M. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif.

THE W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., says its mail trade is considerably ahead of a year ago. This is true of most of the eastern mail order houses catering to the small garden seed trade, but does not apply to the market garden and jobbing business. Market gardeners and seed dealers in the small towns are still withholding their orders.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—W. H. Small is now with the Milwaukee Seed Co., Milwaukee, Wis. D. Peck is with S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich. J. H. Warren, Jr., and Harry Rankin, formerly with Small, are now with the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, and Paul Warren is with the Crabb, Reynolds, Taylor Co., Crawfordsville.—W. B. C.

Field Seeds.

There was but little activity in most seed markets during the week ending February 12 and further declines took place in prices of kinds of seed that have been tobogganing for several weeks. It is the opinion of many in the trade that country dealers will not buy in large quantities until prices become more stable. These dealers have done little or no speculative buying this year. Farmers are slow to buy and apparently are undecided as to what crops to plant in the face of declining values in practically all agricultural commodities.

Clovers. — Approximately 320,000 pounds of red clover seed arrived at New York City from France. In several important markets declines of $1 to $2 per 100 pounds in red and alsike clover seed prices took place during the week. Sweet clover prices were a little lower in a few cities and growers were having much difficulty in obtaining bids from dealers even on the present low level of prices, which are about one-third of those prevailing last year on the same date.

Grasses.—Timothy was quoted 25 cents per 100 lbs. lower in a number of markets. Approximately 195,000 pounds were exported during the week to Denmark, Scotland, and Holland. The export demand for meadow fescue has been fairly good, about 85,000 pounds going principally to Denmark and England during the week. Only minor changes occurred in the prices for other grass seeds.

Seed Grains.—The demand for seed oats has been very good in many southern states and in a few, at least, of the eastern states. Stocks in most cases are ample to take care of the demand. Texas shippers have been selling Red Rust Proof oats at 55 to 60 cents per bushel, in carload lots. In Alabama and Mississippi the same variety is being sold at 70 cents to 85 cents per bushel wholesale, and Tennessee Burt Oats are being sold at about 10 cents per bushel over these prices. In the central northwest the demand for oats has been small and seedmen are not carrying large stocks. Minnesota and Dakota-grown oats are being wholesaled at 60 to 75 cents per bushel, depending upon variety and quality, and Canadian-grown at 80 to 90 cents. The stocks of all seed grains held by seedmen in the northwest, with the possible exception of spring rye, are reported to be sufficient to meet their requirements, which in general are expected to be smaller than last year.

Alabama and Mississippi were among the few states whose dealers indicated that there would be a good demand for seed corn. Elsewhere dealers are of the opinion that, except in certain localities, plenty of seed corn of excellent quality will be available close at hand. In the southern states native seed corn is being sold by dealers at $1.85 to $2 per bushel. In eastern states dent corn grown in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is being wholesaled at $1.30 to $1.75 and flint corn grown in the east at $2.50 to $3.75, depending mostly upon variety. In the central northwest the northern-grown varieties in greatest demand are being sold at about $2.25.

Missouri Field Seeds.

The seed list issued last week by the Missouri Corn Growers' Association through its Secretary C. E. Carter, of the Missouri Agricultural Extension Service, includes nearly 10,000 bushels of tested and certified field seeds—a notable increase over former lists. The list offers 6,790 bushels of corn at prices averaging $4 a bushel, 2265 bushels of soybeans averaging $6 a bushel, 140 bushels of Red clover at $12 and 20 bushels of cowpeas at $5.

Pumpkin Vision.

Who would expect to find the temper of a people in a pumpkin seed? Who would dare to characterize the American will to face the issues of the present day as the dried-up progeny of Nature?

Do not consult the scientists, it will avail nothing. Instead, page that honorable body of men in Washington who are supposed to represent the people.

The house of representatives got back to pre-war form by passing an appropriation of $365,000 to shower its constituents with free seeds during the year. Just why it should favor seeds, in discrimination against phonographs, hand painted china, kitchen cabinets, and a wealth of other material that the average American household can use, is not known. But the river and harbor bill bringing ocean transportation up Peshuty creek, Tennessee, is still in abeyance! In any case the free seeds bill passed with little objection.

There should be no need of making light of the problems that face our government. We are confronted with issues that not alone touch the very welfare of all citizens today, but which reach down into the coming generations to exact their toll. It is well therefore that we consider what this free seed bill signifies, in relation to the people and our present status.

The American people have signified through the house of representatives that they are not awake to facts. They have intimated that the biggest lesson of the war, a lesson on waste, has not struck home. It marks a lack of realization that the government is in debt to the extent of some twenty-five billions of dollars, which means that the American people—you, me, your neighbor and every single one of us, man, woman or child—must dig down into our pocketbooks every year and keep on digging down until we, the people, have given our government twenty-five billion dollars.

With these facts before us consider the nerve of congressmen who saddle you with an additional debt for seeds, they call "free," but for which every citizen will contribute payment. The truth of the matter is the times and conditions in this country seem to affect the people, but do not affect the representatives of the people. There is yet no sign in congress of a complete paring down of appropriations such as is warranted by the nation's debts. The fault is with the people.

The tempest of their wrath has been recently expended in getting rid of an administration where inefficiency and waste ruled. The people having made a good job of it now return to the slumber that permitted the inefficiency in the first place. The result is about as could be expected.

Certain politicians have gauged the people's temper to a pumpkin seed with the result—there is another raid on the American treasury. Such practices will stop when the people sincerely show that they want them to stop.—Minneapolis Journal.

Other papers that were presented were: "Native Plants and Their Uses," by Kenneth Gillett, Southwick, Mass.; "Duty of the Nurseryman to His Customers," by John Barnes, Yalesville; "Thoughts of Interest to Nurserymen," by State Forester Walter O. Filley, New Haven; and "Fungei," by Dr. G. E. Clinton, New Haven.

This was the first time that ladies had been invited to a meeting of the Association. The following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year: Henry W. Gottschalk, president; William W. McCartney, New Haven, vice-president; Frank J. Rippin, Manchester, secretary, and William W. Hunt, Hartford, treasurer. Executive committee: C. R. Burr, Manchester; F. S. Baker, Cheshire, and W. E. Campbell, New Haven.

Fruit Stocks and Brown Tail Moth.

The following telegram has been forwarded to state officials, by the Federal Horticultural board: "French fruit seedlings arriving heavily infested brown-tail moth nests. Urge thorough inspection all shipments your state."

The board has just been advised that since January 1, 1921, 12 shipments of French fruit seedlings have been found to contain nests of the Brown-Tail moth. These interceptions were made, with the exception of two, by federal inspectors in New York, by officials of the following states: New York, Indiana, and North Carolina. The finding of so many shipments in such a brief period harboring nests of the Brown-Tail moth, would indicate a decided laxity on the part of the French inspectors, and should emphasize the urgent need of careful and consistent examination of all shipments from France coming under your jurisdiction.

Owing to lack of facilities and inspectors at the port of first arrival, it is possible to make only a superficial examination of a limited number of cases in each shipment. State officials should therefore make careful inspection of all foreign nursery stock, especially of French origin, and the board heartily recommends the burning of all packing material.

Experiments are under way in Boston, Mass., to determine the possibility of killing hibernating Brown-Tail larvae by vacuum fumigation. In the meantime, steps have been taken to have all French shipments given such fumigation as is now required for cotton. If vacuum fumigation will not kill all larvae contained in nests, it may be necessary to cancel all existing permits for French stock.

Attention is also called to the repeated finding of nests of the White Tree pierid on French suit seedlings. The larva of this insect is a general feeder and is recorded as injuring the foliage of fruit and wild rosaceous plants and oak trees in Europe. Nests of the White Tree pierid are usually smaller than those of the Brown-Tail moth, and sometimes do not contain living larvae. If there is any doubt in your mind as to the insect collected, it should be forwarded to the Horticultural board for determination by specialists, after steps have been taken to kill any larvae which may be contained in the nests.

Ageratum Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that it is a blue, a decided blue, that will be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about 8 to 10 inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense truss of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can very easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

POTATO acreage in Ohio has decreased to the extent of 88,000 acres in the past ten years. An important factor in the lessened production is said to be diseased seed.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 22.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $6.50 to $7.50; leaf lettuce, per box, 22½ to 25 cents.

New York, February 18.—Cucumbers, per dozen, 75 cents to $4.00; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $4.00.

Soil Warmers.

Tile drainage is an important means of warming the soil in the spring and thus making it fit for use, say experienced farmers. F. L. Allen of Trumbull county, Mo., reports having taken the temperature of rain water many times as it fell and then again as it emerged from the drain tile. The drainage water was 20 degrees Fahrenheit colder than the original rain water. At this rate, specialists say that each inch of rainfall in the spring might be expected to raise the average temperature of the top 30 inches of soil 2.8 degrees Fahrenheit. The greater part of this heat would be left in the upper areas of the soil, thus raising its temperature considerably more than the average of 2.8 degrees. Mr. Allen also points out that snow in the spring melts more rapidly on drained than undrained land. This, he believes, is due to the warmer temperature of the tiled soil.

Greenhouse Tomatoes.

One of the perplexing problems on many a greenhouse place where lettuce is grown exclusively is how to find a warm spot to produce the young tomato plants for inside planting. Some growers accomplish their purpose by starting their plants very early—as early as December. It takes a long time to grow a good plant in such a low temperature as is prevalent in lettuce houses. Recently we saw an equipment where a grower arranged a special heater provided with hot water pipes for bottom heat, to produce his tomato plants. He used gas, but we suppose in the absence of gas, either coal oil or gasoline could be used. This man equipped a sufficient length of bench in one of his plant houses to hold his tomatoes and he is pleased with the results. We believe in the long run, plants started later, and given a brisk heat, are superior to those which have been under way for a long time in cold, dark weather. Also there is a strong belief among many growers that the less transplanting one is compelled to do, the better the final crop will be. In other words, these men want to produce a strong, healthy seedling plant and shift directly from the seed bed to permanent location, without the use of any flats, pots, or dirt bands. This practice may seem doubtful, but those who have tried it, are much in favor of it.

Of all the plans that we have seen to produce tomato plants quickly and cheaply, none beats the hot-bed right inside of a greenhouse. Simply build a frame on the ground, of ample size to hold your plants and fill with hot horse manure about 12 inches deep. Compact thoroughly and use three inches of soil on it. Be sure and have the material full to the top, so as not to confine the plants too much. Sow the seed into this bed, and be sure to sow thinly, as an over abundance of plants means a bad beginning. We have seen plants make more headway in such a place in six weeks than in three months by the cold process. This indoor hot-bed needs no attention whatsoever, which is a big factor in its favor.

Farm Census of United States.

The director of the fourteenth census of agriculture for the United States, 1920, announces, subject to correction, that the total number of farms in the United States is 6,459,998, compared with 6,361,502 in 1910, and 5,737,372 in 1900. The average increase in the 1910-1920 period was one and one-half per cent, the states showing the greatest gain being California with 29,493 additional farms, Montana, 31,227, Minnesota, 22,451, Texas, 17,896 and North Carolina, 16,015. The greatest decreases showed in New York, 22,537, Pennsylvania, 17,039, Ohio, 15,346 and Illinois, 14,719. The increase in number of farms during the 1900-1910 period was 10.9 per cent.

TRADE STEADY THOUGH QUIET.

The past week has been rather dull, following the activity incidental to St. Valentine's day. All of the florists report a quiet week, but with a generally steady trade. This is usually the condition following February 14 and was not unexpected. Funeral work has not been very brisk and the same is true of party work. In fact parties have not been as good as usual and with the coming of Lent they are still further reduced. A fair demand for corsages and loose flowers as well as pot plants is seen. Orders are rather numerous, but they are generally small and that reduces the volume somewhat. Florists anticipate a steady trade from this time on with nothing to break the monotony until Easter. Preparations are being made for an extra heavy demand around Easter. Roses, sweet peas, carnations, violets, narcissi, tulips and jonquils are the leading flowers at this time. Sweet peas are probably in the best demand, followed by violets, roses and carnations. Prices are fairly steady at the levels which have prevailed for some time. The supply of all flowers is generally good and the quality is excellent. Sunshine recently has had the effect of ripening flowers. In pot plants there is a fair demand for primroses, hyacinths and jonquils.

SEEDS.

THE DIENER TOMATO

Increase your tomato yield one hundred per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30-40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains very little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED: Sample pkg., 25c; one-quarter of an acre pkg., 50c; one acre pkg., $1.50.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date dahlias in existence. No place in the world have dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of peony, cactus and decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised dahlias from it; but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs. Price, $0.50 per package.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas From Cuttings.

New sweet pea varieties being always expensive and not always seeding freely, multiplication by cutting may be made to increase the production from a certain amount of seed four or five fold. First of all, the mother plants must be grown short and stocky, for cuttings from weak plants would be worthless. When the plants are four to five inches high and have five to six joints, make the cuttings with a good pair of scissors, just above the third joint. Scissors are better than a knife, on account of the fibrous stems, which, resisting the knife, are apt to tear or pull the roots. Remove the leaves from the cutting, except the upper two, and pot in sand in thumb-pots, taking care to place them near the edge. Water before and after potting and cover with glass; wipe the glass now and then, to remove superfluous moisture, and shade if too hot, though the cuttings like the light. They will be rooted in two or three weeks, when the glass may be removed, and a week later they may be repotted and treated the same as seedlings, well cared for, and will bloom and give the same results about the same time.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach, the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best culture.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date. Easter this year comes March 27, and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stems and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continual fight against aphis from this time on, and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner, splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom; the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can produce a strain which, after two or three years' selection, will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day, so as to secure a thorough polination. To catch and hold the seed, take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upwards so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened, and as the spike grows, the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Theatre Decorations.

At a recent opening of the new Rivoli theatre at La Crosse, Wis., the entire theatre and foyer were decorated under the direction of C. E. Schaefer, superintendent of the floral department of the John A. Salzer Seed Company. The effect was unusual and very pleasing. On entering the lobby a large floral horseshoe standing eight feet high composed of over 2,500 roses and other flowers received very favorable comment. The theatre proper and the stage were decorated with huge baskets of American Beauty roses. The artistry of Mr. Schaefer was freely commented upon. This was by far the largest display of flowers ever exhibited in La Crosse.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Business is not very brisk these Lenten days except for the early morning funeral orders, without which work, three-fourth of the stores would have to close and the balance go on half-time. However, much one dislikes to admit it, this demand is the backbone of the florist's industry, and every retailer should do everything in his power to foster this branch of the business and be prepared at all times with his best possible service.

At one time the conventional color was white. Designs of all kinds were in favor; pillows, crosses, wreaths, gates ajar, harps, crescent and star, standing hearts, broken columns, etc. Now all colors are popular and the more simple the arrangement the better, 70 per cent of the orders call for sprays, half or more of the balance are wreaths. At a recent funeral of a young woman, there were 78 pieces, two of which were wreaths, the balance being clusters and sprays; some small, others large and elaborate. Every flower in the market was seen in the collection: Roses, carnations, Easter and Calla lilies had the preference, but freesias, calendulas, daffodils, snapdragons, tulips, narcissi and violets were all used, separately and in combination. There were also some cattleyas. Now that the color line is broken, every flower regardless of hues, either by itself or in combination, is suitable to carry a message of sympathy. Vase baskets are now being used quite extensively as they make a good showing of the flowers, and the stems being in water do not wilt when it is necessary to be carried over into the next day.

The most should be made of boxes of spring flowers, which with the aid of cut flowers of various sizes, some filled and open and others closed, make a good display with but little perishable material. The store should be gay with pans and pots of bulbous stock and other flowering plants, all featured in one way or another to make them inviting.

THE BIRTHDAY CALENDAR.

The birthday feature should also be well displayed every week or two, as it frequently brings to mind such an anniversary that would otherwise be missed. In fact a nicely decorated calendar in which the "whose birthday is today" idea is well worked out, should be on duty all the time on the stationery and have a prominent place on the wall of the store.

A most attractive feature for the windows are miniature table decorations for the luncheon or dinner. With a nice white cloth, dishes are not necessary, except possibly plates. These can be made in various color combinations and will be sure to secure attention and make business for the shop.

A small table in the front of the store should always contain a few artistically arranged vase baskets with just a few flowers, such as a dozen daffodils or 12 short roses, a bunch of sweet peas, etc. These always have an inviting, salable look, particularly when the conspicious price card shows them to be within reach. Many little knicknacks such as these are sold because they are seen, that would otherwise never be asked for.

A large vase filled with Easter lilies, flanked with decorated pans of bulbous stock, hyacinths and tulips in various colors will if properly labeled make a good pre-Easter window. It is none to early to call attention to the day, and the decoration on account of its novelty will be well worth while for several days.

Speaking about Easter, now is the time to get your order in for all the fancies and first choices of flower stocks, as there is never enough of the scarce things to go around and it is always "first come, first served."

If a dull time appears likely, do not let it get set, but get busy at once and liven matters up by sending out sample boxes of spring flowers to customers. Fifty or 100 of these boxes with just a bunch of choice sweet peas, daffodils, calendulas or other quantity stock, each of a kind, will be well received and appreciated. It will be found the best kind of direct advertising.

Every customer on the store's list should receive an interesting communication of some sort from the shop at least once a month during the busy season. It keeps the establishment before them and there is a thought that they must take a look in at the first opportunity. There should always be some interesting feature in the store to attract attention of customers, something that they will remember and may speak about to others. A flower picture in a frame, an imitation of a painting on an easel is always striking. A nicely decorated screen with a tall palm or fern or two and a vase of flowers on a pedestal will make an attractive corner. Such artistic touches are sure to give a finish to the store interior.

WITH THE GROWERS

At Richmond, Ind.

At the J. H. Hill Co.'s greenhouses, roses are grown exclusively, and a superior plant cannot be found in America. The houses are of the latest model, of iron construction, and with one exception, every house on the place was either constructed or newly painted last year, giving the whole range a clean and new appearance.

Probably two-thirds of the place is given over to Premier and Columbia roses, with the former a favorite. Madam Butterfly is also grown in large quantity and is quite a favorite, while Double White Killarney and Crusader are in smaller supply. The stock is free from mildew, red spiders or spots. The Premier rose shows up splendidly. One house that stands out prominently is a Lord & Burnham steel structure, 26 by 187 feet, in which 2,141 grafted Premiers are planted. They are all two-year stock, being grown the first year in one of the 60-foot houses. The plants were dried off and cut back last May, and transplanted into the present structure. No picture ever displayed to such good advantage as this house full of roses. The cut to date averages exactly 22 blooms per plant. They are planted 12 to 16 inches apart.

This firm is the possessor of a red sport of Columbia. While the flower is not quite so double as the parent plant, the color is a pleasing bright red and a very free bloomer. The stock of this variety is being worked up as fast as possible and may be put on the market next year. One of the special features of this range is grafted roses and they are turned out in hundreds of thousands. Some are out of the grafting box on benches and ready for shipment; others to be taken out of the box and great quantities are still to be grafted. Plants to be taken out do not lose more than five per cent.

THE E. G. HILL CO. RANGE.

The E. G. Hill Co.'s range is in close proximity to the Jos. H. Hill Co. The veteran E. G. Hill takes great delight in showing his seedling roses. He has given us such sterling varieties as Richmond, Columbia, and Premier, the cream of the forcing varieties and a number of garden varieties of merit. There is still in store some wonderful new colors that Mr. Hill hopes will prove good commercial forcing sorts. There is no doubt that he has produced one variety which he has named Hill's America, and which will surprise the trade.

A large force of men are busy grafting thousands of roses. The stock in the benches is in excellent condition. Young chrysanthemum plants are given a large space at this plant. White Ophelia and Golden Ophelia as novelties have been tried this winter with satisfactory results.

A visit would not be complete without taking in the Fred H. Lemon & Co.'s place. The new white rose which they are growing is to be disseminated next year. Its appearance will supply a long felt want for a white rose. The growth is everything to be desired and it seems to be a very free producer. While not a snow white it is white enough for all purposes. This concern also makes a specialty of Primula Malacoides Rosa and cyclamen. Both are grown in large quantity and are well finished plants. Also worthy of note is a large stock of Godfrey callas. W. W. C.

At Lancaster, Pa.

The establishment of Chas. M. Weaver has sweet peas by the million and in almost every known variety, including all of the new ones of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., and with Geo. W. Kerr, Philadelphia, the originator of these new varieties as a guide, it is an educational and intellectual treat to walk down the 300-foot rows and compare the different varieties. The cut from this place is enormous and almost continuous. A house of mignonette, having passed it's zenith, has been torn out to make way for a house of gladioli, of which Mr. Weaver has the second largest lot of bulbs in the county.

THE ELMER WEAVER RANGE.

At Elmer Weaver's range, one house is given half to sweet peas and the other half to carnations. The house is a mile or less high and the the sweet peas are hunting the roof, double tier walks being necessary to pick the flowers. In carnations, White Benora carries the honors in the white class and it will take something phenomenal to beat it, as it is done at this establishment. Aviator is the standard scarlet carnation, showing better quality than in most places. Laddie is, of course, the cream of them all, with some seedlings not so far behind in quality. Ruth Baur is also showing up in pretty good shape, but, of course, the main attraction is the Eicholz varieties and they all show up in good form. Lassie especially, is a mass of buds and blooms, the color even and pleasing and the stems are reasonably strong, carrying the flower in good shape. Red Matchless has extra fine growth, a real Matchless flower as to stem and form, but not as bright a red as Redhead, which has that orange red shading in its pedals that makes it ideal for use under artificial light. Redhead is not quite as strong a grower as Red Matchless, but is a free bloomer and has many good points.

The immense house of Pilgrim roses here is an eye opener as to what Lancaster county can do in roses. They are ideal in growth and quality and number of blooms showing. Mushrooms are also part of this establishment.

At the range of H. D. and A. K. Rohrer, primroses have their home. Primula Obconica and Primula Forbesii are here by the thousand and as good as it is possible to grow them. They also grow, as pot plants several houses of cinerarias and cyclamens, and are not very far behind the best growers of the country. In cut flowers, carnations and calla lilies are their specialties.

New York Spring Show.

Entries covering exhibits in the competitive section of the show are coming in well, in fact, much better at this date than for the same time previous to other shows. Some of the entries cover a dozen or more classes. The advantage of making early entries cannot be too strongly emphasized. With the entries at hand early, the work of preparing exhibitors' cards and judges' books is advanced so as to be in line with the other work preceding the opening. At more than one show, when the management has been liberal with exhibitors in the matter of last-moment entries, the result has been a delay in the posting of cards on the exhibits because the cards could not be prepared in time for the judges, in spite of extra volunteered assistance to the clerical staff.

At the last meeting of the flower show committee, it was decided that Rule 2 of the rules governing the exhibition should be strictly enforced. This rule stated that all entries must be in the secretary's hands not later than March 10, and that a charge of $2 will be assessed for every entry made after these dates covering classes where the first prize listed is $10 or more, and $1 in classes where the first prize is less than $10; and the management reserves the right to reject any or all entries received after the date named. The committee believes that any prospective exhibitor can decide whether his proposed exhibit will be in readiness for the staging date, and can make his entry by the date established.

In the early notice covering the class for the bird bath with planting arrangement, through a misunderstanding, it was stated that the arrangement was to cover a space of three feet in diameter. This was later corrected to read 50 square feet of floor space or seven by seven feet. The competition is open only to member clubs of the Garden Club of America, and the prizes are offered by the Horticultural Society of New York and the flower show management. Several entries in this class have already been received. In the class for the best vase or basket of cut flowers, open also only to member clubs of the Garden Club of America, the prizes are by the same donors. A correction is also made concerning the class covering window boxes. This class is for garden clubs and amateurs only, but of course the assistance of commercial florists may be availed of on the procuration of materials. The competition is to be staged under the auspices of the Cities Garden Club.

The Garden Club of America, through Mrs. Samuel Sloan, acting president, will award a gold medal, to be known as "The Garden Club of America Medal," for the finest exhibit in the show. Very little more space is available for trade exhibit purposes, the trade section being now almost completely filled. It is confidently expected that every foot of trade space will be reserved before the opening.

The official catalogue is now being prepared for press, and carries the usual support of trade interests. Anyone desiring space in this publication would do well to make immediate application for same, as the forms cannot be kept open beyond a certain date. Trade tickets are now in good demand, and are furnished promptly upon receipt of application for them. A rebate will be made on all tickets not used, provided the purchase covered a block of 100 or more.

Considerable optimism prevails as to the success of the exhibition show, on the part of the management, every member of which is enthusiastically confident that the show of 1921 will eclipse all its predecessors in point of magnificence and attendance.

ADDITIONAL EXHIBITORS.

Exhibitors not previously announced are:

Hanfling & Son, New York.
Markle & Co., Chatham, N. J.
S. H. Russin, New York.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Allied Florists' Association of Illinois.

The Allied Florists' Association of Illinois has closed its first year's work and celebrated the occasion with a dinner at the Hotel Randolph, Chicago, February 28. There was a good attendance and the members have every reason to feel proud of their inspiring record of service to the trade. After dinner Chairman Asmus told of the work of the association, urging increased efforts of growers, wholesalers and retailers. August Poehlmann, Peter Pearson, J. E. Pollworth, C. Clemenson and others, discussed the importance of trade advertising and the reports of officers indicated a progressive and promising future for the organization. August Lange, Eric Johnson and Peter Pearson were re-elected directors for three years, the holdover directors being August Poehlmann, Otto Amling, Paul R. Klingsporn, George Asmus, John Michelsen and W. J. Smyth. It should be stated that practically all the work of the association falls upon the board of directors and Secretary Hilmer V. Swenson. A stereoptican display showed many of the effective advertisements which appeared in the local newspapers during the year.

REPORT OF SECRETARY.

Secretary Swenson in his annual report stated that the Allied Florists' Association had been in existence just a year. The average member, he said, does not comprehend the extensive activity carried on by the association. A year ago, the membership consisted of 342 wholesalers, retailers and growers. Today the association has 450 members, showing an increase of 90.

The finances are in very good condition, a total of $34,455.99 having been received with disbursements of $33,823.76, leaving a balance of $632.23. By March 10, $5,000 is expected to be added to the treasury.

EFFECT OF ADVERTISING.

A total of $25,682.87 has been expended for advertising. This amount had been distributed among the newspapers of Chicago and a few outside mediums, 155 distinct advertisements having appeared during the year, the secretary brought out. The association has recently purchased illuminating bill-board sites, one of which is already showing on Michigan bouleyard, just south of Chicago avenue. Another will appear shortly on West Jackson boulevard. All of this advertising has stimulated business materially. The Memorial day drive revived the business for that day, Mr. Swenson said. In spite of business depression in other lines the opportune advertising for New Year's day and St. Valentine's day made trade for both of these days exceptionally good. Every retailer interviewed by the secretary reported gains over last year. One reported an increase of $1,100 on one day's sales for St. Valentine's day. People often refer to the advertising and the familiar reminder the association has been using, "Whose Birthday Comes this Month?"

PRESS PUBLICITY.

The Allied Florists' Association has received more reading matter write-ups in the papers during the past year than any other industry in Chicago, the secretary continued. All the newspaper write-ups received have been secured directly or indirectly through the association. Ella Grant Wilson, whose wonderful articles on flowers have been appearing in the papers, is employed on a yearly contract by the association. Another example of good free publicity was last Memorial day when the association joined hands with the Tribune Memorial day fund for decorating the graves of soldiers in France.

"Say It With Flowers" week was the record in free publicity. The total space, if figured on an advertising basis, would have cost approximately $15,000. The giving of flowers to hospitals, soldiers and sailors and by cooperating with the Red Cross and other organizations brought further publicity which is impossible to estimate.

The publicity campaign of the association and its other activities have benefited the business in a very decided degree, said Mr. Swenson. "Say It With Flowers" is so universally known that it has become a part of everyday talk.

There is not a firm directly interested in the sale of flowers who can say they have not gotten back $3 or more for every dollar they've been assessed. This would mean that a man buying $500 in flowers on the market, pays $5 in assessment. He would only have to get back $15.00 in additional profit during the month to make this possible. The success of the advertising campaign has been phenomenal. During the last few months practically every line of business has fallen off 10 to 50 per cent, yet the flower business has kept up to normal.

The secretary, in concluding, said the results of the first year's activity, handicapped as it had been in perfecting organization, should warrant double the unified action in the future, and everyone in the trade should get behind the Allied Florists' Association. He wished to thank the board of directors for their sacrifices in attending meetings.

PRICES REMAIN HIGH.

There is still a great scarcity of all greenhouse flowers and prices are ruling exceedingly high for this season of the year. There has been a noticeable increase in the demand for all kinds of flowers and trade may be said to be in fine condition. Roses are one of the principal items that are scarce. There is a shortage of every variety and color. American Beauty roses have improved wonderfully in quality during the past few weeks and what stock that is coming in is of the best. Mrs. Chas. A. Russell is in great demand and the best grade is bringing $3.50 to $4.50 a dozen. Columbia and Hadley are both scarce and are bringing the growers fancy prices. Premier is had in limited quantities and is a very popular variety. Ophelia of good quality is in particularly short supply. Very few Killarney roses are seen here now. Cecile Brunner is almost out of the market entirely. Carnations, which are usually cheap at this season of the year, are in strong demand and bring $6 per 100 for Enchantress, in variety. Victory and other colors. Laddie holds firm at $12 per 100. Daffodils have shortened up in quantity and prices have stiffened accordingly. They are now bringing from $1.25 to $1.50 per 100 for outdoor grown stock. They are in strong demand from all quarters and the daily cut cleans up early in the day. There seems to be enough tulips to go around but most of the stock is rather short-stemmed. Dutch hyacinths are improving every day and are filling in nicely during these days of short supply. Freesias continue in heavy supply and of the very best quality. Prices remain firm for all offerings. Sweet peas continue to arrive in small lots. At the present time the stock is only of mediocre quality. Growers of this flower are demanding and receiving fine prices for their flowers. A few Easter lilies are beginning to appear in pots at the various stores. There is the usual heavy supply of violets coming in. The shipping trade is the great outlet for the most part of every day's cut. Marie Louise violets continue to be very popular for corsage work. There is a fair cut of lily of the valley arriving, which brings satisfactory figures. Cattleyas are quite plentiful, but the demand for them is so strong that they clean up well at $3 each retail. Cypripediums are not so plentiful as heretofore. Very few gardenias are to be had these days. Erica branches still are plentiful and are largely used on funeral work. Acacia is also plentiful and cheap. The supply of fruit blossoms is now at its height and all the stores carry large stocks, giving them a very beautiful appearance these days. The flowering plants, cinerarias, azaleas and primulas are about the principal offerings. Dutch bulbs in pans are also to be seen everywhere. From various sources we learn that the Easter lily supply is coming along in good shape with every prospect of a good supply for the Easter trade. Some of the growers cut down their plantings considerably this year, due no doubt to the disasterous effects of last season, when the greater part of the supply came in after Easter and flooded the market for many weeks. There is also going to be an excellent supply of pot roses, in every popular variety. Pot grown ericas will also be largely featured.

NOTES.

John Carbone is filling large orders for cattleyas, of which he is cutting a heavy supply these days. His cypripedium houses are also in full crop.

He has several new houses of gardenias, which produce well.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. are showing a finely grown lot of spring bulbs in pans. Tulips in variety and Dutch hyacinths, according to Angelo J. Rossi, are very popular with the public.

Cypress Lawn cemetery has recently added two greenhouses, 35x125 feet each, to its range at Colma. They will be used for the growing of cut stock for the cemetery trade.

Henry Anensino, who some time ago purchased the McLellan greenhouses at San Lorenzo, is preparing to erect two large greenhouses at his range to be devoted to roses.

John Kilroy, proprietor of the Castro Floral Shop, reports business to be excellent in his part of the city. Funeral work has been heavy and decorations plentiful.

G. Rossi & Co. say that the shipping demand is ahead of last season. Their nurseries at Colma are supplying large quantities of bulbous stock and foliage plants.

Joseph Scatena is receiving from three to four thousand daffodils a day from San Lorenzo, where he is handling the entire cut of several growers.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has a fine house of Lilium Giganteum, which will be just right for their Easter trade.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, on Hyde street, says the shipping demand for violets keeps up just as strong as ever.

J. A. Axell has just closed a lease for five years more on his present location at 463 Bush street.

The Okada nursery at Haywards is producing an excellent crop of carnations these days.

SUPPLY ADEQUATE FOR DEMAND.

Market conditions have not been very satisfactory since St. Valentine's day; all kinds of stock in cut flowers which up to the middle of February were always on the short side, began to come in more plentifully with the result that prices weakened all along the line. But it appears that that spell is over with and with Easter only four weeks hence, we believe that the prospects are good. Sweet peas, which suffered for lack of sunshine are coming better, but they have not the pep as in former seasons; still the demand for them is on the increase, pushing the once favorite violet to second place. Calla lilies are of good quality and sell well; the few good snapdragons that find their way to the market are quickly disposed of. The supply of calendulas is adequate and the quality from fair to fine. Fancy greens are not over plentiful.

NOTES.

Richard Haentze, president of the West State Florists' Association, has been mailing letters to members asking their co-operation in working for a bill to provide for an appropriation of $75,000 for a new horticultural building at the state fair grounds.

Another florist by the name of Henry, Jr., son of Henry Welke and wife, arrived on February 18. Mr. Welke has been elected a director of the upper Third street Commercial association.

An illustrated write-up on orchids was featured by a local paper on February 20, following a visit by a reporter to the Holton & Hunkel Co.'s range. Every little bit helps.

The Seebach-Marggraff Pottery Co. who recently acquired the Milwaukee Pottery Co., West Allis, is very busy trying to fill the numerous orders coming in.

Gustave Pohl, who grows stevias on a large scale, will make the last cutting March 1; the vacated space will then be devoted to sweet peas.

Aug. F. Kellner spent the week end at Madison, visitng his brother.

MARKET REMAINS QUIET

Business this week has been very quiet and stock has been exceptionally low in price for this season. On February 20, there was a blizzard which prevented a great many growers from getting their stocks to market at the beginning of the week. Prices were good and stock sold well owing to that fact, but the brace was only temporary; by mid-week things were normal again and stock became very plentiful. There is a lot of spring stock arriving especially jonquils and Paper White narcissi and they affect the market in general. Roses and carnations have been of very good quality but would not bring a good price under existing circumstances. Fancy carnations were selling as low as four cents, and roses proportionately. Sweet peas are a drug; even the very fancy long stem ones move with great difficulty.

The Late John M. Good.

NOTES.

The meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Parker House, March 1. A complimentary dinner was tendered by the Club to Thos. Roland, president of the Society of American Florists.

A. Thomas, for many years with Patten & Son, Tewksbury, but now the Boston correspondent of The Florists' Exchange, is seriously ill at his home with heart trouble.

The Waban Rose conservatories passed into the hands of a receiver this week. F. G. Goodale, Weston, will now manage the affairs of that company.

A SLIGHT DECLINE IN SALES.

After interviewing representative florists concerning their St. Valentine's day business, it can truthfully be reported that sales fell off about 10 per cent. which is considered remarkable by florists in view of the present depressing conditions. Despite this, it was also noted that flowers and plants are becoming increasingly popular as valentines. It was not the young men alone who bought flowers this year, but a large number of married men sent a bouquet or plant to their wives. This is encouraging and points to an ever-growing demand for Cupid's favorite day. The market, due to several bright days, was in excellent shape to take care of all demands and the quality of all offerings was splendid. There was a brisk demand for violets and sweet peas. The former were plentiful while the latter were scarce. Roses met with favor and there was a good supply. Daffodils, freesias, calendulas and jonquils were extensively used. Plants were in good supply and were featured. Many of them appropriately trimmed as hearts and arrows made appealing valentines and sold well. Nothing new in the line of novelties was offered in the flower shops, but there was a fair demand for such as were offered. Florist Telegraph Delivery Association orders played a substantial part in the day's business. Funeral work has been heavy during the past week. Business conditions are gradually showing improvement and florists hope that by Easter things will be near normal.

NOTES.

Bulbous stock in pots was an excellent offering at Schramm Bros. for St. Valentine's day that met with favor. This firm advertised extensively and reports a very good business, almost equal to that of last year.

Metz & Bateman were busy all day and state that the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association orders were particularly good. Violets and sweet peas led in the selling here.

The two shops of Wm Feninger did a big business and he had a fine display of cut flowers and plants.

MARKET IS STEADY.

Since the beginning of Lent, business has been somewhat dull, although there are occasional spurts of trade in funeral work and social functions. St. Valentine's day was an improvement over last year. Bulbous stock is very plentiful just now, so much so that the price on daffodils, tulips and narcissi take occasional drops. Carnations are only fair and the supply limited. Roses are excellent and the price is firm.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller's Sons' spring display window consisted of a huge mound of various colored crocus. Arranged around the window were baskets of Purple and Yellow crocus. Orange colored tulips were placed in baskets here and there, while pussy willows and Cibotium ferns formed the background.

S. C. Hubbard, superintendent of the test rose garden of the American Rose Society, Ithaca, spoke before the Rose Society recently on "Selection of Varieties of Roses for the Garden; Their Planting, Culture and Necessary Winter Protection."

William H. Medcalf, who was connected with the department of parks for 26 years, died February 17. Mr. Medcalf was born in England in 1854 and at the time of his death had charge of all of the trees in the streets of this city.

Miss Lillian Wheeler, who was severely injured by a fall two weeks ago, has resumed her duties at the H. E. Wilson store.

Herman John has purchased a home on Saint Paul boulevard, which he will occupy soon.

H. E. Wilson reports St. Valentine's day trade very good this year.

Geo. Keller is growing some excellent pussy willows.

OBITUARY.

Orland P. Bassett.

Orland P. Bassett, founder of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, died February 26th at Pasadena, Cal., where he had resided since 1907. His health had been gradually failing for several months.

Mr. Bassett was born on a farm in western Pennsylvania, near Pittsburgh, March 31, 1835. In early life he was in the newspaper business, and located in Illinois, where he conducted the Sycamore Republican, and was an ardent supporter of Abraham Lincoln in his campaign work. In 1870 he moved to Chicago and established the Pictorial Printing Co., making labels for druggists and others in that line of manufacture. This business was later moved to Aurora, Ill., and is now one of the leading industries of that city. Mr. Bassett, being the principal owner up to 1916, when he sold out to his associates in the company.

Purchasing some 30 acres of land at Hinsdale, Ill., Mr. Bassett built a home and moved there in 1887. He added a conservatory and soon after engaged in the commercial culture of American Beauty roses, having greatly admired this variety on a visit to Washington, D. C. The commercial growing of roses made rapid progress, as many as 100,000 American Beauty plants being grown at one time. The commercial greenhouses were later removed to Greggs station and now contain about 600,000 feet of glass. In 1893 his son-in-law, C. L. Washburn, who married Mr. Bassett's only daughter, joined him in the business, Mr. Bassett retiring from the greenhouse business in 1906.

Mr. Bassett is survived by his widow, Imogene D. Bassett, a son-in-law, Charles L. Washburn, a grandson, Edgar B. Washburn, and three great grandsons. Burial will be in the family lot at Hinsdale, Ill.

John M. Good.

John M. Good, former mayor of Springfield, O., and president of the Good and Reese Co., died February 16 at his home in that city, 1355 South Fountain avenue, aged 67 years. Mr. Good had not been in right health since last winter, when he fell while on the way to his office during one of the heavy snow storms. His condition gradually failed. He went to Florida the first of the year, but was forced to return 10 days previous to his death.

Mr. Good specialized in roses and peonies and in addition to directing the work of the widely known Springfield establishment, was president of the United States Nurseries Co., Roseacres, Miss., and of the Perennial Gardens Co.

Mr. Good was mayor of Springfield about 20 years ago, and actively engaged in politics at that time. Of late years he turned his attention to other public work. He was one of the active workers in all of the dry campaigns in the country, and was reputed to be one of the most liberal contributors to that cause. He also gave his services in the various government drives and Red Cross campaigns in that city.

He was a member of the First Lutheran church of Springfield and also a 32nd degree Mason. He was a member of the local Clark lodge, F. and A. M. He leaves his wife, Jessie Good; a daughter, Helen Good; a son, John M. Good, Jr.; a sister, Miss Jessie L. Good; and two brothers, Frank Good and Harry Good, all of Springfield.

Though born in Johnstown, Pa., Mr. Good spent the greater part of his life in Springfield, locating there in 1877. He became connected with the old C. A. Reese Floral Co., now the George H. Mellen Co., shortly after moving to Springfield. Some years later he organized the Good and Reese Co., finally acquiring the Reese interests in the firm and retaining the old trade name.

Ancestors of Mr. Good came to this country during the Quaker emigrations to the new world. One of the coincidences of his life is said to be the fact that a great, great uncle of Mr. Good's was captured by the Indians at Fort Tecumseh near Springfield during the Revolutionary war period, while the latter was on one of Clark's expeditions through that territory. He later escaped from Fort Niagara and made his way back to Pennsylvania.

The funeral services were held February 18 at the residence and many florists were present. The room was banked with many beautiful floral offerings.

Frank E. Good and Harry F. Good, brothers of the deceased, will carry on the business.

The Late O. P. Bassett.

Louis H. Haury

Louis H. Haury, Sr., veteran florist of Nashville, Tenn., passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. H. McHatten, Louisville, Ky., where he had gone, hoping to improve in health. He had been ill since the first of January, being confined to his bed the greater part of the time.

Mr. Haury was born in Lorraine, France, in 1848, coming to this country when 27 years of age. Four years later he came to Nashville, where he established a floral and vegetable garden. In 1916 Mr. Haury opened a floral store with his two sons as partners. Three children survive, the daughter mentioned above, John Haury, manager of the Nashville store, and Louis, Jr., owner of a range near that city. M. C. D.

Joseph B. Muldoon.

Joseph B. Muldoon, Philadelphia, Pa., failing to recover from an operation for appendicitis, died on February 23. The funeral was from the residence of his father-in-law, F. J. Michell. Mr. Muldoon occupied a position of importance with the H. F. Michell Co., having charge of the trade of the large estates in the Philadelphia district. He was of a kind and genial disposition and had hosts of friends in all branches of the trade. He is survived by his wife and one child. K.

The Late Peter Reinberg.

The funeral of the late Peter Reinberg, whose death was recorded in our obituary columns last week, took place February 24, when the city authorities, the trade and the public paid generous tribute to a worthy citizen. The wholesale houses in the trade were closed during the funeral services, the county building was closed the entire day. Men, women and children thronged the route of the procession between the residence and the church in which the funeral services were held. A platoon of mounted police led the way, followed by many marching platoons of police, firemen and various civic and fraternal bodies, the attendance including Former Governors Dunne and Deneen, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Mayor Thompson and many other notables. The floral offerings from all sections of the country, were the most numerous seen on any similar occasion in this city for many years past.

Mr. Reinberg's will, filed for probate February 28, leaves an estate valued at $550,000, bequeathed to members of his family.

Pittsburgh.

STOCK MOVED WITH DIFFICULTY.

There was very little change in market conditions last week when compared to the previous week. Vast quantities of stock of all kinds arrived and the market was congested with more stock than at any time this season. But by the wholesale houses making price concessions and most of the retail stores holding week end specials, the surplus was moved and by Saturday night there was very little to be carried over. Considerable poor stock was dumped on the market, on which it was hard to even realize enough to pay express charges. While at times it looked as if the situation might develop into a serious glut, at this writing the worst seems to be over and while prices were low all stock was moved out and nothing lost. The rose supply has been large and with plenty of the short and medium lengths to be had it was hard to move the fancy ones, and in the end they did not bring any more than good medium lengths were selling for. The long expected carnation crop is coming in in large quantities. Easter and Calla lilies are more plentiful and with the absence of funeral work, they do not move very fast. The sweet pea shipments are smaller than they were a week ago, which caused them to clean up daily. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply, and it has been hard to realize enough on it to let the grower pay for his bulbs, let alone his expense of growing them. Snapdragons and iris are arriving in small quantities and sell readily, as they are something different. Mignonette, calendula, Baby primrose and freesia are hard to move at any price.

NOTES.

The Retail Florists' Association held their regular monthly meeting March 3. The McCallum Co. jazz orchestra entertained. Easter advertising was the principal subject before the meeting, as this is the last meeting before Easter.

Among those who held week end sales were the A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co., Randolph and McClements and The Alpha Floral Company.

The E. A. Williams windows are a thing of beauty these days with their combinations of spring flowers and blooming plants.

Randolph and McClements were the decorators for the Elks banquet February 24.

A. W. Smith, Jr., has returned from a three weeks trip to Porto Rico.

C. O. D. PARCELS cannot be held by postmasters for delivery to addressee in excess of 30 days, according to a recent ruling of the third assistant postmaster general.

No matter how little importance you regard your surplus stock, it may be just what your brother grower is looking for. Turn this surplus into cash through a few lines in the Ready Reference Section.

ATTEND your florists' club meetings. Show that you are alive to the needs of the business in your community. Wherever there has been concerted action of the trade in flower shows and other publicity movements, the volume of business has very perceptibly increased.

Canadian Botanic Garden.

The project of a botanic garden appealed strongly to Prof. A. H. R. Buller, who lectured on the "Romance of Wheat" before the Royal Canadian Institute at Winnipeg, Manitoba. He said: "I do not think 500 acres too large, and if I had the opportunity, I would take 1,000 acres. The larger the plan, the more it will appeal to the popular imagination."

Illinois State Florists' Association.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at the Floriculture building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 8-9. The headquarters for the florists will be at the Inman hotel, Champaign.

The address of welcome will be delivered by Prof. J. C. Blair, of the state university department of horticulture, at the opening session, Tuesday, at 9:30 A. M., March 8. Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, one of the vice-presidents, will give the response, and will be followed by President W. J. Hembreiker, Springfield. After the reports of the officers have been read, the following papers will be presented: "The Golden Rule of Wholesaling Cut Flowers," by J. E. Pollworth, Chicago; "The Growers' Association, Its Aims and Objects," by J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; "The Advantages of a Scientific Training in Floriculture from a Student's Viewpoint," by J. D. Smith, student, Long Island, N. Y. "What Our Fertilizer Studies Have Taught Us," by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, Urbana, and "What Lines of Experiment Work Will Be of Greatest Interest to the Florists," a general discussion by all members, led by Dr. Lehenbauer. The unfinished and new business of the Association will then be taken up, and the afternoon session will conclude with the election of officers.

A two reel film entitled "Wonderland Under Glass," and released through the courtesy of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, will begin the evening's programme. This feature will be followed by slides loaned through the courtesy of Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., showing Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association advertising. The students of the university will present a play entitled "The Flower Shop," and a special display of student work in artistic designing on the exhibitions brought by members during the afternoon, will be presented.

The Association will convene at 9:30 A. M. for the final session. An open forum in the greenhouse and of vital interest to the growers will be conducted by Prof. H. B. Dorner and Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, both of Urbana.

HOTEL AND RAILROAD RATES.

The rates at the Inman hotel, Champaign, are from $1.50 to $7 per day, while at the Beardsly hotel, $1.50 to $3 will be asked. Luncheon can be had on the grounds, either at the university or the Illini cafeteria.

Florist Tourists in Florida.

Occasionally a visitor deserts the porch parties for good. One well-to-do old fellow who came here in a yacht stood idleness one season, but at the beginning of the second bought a farm and returned to work. He still has his yacht, an automobile and money, but has completely tired of having a good time. He is also tired of his yacht, although he longed for one 50 years. It may amuse you to learn that he begs me to get up parties to go out to sea with him. But many I invite refuse to go. Having been accustomed to prairies, woods and hills, the sport found outside the harbor makes them dizzy.

This yacht owner is a wholesale rose grower at home and is raising ferns here. A few women help their husbands mainly by attending to the family's social affairs, but my friend's wife helps in a more practical way. He has told me that in the old days, when they were getting a start, she often helped him until midnight. And when I saw her up at the farm here she was packing ferns for shipment north, and enjoying it. One reason I greatly admire the women I see here is that so many of them are of that admirable class who helped in getting a start.—Ed. Howe about Kinsman in Saturday Evening Post.

Burpee's Fordhook Hybrid Gladioli

FORDHOOK HYBRIDS have created a sensation wherever shown. They have set the Gladiolus world talking and marveling at their unequaled beauty. Amateur and professional alike agree that this distinct new race is unique in habit, size of flowers, rare colors, shading and marking. The flowers frequently measure from 4 to 5 inches in diameter and range in color from cream-white, lemon, clear yellow, soft salmon-pink, to bright red and deepest crimson; and there are also light lavender and sky-blue shades, and most charming, rare "pastel" and art shades in wonderful combinations of rose, pink, salmon and amber.

Toronto, Ont.

STOCK IN PLENTIFUL SUPPLY.

Flowers are now more plentiful. The large amount of sunshine lately, has brought along the blooms and with a considerable supply of bulbous stock the market is at times glutted. There are heavy price reductions all along the line; roses, carnations, violets, orchids and bulbous stock are now being sold at prices which no doubt will help transient trade considerably. Business continues good, especially in decorations and funeral work, and the lowering prices are appreciated by the retailers, who are now in a position to give a customer value for his money. The quality of the stock is good, especially in roses, as there are not enough of the cheaper grades to meet the demand. Carnations are also good and the weekend saw many reductions in the better grades to clear the ice boxes. Flowering plants are plentiful; rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs, spiraeas, cyclamens and primulas give effect to the windows.

NOTES.

There is some diversity of opinion on St. Valentine's Day business. The local Club did some good advertising and the window displays were most attractive. Violets, orchids, lily of the valley, sweet peas and stock for corsage use were most in demand.

J. J. Higgins, Yonge street, finds a large increase in business since the opening of the Pantages theater. He keeps a good window display and sells at popular prices. Mr. Higgins has been in the hospital for the past week, but is again feeling better.

The annual social of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held in the Club rooms February 1. P. L. Whytock, superintendent for Sir John Eaton, was presented with a pipe and pouch, as he is leaving on a visit to Scotland.

Emery B. Hamilton, London, Ont., past-president of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, stopped off on his return from Peterboro, where the executive committee met February 21 to plan next summer's convention.

R. Vincent, Jr. & Sons Co.
WHITE MARSH, MD.

The annual dance of the Florists' Club was a most successful one. The ballroom of the Metropolitan assembly room was nicely decorated and the club members and friends had a most enjoyable evening.

George Hall of the Lord & Burnham Co. is back on the job and feeling better after an operation for appendicitis; business is good with them and a number of good prospects are in view.

The Peoples Florist, Queens street, is installing a large refrigerator, a beautiful case and spacious enough to hold large quantities of flowers.

STOCK IS IN LARGE SUPPLY.

Stock is still in large supply at this writing and obtainable in quantity lots at bargain prices. At times the past week the market appeared to be cleaned up better than usual during the past month, which some attribute to an increased demand, while others claim it is due to a shortening up of stock. The sales so far last month have been very discouraging compared to those of the same period of 1920, which were unusually heavy, but the wholesalers in general are not complaining because of the existing conditions in other lines and are confident that things will take a change for the better in the very near future. The city demand is showing some improvement and the out-of-town call for stock is holding its own. American Beauty roses are a trifle more plentiful, but are in good demand considering the large supply of other stock now being offered in this market. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Columbia are having the best call in roses, but the other varieties are being moved after considerable pushing although prices are not anywhere near what they should be. Carnations are plentiful and are to be had at very attractive prices. Callas are seen in large numbers at some of the stores and there is a fair supply of lilies available. Sweet peas appear to be holding their own about as good as any particular item offered and while they are not bringing very attractive prices, they are more easily disposed of. Freesias are in exceptionally heavy supply and the returns have been very disappointing to the grower. Colored freesia have not sold any better in some instances than Purity. Violets are very reasonable in price and are now within reach of any of the buying public. Paper White narcissi are not so plentiful. Tulips and jonquils are in large supply. Calendulas, pansies, snapdragons, for-get-me-nots, cattleyas, lily of the valley, stevia, mignonette, gardenias, cypripediums, daisies and all other miscellaneous seasonable stock is to be had and give the retailers a chance to make a very attractive window display in which variety can play an important part. Pot plants continue to occupy a big place in the retail store displays, especially cyclamens, tulips, jonquils, cinerarias and primroses. Many of the people in the trade are noticing that the retailers are using their window space to better advantage of late and some of the showings are remarkably fine and equal to those arranged by paid experts in other lines. This kind of advertising pays and is bound to bring results and help the general business conditions.

With demand we must have the supply. The Florist Experimental Station at Urbana, Illinois, is the agency to demonstrate ways and means to better production. It is essential that we go there once a year.

Another step toward the achievement of the city beautiful plan was taken February 26 when the house of representatives at Washington agreed to permit the city to take possession of a three-cornered lot on the southeast corner of the boulevard link bridge. The city will use the ground, which has been the site of the government barge office, in straightening South Water street. The city will pay not less than $25.50 per square foot for the land and, in addition, has agreed to turn one of the towers on the bridge over to the government for use as a barge office for 20 years.

Illinois wild flowers will be protected soon by more than sentiment, it is hoped by the Chicago members of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America. A bill for the protection of such flowers, for which the society has been working, has been introduced into the legislature. The bill, which makes any person liable to fine who shall willfully destroy or pull up wild flowers, was indorsed by the Illinois Woman's Legislative congress at its biennial meeting in December. It also is designed to prevent the despoiling of the woods and fields of flowers for commercial purposes. "We are hopeful that the bill will pass," said Mrs. Charles H. Hutchinson, president of the society. "It will mean much in furthering the work of the society." The bill is as follows: "Section 1. Any person who shall willfully destroy or pull, tear or dig from the property of another without the permission of owner or person entitled to possession, any spring beauty, bloodroot, lady slipper, columbine, lotus, trillium or gentian, or who shall willfully sell, expose for sale or purchase any flowers, roots, bulbs or whole plant of any such so gathered or taken, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100. One-half of said fine shall be paid to the person making and filing the complaint, and one-half to the school fund of the county in which said conviction is obtained. Section 2. Prosecutions under this act shall be commenced within six months from the time the offense was committed and not afterward."

George Wittbold, son of Henry Wittbold, and Miss June Vivian eloped and were married at Crown Point, Ind., last week to avoid a big wedding which had been planned to take place later in the season.

Mrs. Caroline Amling, beloved wife of Albert F. Amling, mother of Ernst, Otto, Paul, Walter and Clarence, died this week. The funeral was held Thursday, March 3, at 1:30 p. m. from the late residence, Fifteenth street and North avenue, Maywood, and 2 p. m. from St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Eleventh avenue and Lake street, with interment at Oakridge cemetery. The Amling family have the sympathy of the entire trade in the loss of a loving wife and mother. The floral offerings from the trade were many and most beautiful.

The trade was grieved to hear of the death of O. P. Bassett at Pasadena, Calif., an account of which appears in the obituary column this week. Mr. Bassett was well known to the trade through his connection with the wholesale firm of Bassett & Washburn, with which he was identified for a long time.

Articles of incorporation have been issued to the Kaspar Mfg. Co., 3234 W. Thirtieth street, with a capital of $15,000, to deal in florists' specialties novelties, etc. The incorporators are Geo. J. Kaspar, Frank J. Kaspar and Chas. A. Nemecek.

Allie Zech says that Zech & Mann will have a large supply of cut lilies again this Easter and is now booking orders for same. Business is showing a great improvement at this house and the sales so far this week are very encouraging.

P. J. Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., and wife, have now reached Los Angeles on their Pacific Coast trip.

Estimates made February 26 by the family of Peter Reinberg, late president of the board of commissioners of Cook county, and his attorney, Joseph E. Fitch, place the value of his estate as close to $1,000,000. The will, distributing the entire estate among those who survive him, was filed this week in the Probate court. The beneficiaries will be his widow, Mrs. Mary Reinberg, 5643 Sheridan road, a brother, five sisters and an adopted son. Mr. Reinberg, according to his family and friends, gave large sums to charity during his life. Hardly a week passed, it is said, that he did not answer the plea of some institution or of individuals. This, it is pointed out, explains the absence of charitable bequests. The widow will receive almost half of the estate, it is said. She assumes title to the Sheridan road home through joint tenancy. Probably a rough estimate of the value of the personal property places its value at $400,000. Among the valuable pieces of real estate are his greenhouses. Under a plan, said to have been approved by Mr. Reinberg, the greenhouse business will remain in the family. The adopted son, Charles Reinberg, who is also a grand nephew, is provided with a trust of $50,000. He is 16 years old. It is stipulated that the fund be created out of the proceeds of the first sales of the real property. The young man is a student at St. Thomas college, St. Paul, Minn. The relatives, aside from the wife and son, who share in the estate are: Mrs. Margaret Weiland, wife of Mathew Weiland of Evanston; Mrs. Mary Zender, widow, 1516 Thorndale avenue; Mrs. Catherine Smith, widow, Rogers Park; Mrs. Annie Hoffman; George Reinberg, and Mrs. Helen Zender, wife of Adam Zender of Rogers Park. Mrs. Mary Zender is the mother of Henry Zender, superintendent of public service of Cook county.

Governor Small has named Eugene R. Pike, Mrs. Helen T. Pelouze, Samuel Gessler, John A. Torstenson, Robert Homer Morse, Charles I. Pierce and Harold N. Scott commissioners of Lincoln park and Christian F. Wiehe, Magnus C. Knudson, Elizabeth P. Hoyt, William Ganschow, Charles E. Graydon, George J. Dehn and John I. Sheahan for the west park system. Christian F. Wiehe has been elected president of the latter body.

The Allied Florist Association and the Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a joint meeting at the Hotel Randolph, Tuesday afternoon, March 1, when the chief business of the day was to further and complete plans in regard to the local advertising and service campaign. Some business was transacted that will be announced later in accordance with the wishes of both associations.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is pleased with the demand for stock this week, which is considerably better than it has been for some time, both locally and out-of-town.

STOCK SELLING WELL.

The weather during the past week has been very uncertain and sharp changes in temperature occurred. This caused a noticeable slump in the market. Trade is expected to pick up, however, during the coming week. Roses of extra fine quality are coming in in limited quantities. The demand is great and there is barely enough to go around. Premier, Russell, Ophelia, Wards, Butterfly and Killarney are the leading varieties. Carnations are coming in stronger this week than they were last and the demand is increasing. Prices remain good, wholesaling at from $4 to $6 per 100. A few Laddie carnations are to be had at top prices. Spring flowers of all kinds are in great demand and are shown in practically all windows. Calla lilies are being offered in large quantities. The demand is great and they are used almost entirely for funeral purposes. Lilium Harrisii is limited as to quantity but is of good quality and the demand is rushing. Violets are plentiful this week. Only home grown stock is being offered. Cattleya orchids of a good grade are to be had in quantity. The demand for them is not great this week, but is now picking up slightly. There are no cypripediums to be had at any price. There is a bountiful supply of Roman hyacinths and tulips of the common varieties. A limited supply of Darwin tulips of exceptional size and quality are found among the offerings. Narcissi are about played out and are to be seen in but a few places. A few snapdragons of excellent quality are coming in and calendulas are plentiful in spite of a large demand for use in corsages. Freesias are on the decline and though still plentiful, demand small prices and there is practically no sale for the white varieties. Jonquils are common stock and not valuable. Primroses are scarcer this week being replaced by cinerarias which are the main factor in most of the window displays. They are very showy but bring relatively small prices. Cyclamen are about gone. Lily of the valley is coming in in increased quantities and the demand is as great as the supply. Willows are still in use by a few florists but are fast disappearing. Greens, such as asparagus, plumosa, sprengeri and ferns are scarce this week and there is not enough to go around. Ferns are holding out fairly well. Such novelties as pandanus, dracaenas and other pot plants are seen in all windows and the prices on them does not vary greatly. Bulbous stock in pot plants hold full sway at the present time. Hyacinths, tulips, freesias and narcissi are commonly seen.

NOTES.

A decided increase in business since having become established in their new location, is shown by the books of the Mullanphy Floral Co.

The "Say It With Flowers" bowling league held a meeting last week, at which the Roses tied the Carnations for first place.

The Missouri botanical garden last Sunday, opened to the public a very attractive exhibition of orchids and cinerarias.

An attractive window display of cinerarias and bulbous plants is seen at the F. C. Wehr Floral Co.

The Bourdet Floral Co. is showing some fine bulbous stock in an attractive window disulay.

Grimm & Gorly have turned out a large number of funeral pieces during the past week.

The W. A. Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood, has been successful with their new bulb shed.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is cleaning up daily on carnations and violets.

C. A. Kuehn has nothing left over any day and expects a pick up in trade soon.

H. G. Berning expects to begin booking orders for Easter in a short time.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. reports unusually large sales of roses.

Do not take any fake or imitation thread, claimed to be the Meyer silkaline, or smilax threads. Be sure the name Meyer in on the end of each spool, as we find there are a lot of fake brands being put on the market to imitate our green florists' thread. Weigh up our threads and then weigh up the other parties' that you are buying from and you will notice that our threads run full two ounces of thread to the spool. Be sure and get the Meyer thread.

STOCK SELLING FAIRLY WELL.

The market this week showed a decided change over the previous week. Plenty of stock made prices very much below par and promise more of a drop as the Lenten season goes along. Business in general has fallen off very much, but it is all that can be expected until Easter. If it were not for our old friends "funeral work and weddings," the trade would be as dull as during the summer months. Roses are now down to a normal price, but still have a chance to drop lower, judging from the amount of business being accomplished. Sweet peas are now arriving in larger quantities as well as bulbous stock of all kinds. Carnations, a flower that seems to be a favorite, are coming in abundance

A LIGHT DEMAND FOR STOCK.

Business was badly shattered the first of the week on account of the heavy fall of snow. This prevented the Saturday and Sunday cut from reaching the market Monday. It did reach the city on Tuesday, however, and with Monday's cut added, was an almost impossible load. Tuesday's demand was very light, being a holiday, all department stores were closed and the idlers spent their time at the theaters and movies. It picked up a little on Thursday and Friday with a fairly good clean up on Saturday, although a lot of stock was bargained off to the street men. There is an abundance of stock in all lines, sweet peas and white carnations being overdone. Daffodils appear to be over the peak and brought as high as $6 per 100 on Saturday; they have sold as low as $10 a thousand in 5,000 lots. Tulips and Paper White narcissi have also sold very low. Roses appear to have shortened up a trifle and most orders were closed out on Saturday night. The market will hardly take any more carnations, the great quantity of White having broken the market early in the week. Had all the stocks moved in from the field, maintained their vigor last fall, the reports claiming that at least one-third died, the market would be swamped with a great over production. Cattleyas are abundant and the quality is very fine, but prices are off 25 per cent. There is plenty of lily of the valley, in fact rather more than can be handled and keep prices firm. There are a number of poor Callas and Easter lilies, not over 25 per cent of the stock can be called special. Some growers have a few very fine formosum. There appears to be a good demand for all kinds of greens at market prices. Florida asparagus shows up very well at this time. Reports of the various Easter plant stocks in this neighborhood are generally favorable. It is thought there will be a good supply of Easter lilies, as most stocks, owing to the favorable weather, appear to be in a good state of forwardness. Rambler roses and hydrangeas are also coming strong. The climatic conditions since the first of the year appear to have been made for the early Easter date, the season having been so unusually open.

MAKING A MARKET.

A dealer in speaking of the possibility of creating a demand to meet an emergency in the market, said that overstocks were not as a rule, constant enough for any definite plan. Daffodils sold recently as low as $10 per thousand and within a week brought as high as $60. Other stocks would shorten up on account of weather conditions almost over-night and prices as a matter of course advanced to normal conditions. He felt there was great publicity value for the retail florist who gave his customers an advantage in price, whenever any particular stock became so plentiful that he could handle it in quantity. One flower after another, featured in this way, kept the store in mind all the time, and such enterprizing dealers were seldom heard to complain of dull business.

NOTES.

To celebrate the eightieth birthday of the veteran wholesale florist, W. J. Baker, a surprise party was given February 28. From a quiet enjoyment of his pipe in the comfortable chair, there was a rapid change of scene when the extent of his visitors was revealed to him. He was glad to see them all and was soon as young and full of fun as the best of them. May he live to see many more such occasions.

The Leo Niessen Co. are using a very effective method of packing gardenias for shipment out-of-town. Each spray and flower is wrapped in TRADE AT A STANDSTILL.

With the tie-ups incidental to a heavy snowfall and a holiday, Washington's birthday, the first part of last week was particularly dull. Excepting Christmas and Easter, holidays are of little profit to the florists here. Although throughout the week there was necessarily some buying, there was little to encourage any branch of the trade. Various reasons are assigned for the dullness, which was noteworthy during February, and some of them are conflicting. A stock argument of late has been that the "peak" has been reached and that people are husbanding their resources and are spending as little as possible for luxuries. That seemed plausible until several retailers told us that their best customers were in Florida. It does seem paradoxical that people that are too poor to buy flowers can afford to go to Florida. It is probable that both theories are working out, to the disadvantage of the florists. The trade of the absent ones is lost at a time when it is most needed, while many of the home folks are on account of the high cost of living, compelled to economize. There has been much said and written about prices coming down, but anything one wants seems to be as costly as ever. In the wholesale district, even at greatly reduced prices, it is difficult to make a clean-up. One feature that is an indication of the slackness in high class trade is the quantities of orchids, fancy and special tea roses and lily of the valley that are going comparatively cheap. On February 26 there were sales of fancy Columbias at $8 per 100 wholesale. As many buyers for the smaller stores want No. 1 and 2 roses, those grades are more in demand than the fancies and specials. Good stock in all lines continues to arrive in quantity. Tulips, including the Darwins, are plentiful and of good quality. Narcissi, Paper White and Golden Spurs, freesias and lilies are well represented. The carnations are as good as they can ever be for this season. In mignonette, stocks, for-get-met-nots, wall flowers, callas, pansies and other minor features, there are acceptable offerings. In sweet peas, many short stems are noted, but fine stock is also to be had. Forsythia and other flowering shrubs are now features in the retail stores. As for pussy willows, a few years ago, a lone man could traverse Twenty-eighth street with a bunch of them on his back. Now they arrive by the truck load.

New York, February 28.—There is an ordinary Monday morning buying, but no unusual activity. Rain fell through the night and the snow is melting away.

NOTES.

S. H. Calenaras, formerly a partner with James Capparell as the "Boston Florists," Lexington avenue and East Thirty-fourth street, has sold his interest there and is opening another store on Thirty-fourth street, between Park and Lexington avenues.

At a meeting of the Allied Trades Association held at Secretary Young's office, February 24, it was reported that nearly $4,000 had been paid in by growers, wholesalers, supply men and seedsmen. It is proposed to at once start a campaign of local advertising.

At the establishment of Herman Weiss, 121 West Twenty-eighth street, we have recently noticed in addition to a great variety of spring flowers, exceptionally fine snapdragons.

A. Meyer, retailer, Madison avenue and Eightieth street, has recently made improvements in the interior of his store. He reports good wedding orders.

Richard Cantillon, cashier for the Cut Flower Exchange, took a day off last week because of a new nine pound boy at home.

The Broadway Florist, Broadway at Seventy-second street, is making fine window displays in orchids and spring flowers.

Adam Greener, Woodside, is bringing to the Cut Flower Exchange a fine stock of tulips.

S. Masur, 256 Fulton street, Brooklyn, reports many large funeral orders.

MARKET REMAINS STEADY.

St. Valentine's day in Buffalo was equal to all expectations, coming as it did on Monday. The demand was for corsages of violets, roses and sweet peas and an unusual demand for plants made up in baskets and fancy box arrangements. The plants used were azaleas, cyclamens, primulas, tulips and small ferns to fill in. Cut flowers, more particularly, tulips, daffodils and carnations with freesia and narcissi as a filler, sold well. The call for long-stem roses was not as great as one might expect, but taken as a whole the day was very satisfactory and is next in impotrance to Easter Saturday. The rest of the week was only fair, the Lenten season having the usual tendency of lessening all social functions. Jonquils are a glut on the market, selling recently in all stores at $1.00 per dozen and in some at 75 cents per dozen. All are planning now for Easter, which will be here before we know it. Lilies, in a number of greenhouses are looking good, roses only fair. Genistas, hydrangeas and many other plants are looking excellent and will be plentiful. Sweet peas are now coming in fine.

NOTES.

W. J. Palmer & Son, L. H. Neubeck, the Colonial Flower Shop and Felton's Shop of Flowers are making very attractive displays for Easter.

There has been some talk of having a social time among the florists, when the ladies will be invited.

S. A. Anderson and wife are in Miami, Florida, for a vacation.

S. A. Anderson had the decorations for a large wedding recently.

Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., President; J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., Vice-President; Clarence R. Jones, 110 South Street, Baltimore, Md., Secretary-Treasurer; Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass, Counsel. Next annual meeting, will be held at St. Louis, June 20-21, 1921.

THE seed selling season is over in Florida.

FERTILIZER business generally is reported dull and prices easier.

PRESIDENT MILLER, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, is in California.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., is returning from Los Angeles, Calif.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—President Hastings of the American Seed Trade Association was a recent visitor.

EARLY blooming seed catalogues are now sprouting in suburban homes, according to a daily newspaper.

MANAGER C. W. SCOTT, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, is starting on a western trip this week.

THE agricultural appropriations bill passed congress March 2, carrying $360,000 for free seed distribution.

PRICE of bags at Chicago March 2: Stark and American, 16-oz., $35.00, per bale, in bale lots or over; Railroads, 16-oz., $30.00; Crown, 12-oz., $23.00.

THERE was no opposition to retaining grass and clover seeds on the free list, so far as officials of the American Seed Trade Association have been informed.

BOARD OF TRADE — Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, March 2, were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. Red Clover, $13.00 to $17.00.

VISITED CHICAGO: Alec Mathers, representing the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; J. F. Garfat, representing Hogg & Lytle, Toronto, Ont.; C. N. Keeney, LeRoy, N. Y.

NORTHERN grass seeds, have made a poor showing on southern golf links. The Deering estate, Florida, finds its lawns planted with Bermuda grass on marl, fertilized with cow manure and cut twice a week, produce an ideal turf.

BALTIMORE, MD. — In the matter of J. Bolgiano & Sons, bankrupts, the referee advises he has filed account showing first distribution to creditors who have filed their claims. A dividend of 20 per cent will be allowed general creditors, payable after March 7.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed Co., and wife returned this week, by way of St. Louis, from a southern and Florida trip, during which they covered the entire east coast down to Miami. At Atlanta they were entertained by President Hastings.

CINCINNATI, O.—The general trade, counter, mail and field, has improved, and appears now a fair average business for the season.

REPORTS to all the government departments show farm products in general this year are moving only half as fast as in 1919-20.

ITALIAN rye grass is much used on southern golf links, but must be reseeded often, as it readily burns out or is destroyed by fungus as the warm season advances.

PALM BEACH, FLA.—J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., last week entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ferrell, Saginaw, Mich., visitors here, with a motor trip to Miami, and a day's sightseeing of polo and water sports.

Garden Seed Demand Good.

David Burpee, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who has just returned from a two weeks' trip in the south, says the business in field seeds in that section is not as good as it might be, but that the demand for vegetable seeds from home gardeners is exceptionally good all over the country this year. The business of his firm is running 20 per cent ahead of last year, the week of February 19 showing 8,000 more cash orders than the same week last year. Mr. Burpee thinks there is every prospect for an excellent year in the retail seed business.

Vegetable Seed Production.

The economic importance of the vegetable-seed-production industry in the United States has been more fully appreciated since seed growers were called upon to supply the deficit caused by the cutting off of the European supply during the war period. Prior to this time few people, and least of all the consumer, concerned themselves with the origin of vegetable seed used or handled by them. The ability and willingness of growers to cope with the situation is evidenced by the phenomenal increase in production during 1917 and 1918.

The aggregate estimated value to contract growers of the total commercial production of vegetable seed during each of the past five years, according to government reports of February 26, is approximately as follows: 1916, $30,400,000; 1917, $23,000,000; 1918, $30,300,000; 1919, $24,000,000 and 1920, $19,700,000. These figures include the value or onion sets and seed sweet corn, but not okra, egg plant, collards, mustard endive, and some other relatively unimportant kinds of seed. Neither do they include sugar-beet seed. The changes in values from year to year as shown were brought about partly by the higher contract price, but largely by the increased production.

CALIFORNIA LEADS IN ACREAGE.

In the production of these seeds a total of 186,542 acres was devoted in 1916; 231,079 in 1917; 259,721 in 1918; 230,659 in 1919 and 202,464 in 1920. These acreages are located in widely scattered sections throughout the country, California leading with 43,040 acres in 1919 and 41,562 acres in 1920, with Idaho a close second and Washington third. In 1918, however, Washington led with 43,744 acres, followed closely by Colorado, Idaho, and California in the order named. Eighty per cent of the watermelon-seed acreage is in Jefferson Co., Fla., 90 per cent of the onion sets are produced in Cook Co., Ill.; 80 per cent each of the muskmelon and cucumber in Colorado, and practically all the carrot, lettuce, onion, parsnip, parsley and salsify in well-defined areas in California.

The total number of commercial vegetable-seed growers in the United States is not over 200. Of this number, 50 control over 80 per cent of the aggregate production, based on the acreage of vegetables that could be planted from the seed at the usual rate of planting. In a number of cases 60 per cent or more of the total production of a single kind is controlled by less than 10 growers or concerns.

SUPPLY SUFFICIENT FOR 1921.

The 1920 domestic production of a number of kinds, principally garden beet, cabbage, carrot, onion, parsnip, radish, and turnip seed, was below the estimated average annual consumption in the United States, but with the evident large carry-over the total domestic supply, if equitably distributed, would be more than sufficient to meet the 1921 requirements, with the possible exception of a few special varieties of some kinds. In the case of a few kinds the production and carry-over have been supplemented by fairly large imports.

Although the total supply is large, much of it is old seed and is losing its vitality. Unless these stocks are replenished with new production at a not far distant date the inevitable result will be either a shortage of good seed, or, what is worse, a supply of dead seed.

The increasing imports, together with the low prices at which imported seed has been offered during recent months and the reluctance with which dealers place growing contracts, have caused some of the growers to become more or less concerned regarding the future of vegetable-seed production in this country. Import prices declined steadily and rapidly during 1919 and the first nine months of 1920, a few items approaching pre-war levels. Some marked advances occurred, however, during the last quarter of 1920, principally on those seeds of which the domestic production was low.

Junipers.

The Arboretum collection of junipers has improved in the last three or four years and now contains many interesting and healthy plants. It must be remembered, however, that the northeastern part of the United States has not the climate needed for the large number of the species which grow naturally either in warmer countries or in regions of small summer rainfall or of high altitude. The range of variation of the so-called red cedar, Juniperus virginiana, although a much handsomer plant south of New England than it is here, is now well shown in the Arboretum collection which contains 18 named varieties of this tree. Nearly all of these varieties are distinct, but in some cases the same or nearly the same plant has come to the Arboretum under more than one name. In color, the most distinct of the varieties of the red cedar is the var. glauca with steel gray leaves, represented in the collection by a number of plants varying somewhat in habit but little in color. This form has not been attacked here by the red spider or by the other insects and the diseases which often disfigure and sometimes kill the common green-leaved form of this tree in Massachusetts. With the exception of Abies concolor, this juniper is the handsomest of the gray-leaved conifers which can be grown in this climate. Juniper virginiana globosa, a plant with a cylindric, round-topped little head which came from a Dutch nursery, is interesting to the students of the now popular dwarf conifers. More beautful is another Dutch form (var. Kosteriana), a flat-topped shrub from two to three feet in height, with long, wide-spreading branches and open habit. This is a useful plant when it can be given sufficient space in which to spread, but is of course more open in habit than that form of the red cedar which sometimes grows on the exposed sea-cliffs of the Maine coast, and in such positions forming a wide mat only a few inches high, is perhaps more beautiful than any other prostrate juniper. Seedlings and grafted plants of this form are growing in the Arboretum but are too young to show if they can retain in more favorable surroundings the extreme prostrate habit due no doubt, in part at least, to the exposed position of the wind-swept sea-cliffs where these plants have grown. Among conifers with more or less pendulous branches few are more beautiful than the pendulous form of the red cedar (var. pendula). There are several of these trees in the collection, sent here from European nurseries or found in the country. They vary slightly among themselves but are all worth a place in the garden. Among the other varieties of the red cedar are several of compact habit and bright green leaves. The most distinct of these are perhaps the varieties elegantissima, pyramidalis, Schottii and Chamberlaynji. They probably originated in European nurseries from which they came to the Arboretum.

The juniper of northeastern continental Asia, J. chinensis, is a valuable tree and many of the varieties, especially those of dwarf habit, are popular. Some of these varieties are good garden plants, but others are usually so disfigured by the red spider that unless they are frequently and carefully sprayed they are not worth growing. The best of these dwarf plants, the var. Pfitzeriana, is a shrub with irregularly placed rather pendulous branches, which can be trained into a low broad pyramid a few feet high. The branches are sometimes broken by heavy weight of snow, but nothing else seems to trouble this plant. There are other dwarf upright forms of the Chinese juniper with green or with bright yellow leaves which are growing well here; and the form with prostrate branches forming a dense low mat found by Professor Sargent in Japan and named for him is the best of the Asiatic prostrate junipers in the collection. An even more prostrate plant, in this climate, at least, the most reliable and the fastest growing of prostrate junipers is the North American Juniperus horizontalis. This is widely distributed from the sea-cliffs of the coast of Maine to the northern Rocky Mountains. The behavior here of Juniperus conferta is disappointing. It is the Japanese sand-dune prostrate juniper, ranging from Saghalin in the north to the tropical Lu-chu islands in the south. It was first noticed by Europeans on the shore of Hakkodate bay in the extremely cold climate of southern Hokkaido. A plant from this region might be expected to be hardy here and it is believed that this juniper would prove useful to plant on the sand-dunes of Cape Cod and other parts of the north Atlantic coast. In the Arboretum, however, it exists only in sheltered positions and loses many branches every winter. This tenderness is due perhaps to the fact that it grows so late in the season that young wood does not become thoroughly ripened. When the right place is found for Juniperus conferta with its pale green leaves it will be one of the handsomest and most distinct prostrate junipers.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

THE ROYAL—Early-Flowering Branching

This type fills a gap between the Queen of the Market and the Late-Flowering Branching Asters. Sown early inside, and planted out with Queen of the Market, it follows that variety very closely.

THE MIKADO

Petals are narrow, very long and gracefully reflexed. The outer petals show to their full extent, while gradually toward the center they bend and curl on each other in such magnificent disorder as to make the fufflest aster we have ever seen.

THE KING

The habit is similar to the Giant Branching, vigorous in growth, long stiff stems. In form the flower is entirely distinct from any other variety; petals somewhat resemble the quilled varieties, but are much larger and broader, those in the center being curled and incurved, completely covering the crown. In shape and size the bloom is round, full and very large.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,320. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50 per cent. more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in ¼-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at $3.00 per trade packet.

We are the introducers of this new Aster, jointly with the originator, Mr. Geo. J. Ball.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., President; A. J. Dooley, Cook County, Ill., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas.

THE bean acreage on the east coast of Florida has been reduced one-half, and that of cabbage is insignificant.

AT Terre Haute, Ind., the J. W. Davis Co. has perfected machinery for washing, grading and with some hand assistance, the sorting of its greenhouse-grown cucumber crop, insuring a uniformity in the daily output which has previously been impossible to attain.

PETERS, FLA.—The Peters Co. tomato harvest is beginning here. This firm has 900 acres and employs 400 men. When the picking is in full swing, 30 carloads are sometimes started daily. Grading and sorting are largely done by machinery. The fruit is packed green.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 1.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $5.00-$6.50; leaf lettuce, per box, 22½ to 25 cents.

New York, February 25.—Cucumbers, per dozen, 75 cents to $3.25; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.35 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 50 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $6.00.

Rotation Advised for Cucumber Diseases.

Certain diseases that affect cucumbers, live over from one year to the next in the soil, investigation by the United States department of agriculture shows. A transfer to new soil each year, in addition to seed treatment and spraying of the vines, is found advisable to effect their control.

The ornamental wild cucumber vine is a factor in over-wintering and spreading cucumber mosaic or "white pickle," one of the most serious diseases. The disease does not live in the soil, but is believed to be caused by a virus which lives over winter in the wild cucumber seed and is spread by striped beetles. Downy mildew, prevalent in the eastern, southern, and to some extent, in the north central states, west to Illinois, is caused by a fungus parasite, and can be checked by timely and thorough spraying with 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture.. Angular leaf spot or leaf blight is caused by a bacterial parasite and is carried by the seed. It can be combated best by treating the seed in a 1-1,000 corrosive sublimate solution, washing them in running water afterwards and drying immediately. The disease may live over in the soil to a slight extent, making rotation advisable. For cucumber anthracnose, recognized by brown dead spots on the leaves and sunken areas on the stems and fruits, seed treatment and rotation are recommended. Cucumber scab, another fungus disease, occurs mainly in the northern cucumber-growing sections. The disease lives over in the soil and crop rotation is recommended. Bacterial wilt is caused by bacteria carried over winter and spread chiefly by striped cucumber beetles. It may be somewhat checked by pulling and burning or burying all wilted plants as soon as they appear and by spraying with 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead (four pounds), the spray acting as a repellant and poison to the beetles.

Wichita, Kan.

PRICES CONTINUE HIGH.

February has shown about the usual volume of trade, with St. Valentine's day as the big day for the month. The total sales for the days covering this occasion will show an increase over that of last year, a heavy run of funeral work adding to the volume for February 12 and 14. The continued high level of prices probably had something to do with holding down the number of sales that might have been made at lower prices. Demand was pretty well divided between cut flowers and plants. In cut flowers, roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, and lily of the valley filled most of the list, while cyclamens, cinerarias, bulb stock and lilies were the leading plant favorites. Weather conditions were ideal. Lilies for Easter are now the center of conjecture and anxiety. With favorable weather the bulk of the plants will be ready and some very nice stock is in prospect.

After a trial of some months, Chas. P. Mueller expresses much satisfaction with an installation of a water grate, down draft furnace under one of his boilers.

Visitors: Lambert of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; C. Pruner of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.; I. Rosnosky, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, and H. A. Bertoli, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

Ageratum Fraseri

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraseri" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that it is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraseri" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about 8 to 10 inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense truss of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spreads about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

SEEDS.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date dahlias in existence. No place in the world have dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of peony, cactus and decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised dahlias from it; but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from blubs. Price, $0.50 per package.

RICHARD DIENER CO., INC.
Kentfield Marin County, Calif.

THE DIENER TOMATO

Increase your tomato yield one hundred per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30-40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains very little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating catsup and canning is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED: Sample pkg., 25c; one-quarter of an acre pkg., 50c; one acre pkg., $1.50.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASS'N.

Sixteenth Annual Convention, Urbana, March 8-9, 1921.

A Large Gathering.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held at the Floriculture building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 8-9, with the largest attendance in several years. The address of welcome was delivered by Prof. J. C. Blair, of the state university department of horticulture at the opening session, March 8. Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, gave the response and was followed by President W. J. Hembreiker, Springfield. After the reports of Secretary Albert T. Hey and Treasurer F. L. Washburn had been read, the following papers were presented: "The Golden Rule of Wholesaling Cut Flowers," by J. E. Pollworth, Chicago; "The Growers' Association, Its Aims and Objects," by J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; "The Advantages of a Scientific Training in Floriculture from a Student's Viewpoint," by J. D. Smith, student, Long Island, N. Y.; "What Our Fertilizer Studies Have Taught Us," by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, Urbana, and "What Lines of Experimental Work Will Be of Greatest Interest to the Florists," a general discussion by all members led by Dr. Lehenbauer. The unfinished and new business of the association was then taken up.

A two-reel film entitled, "Wonderland Under Glass," released through the courtesy of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, was a feature of the evening's programme. This was followed by slides, loaned by Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., showing Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association advertising. The students of the university presented a play entitled "The Flower Shop," and a special display of student work in artistic designing was on exhibition.

The Association convened at 9:30 A. M., for the final session, when an open forum in the greenhouses was conducted by Prof. H. B. Dorner and Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, president; George W. Jacobs, Canton, vice-president; Albert T. Hey, Maywood, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer.

The exhibits included vases of Annetti and Columbia sweet peas from George Ball, Glen Ellyn, for which he received certificate of merit.

President Hembreiker's Address.

To my fellow florists of our beloved State of Illinois:

Another prosperous year has passed since we have met in a body together, but it has been two years since we have been here together, and looked over the experimental station of Illinois. Do you all realize that we do not appreciate this work as much as we ought to? How many of us have went to the trouble to come to these meetings and hear the reports on the different experiments. If we would give this our careful consideration, and work according to their best results, how many of our fellow florists would be financially better able to take care of their obligations, and would feel a little more independent?

It has been almost four years since we have had a state flower show. During the war period, there was a scarcity of coal and flowers and it was not feasible to have a state fall show. Last year I could not get much encouragement, and was advised by some of the larger growers, to lay off another year. My opinion is now that we should not let another fall pass away without a good state flower exhibition. Nothing keeps up the pep and interest better than getting together often and absorbing each others' ideas, and it takes a flower show to get our brother florists together in a large and representative body.

Time is making very rapid changes. Notice the wonderful growth of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and the wonderful work it is doing. Now comes the National Flower Growers' Association, which is going to be the foundation of setting a real value on flowers, and to get away from the idea that flowers should be held at a fabulous price today and offered at a discouraging price a few weeks later. Organization will bring it about, and we can not bring it about any sooner. Is it not always that you find the most successful men in business in the first ranks of organized bodies? Again coming back to the experimental station I will say, that there will be an addition built, which will give the managers better and larger facilities in making further progress.

A short time ago the committee was called to Urbana to meet with the committee of different branches of the state university, in order to discuss the growing needs of more finance. Few of us know that the university has existed on the same allowances during and since the war as in pre-war times. Not one of us would expect this grand state institution here to ever exist on pre-war allowances, let alone expecting a forward march. I am glad to report, that the committee recommended a liberal increase in the allowance, and I have since seen stated that our Governor will back our institution, in order to make it the best in this country of ours. At out last state meeting in Chicago, J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, was elected as secretary but on account of having the secretaryship of the National Flower Growers' Association, he was obliged to hand in his resignation, for the duties became too much for one man.

A. T. Hey, Maywood, was then appointed as secretary to fill the unexpired term, which he has well taken care of. So many of our members forget to pay dues. Now, no organization can stand without proper financial support, so do not blame your secretary if he handles the delinquent members a little roughly. I will ask all brother florists to help the new officers of the coming year to obtain new members to swell our ranks; and I will again impress on you all to get together and work for a good flower show for the next season, as we are now at the door of pre-war times, with every foot of greenhouses again working to fullest capacity.

Secretary Hey's Report.

Secretary Albert T. Hey in presenting his report, stated that it was really a supplementary report to the treasurer. He brought out that on March 1, 1921, the association had 144 annual members and 81 life members, making a total membership of 225.

BRATTLEBORO, VT.—C. N. Bond, has purchased the establishment of C. E. Allen and will combine his present business with that of Mr. Allen. He will have a total of 17,000 square feet of glass.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Florists' Club has perfected the formation of a retailers' association to work in close harmony with a like body of wholesalers and the local chapter of the National Flower Growers' Association.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

When the market is so full of flowers as at present there is every opportunity to feature and make the most of half a dozen specialties, such as sweet peas, carnations, tulips, daffodils, snapdragons, calendulas and violets. This could be called "Specialty Week" and each day given a flower on which it is easiest to get a quantity.

A nicely worded circular calling attention to the various stocks and the fact that they are now plentiful in the market and reasonable in price should be sent to the store's list and prospects. Hunt up the odd baskets and vases and arrange them with all one kind of a stock. Pussywillows can be used with good effect. Small handled vase baskets can be used in pink one day, blue the next, and green, gilt and white as on the other days they will look best with the flower of the day.

Corsages of the flowers and small boxes of the same if displayed in the window will attract attention and the price card will keep them moving. One must not go at a sale of this kind in a half-hearted way, but with enthusiasm that is contageous and gets everybody about the store working to help it along. Of course the other business goes on just the same. The funeral work, the weddings, or whatever comes in, must be attended to and it will take a little extra pressure, but it is just this incentive that gives pep to the progressive captain and his crew and helps him along in the race.

St. Patrick's day comes as a windup to the week. While it is not a holiday except for the sons of Ireland, yet there are a number of banquets and private dinners that call for quite a few flowers. There is always a demand for shamrocks and the man who makes a bid for this trade will get considerable business out of it. The supply houses always have something in the way of novelties for this occasion, such as high hats, harps with baskets at the bottom to hold shamrocks, together with shamrock banners and badges that can be attached to baskets of shamrocks. The small pots of shamrocks trimmed with green crepe and tied with a narrow green ribbon always have quite a run. A good seller is a large potato in which is cut a hole with a cavity deep enough to hold a pot of shamrocks. This tied with a green ribbon and a small Irish flag generally takes very well, particularly if it is priced at 75 cents to $1, mailed to any address in the United States. Killarney roses are also in demand and a few corsages of the same with a small shamrock tied in the ribbon are attractive in the window.

PREPARING FOR EASTER TRADE.

The days between now and the busiest week of the year will travel very quickly and every store man should make the most of the working hours of the 14 days before the opening of Easter week. The better planned the work the easier it can be carried out. If the stock is not all bought up, there is not a minute to lose. Go for the scarce things first as there are never enough to go around. Last year's records will show what sold the best and refreshen your memory regarding many details of the business that will be valuable to you now.

Be certain that your supply of plant baskets are sufficient, also other staples, particularly cut flower boxes, tags, etc. Such items cannot be obtained at a moment's notice and if needed should be taken care of immediately. The Easter invitation circular should be ready for delivery by March 24. Many do not think this necessary while others spend quite a sum on getting the best the printer has in stock. Such an invitation received at a time when plants and flowers are uppermost in the minds of the people is excellent publicity and certain to return much more than it costs.

See that everything goes out on time, for it is very easy to get careless in this respect, which is one way to lose customers. To make delivery on or before the hour named is as important as the quality of the stock. Drill this into the store's force, that time of delivery is the most important part of the order.

How are you pushing Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association orders? This is your most valuable source of business, you largest customer, and can be made of much more importance through your own individual efforts. Keep it before your customers all the time. There is a profit of 20 per cent on every order you send out and you have the money in hand, no risk whatsoever, and nearly 2,000 florists working for you all over the United States. Keep this service to the front at all times.

Keep up your stock of table ferns, these little dinner table centers are generally wanted in a hurry and there is no time to send out for a supply. All of one kind is often better than variety and then as a rule they all fade out together.

McDonald Floral Co. Changes Hands.

A. P. Morris and C. W. Jack, owners of the Morris and Jack lettuce farm near Crawfordsville, Ind., have purchased the McDonald Floral Company establishment of that city. Members of the new firm are well known to the trade and both have had scientific and practical experience in plant culture which will be of value in their new enterprise. Miss Jessie Campbell will be retained as store manager, having been associated with the company for 12 years.

C. W. Jack is a graduate of the University of Indiana, and for the past three years has had charge of the seed, fertilizer and insecticide department of the Crabbs, Reynolds, Taylor Co. Mr. Morris was recently elected vice-president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Indiana, and since 1907 has been manager of the lettuce farm.

A. H. Nehrling, former president of the McDonald Floral Company, is one of the best known young men of this section. Through applied scientific methods in the greenhouse, Mr. Nehrling was able to give Crawfordsville one of the best flower shops it ever had. He passed a competitive examination for a scholarship at the Missouri Botanical gardens and the Shaw School of Botany in 1909, and for one year had charge of the greenhouse at the University of Illinois. Mr. Nehrling later became professor of floriculture at the Massachusetts Agriculture College where he served for four years. He is president of the Missouri Botanical Garden Alumni Association, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, fellow of the Royal Horticultural Society, London, and a member of various floricultural societies and fraternal organizations.

Mr. Nehrling expects to leave about April 1 for Florida to visit his parents, and from there he will go to Ithaca, N. Y., where he will have charge of the commercial course in floriculture at Cornell University.

Co-operative Advertising.

This article is written as a brief review in order that we might better be able to cope with the situation. Co-operative advertising, if done judiciously and under proper supervision, is beyond question a success. The raising of funds, for co-operative advertising, if done judiciously and under proper supervision, is also undoubtedly a success. To the latter, however, must be in a large measure credited the greater amount of failures. Speaking for the florists' business itself, after careful observation for a decade or more in which this has been tried and carried on, we must admit, and we have data to prove it, that the only plan and the most equitable plan for creating a fund for this proposition is the percentage plan. The contribution plan has been tried in dozens of different ways and invariably after the first year, it began to wane and about the second year dwindled out in every locality where it has been tried, with just one exception and that one cannot hold out much longer. It is now two years old

While on the contrary, on the percentage plan, the committees adopting it and applying it forcefully and judiciously have not only continued on that plan, but they have in each instance increased, and in one case doubled their percentage. This being the case, there should be no doubt in the minds of the florists of any community that the percentage plan is the only plan under which funds can be collected and the movement kept alive. We know of many communities who started under the most auspicious conditions on the lump sum contributing plan and each and everyone has failed sooner or later. Even the cities, Milwaukee, Wis., Chicago and St. Louis, Mo., that are now working so successfully on the percentage plan, have for years previous tried various ways on a contributing plan and everyone has failed.

Hence, this article is given to those contemplating co-operative advertising as a warning against making the mistakes that so many others have made. Whatever you do, get thoroughly acquainted with the percentage plan. If you are not, write the undersigned or any member of the national publicity committee and information will cheerfully be given to you. This is of vital importance to the whole trade. We have now an opportunity to benefit by our past mistakes and by our present achievements. So, let us not waste time and energy on a nonworkable plan, but let us unite on a plan that spells "Success," not only now, but for future time to come. No community where there are two or more florists is too small, nor none is too large to make this plan workable. Do not stand in your own light. Get into the big league.

PLANT NOTES.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums begonias calendulas, celosias, cobæas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scagiosa, stocks, thunbergias, and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobæa scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats and as soon as large enough transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Lilacs for Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted, and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65 degrees will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture, are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time, and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color, and if they are not they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all pot bound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger, and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. The canes should be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future. There is always a good demand for well grown pot ramblers for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration, there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

TRADE VERY SATISFACTORY.

From all quarters come reports that trade is in a most satisfactory condition. Notwithstanding that we are in the middle of the Lenten season the demand for cut flowers is steady. Wholesalers report that they are having difficulty in trying to fill all orders. The promised increase in the rose supply has not materialized as yet, although the past week has been one of continuous sunshine. Prices on this flower remain about as last quoted. The supply of American Beauty roses has increased. The quality is excellent and it is just as popular as ever, although it has been practically out of this market all season. Mrs. Chas. A. Russell and Premier still are scarce and Columbia is also. Nearly every other variety is in the same condition. Carnations are still bringing $6 per 100 in the wholesale market. Laddie is $1.50 per dozen wholesale. The prices of carnations this year are far ahead of those received in former years for the same period, and are proving a very remunerative crop for the growers. There is still large quantities of good violets to be had. There has been little or no decline noted as yet in the shipping trade for this flower and prices remain unchanged. Sweet peas are still on the short side with room for much improvement in quality, especially color. As a reminder of the approach of Easter, the first Lilium Giganteum of the season arrived during the week and wholesaled readily at $6 per dozen stems. Iris are becoming plentiful but do not seem to meet with much favor. The orchid cut has shortened up considerably during the week and from now on it is expected the daily receipts will become lighter. Lily of the valley is more plentiful and also of varying grades of quality. Very few gardenias are now arriving. A limited amount of anemones of various colors have arrived on the market and bring good figures. Snapdragon is another favorite which is becoming more plentiful. The pink varieties prove the best sellers. There is quite a large daffodil cut coming in. Owing to the heavy demand for this flower there has been no decline in price for this stock and it is quickly bought up every morning. Not many Paper White narcissi are being received as this crop is about over. Many of the stores are noting a demand for callas. These flowers remain at low prices however. Long-stemmed tulips are now becoming more plentiful and are moving nicely. Dutch hyacinths are also arriving freely. The demand for this bulbous stock about equals the supply. Fruit blossoms are in great profusion at all the stores. Cut ericas are also plentiful. Rhododendrons, principally pink pearl, are now available at all the shops and add greatly to their appearance. Primula malacoides also fit in nicely as flowering plants. Very few azaleas are being offered. Cinerarias in all colors about complete the list of flowering plants at present. There is a strong demand noted for nephrolepsis in the medium sizes. Cut adiantiums is becoming more plentiful. Plumosa is also past the short stage.

NOTES.

Reports from the chrysanthemum growing section would indicate that the acreage to be planted this season will be about equal to that of last year. Propagation is now well under way. The weather has been very favorable to the stock plants, producing a strong growth of cuttings. Early and mid-season varieties will occupy the greater part of the acreage planted.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society at its regular meeting this month will discuss the advisability of holding a spring flower show this year. Nearly all the prominent private gardeners along the peninsula are members of this well known organization.

The E. W. McLellan Co., are receiving a heavy cut of freesias from the firm's greenhouses at Burlingame. A large crop of roses is expected to be ready before Easter with this firm and will continue throughout the balance of the season.

H. Kempf, of the Pacific nursery at Colma, reports a brisk demand this spring for young ericas and acacias. Mr. Kempf specializes in these two flowering plants and grows many thousands annually for the florist trade.

H. Plath has his greenhouses filled with pot plants for the Easter trade. Nephrelopsis in all leading varieties and all sizes are seen growing to perfection. Mr. Plath says advance orders for Easter indicate a healthy business.

Henry L. Goertzhain, Redwood City, has a fine lot of Easter plants coming along at his greenhouses. Most of his stock is sold at his store on the Highway. His carnation houses are producing a good crop.

The Charles C. Naolet Co., has been making attractive displays of daffodils at their store during the past few weeks. Many new or little known varieties were shown together with all standard sorts.

Peterson & Haywood, Burlingame, who specialize in orchids and greenhouse stock, report a strong demand for all they can produce. They will also grow a large amount of dahlias this season.

Podesta & Baldocchi say trade with them is above normal for the Lenten season. Demand for roses is so strong that it is difficult to secure sufficient stock for all orders.

Philip J. Foley, after a visit her of several weeks, has left for the Catalina Islands to try the tuna fishing.

Schizanthus Westoneusis is being tried out very successfully by the retail stores as a flowering plant.

Domoto Bros. are sending in an excellent cut of Lilium gigantium from their greenhouses at Melrose.

The Easter plants at the range of G. Rossi & Bro., Colma, are rapidly rounding into shape.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

Trade this week has been about on an equal footing with the past two or three weeks. The market opens at the beginning of the week showing good strength but gradually softens up and becomes quite weak toward midweek. Roses and carnations are leaders, no great quantity of these are arriving; but owing to lack of any snappy demand do not bring more than fair prices. Sweet peas and jonquils are still coming in greatly in excess of the demand. The supply of spring bulb stock is very large this year and judging from present prices the growers will not realize more than the cost of the bulbs. There has been considerable shipping of bulbs to other markets in the past two weeks, otherwise they would likely be wasted. Violets are quite plentiful and seem to have a good demand as they clean up almost every day. Lilies are coming in more plentifully and of much better quality. They sell well at $16 to $20 a hundred. Pansies, calendulas, marguerites and other small spring flowers clean up fairly well but there is no exceptional demand for them and consequently they bring only a fair average price.

CLUB MEETING.

On March 1 at the Parker house the Florists' Association held their regular monthly meeting. At the meeting they gave a complimentary dinner to Thos. Roland, president of the Society of American Florists. The business was held first and it was voted to hold the meeting in the future on the second Tuesday of the month instead of the first and also to have all meetings adjourned not later than ten o'clock. This was to give the out of town members plenty of time to get their trains. Two new members were proposed and will be voted on later. The Gardners' and Florists' Club sent a communication requesting the co-operation of the Florists' Club in arranging a banquet to be given to the three national presidents of greater Boston, Thos. Roland, J. W. Howard and W. N. Craig. A committee of three was appointed: H. Bartsch, H. Ryan and F. E. Palmer. President B. J. Setson then introduced the guest of the evening (Thos. Roland) who gave a short address. Other speakers were J. K. M. L. Farquhar, B. Setson and F. E. Palmer. There was an excellent dinner, fine music and a carbaret show. The tables were lavishly decorated. There were 58 present.

NOTES.

Philip Fienstein, proprietor of the North Union Florist, is slowly recovering from an operation which cost him his right leg. He was trying to remove a corn and he was unfortunate and cut his toe which caused blood poisoning.

Frank Kelley, formerly with the late Harry Kelly of Pemberton square, will open the flower stall in the Parker House March 7.

J. McNamara, salesman for the Montrose greenhouses, was operated on for appendicitis, March 1. He is not out of danger yet.

Patrick Murphy for many years with John Fee, Jamaica Plain, fell on the ice this past week and broke several ribs. E. F. S.

LARGE SUPPLY ON MARKET.

The weather experienced in this vicinity has been decidedly springlike during the past week and this has brought on all bulbous stock with a rush and wholesalers predict a shortage of stock at Easter. Easter flowers are one week in advance of the usual season due to the excessively warm weather. The trade is picking up constantly and the general supply is barely sufficient to meet the demand. Jonquils and carnations are leaders this week with roses and bulbous stock following closely. There are a few Laddie carnations among the offerings and they bring fancy prices. Among the roses which are very scarce this week, the Mrs. Chas. A. Russell, Premier, Ward and Killarney are leaders. The demand for them is far greater than the supply. Lily of the valley is plentiful and found in practically all establishments. Lilium Harrisii is coming in in limited quantities and far below the demand which is exceptionally good. Callas of exceptional size and quality are offered in limited quantities. The demand has forced the price higher. Sweet peas are plentiful and the demand is good, their chief use being for corsage bouquets. Snapdragons are few and far between with the demand brisk. Violets and calendulas are plentiful and seen everywhere. Only home-grown violets are offered. There are no narcissi on the market. The first daisies of the season are coming in in limited quantities and are selling like hot-cakes. Tulips of the common varieties are plentiful. Darwins are scarce and Morillas and Kaiserkroon are in great demand and bring fancy prices. There are a few Roman hyacinths on the market. The demand is good. Orchids of the cattleya type are scarce and in great demand for use in corsage work. A very limited but select quantity of Spanish iris is now coming in and are going at a high price as they are the season's first. All spring flowers are good sellers, and prices are moderate. Many cinerarias are seen but bring poor prices, and they are too risky a seller. Primroses, bulbous plants, a few cyclamen and willows are to be seen in the windows. Pandanus, dracaenas, and ferns are commonly seen everywhere. Prices remain practically the same for these standards. Sprays of Forsythia and Lonicera are shown by a few of the florists. Greens with the exception of ferns are plentiful. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri remain about the same in price. Ferns are scarce and there is barely enough to go around.

NOTES.

The "Say It With Flowers" bowling league met last week, Frank Windler making the record score of 265 for his team. The "Daisies" won the last three games from the "Carnations" and the "Sweet Peas" won one game from the "Gladiolus." These scores are watched with much interest in floral circles.

Street merchants are handling large quantities of roses, jonquils, carnations, violets and tulips. Due to the weather they have been doing a good business though handicapped with a poor grade of stock. Roses are their biggest sellers.

The St. Louis Gardens Association held an official meeting March 2. L. P. Jensen of the Missouri Botanical Garden, lectured to the club on "Landscape." A large attendance was present and much information was gathered by all.

An unusually attractive spring window display of cinerarias, bulbous stock and spring flowers with a back ground of rich purple velvet with white trimmings is seen at the Grimm & Gorly establishment.

C. A. Kuehn expects considerable trade during Easter and states that he is always short on carnations and jonquils.

A heavy business in jonquils and sweet peas is reported by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. is well satisfied with their new location and report a brisk business.

F. H. Weber has an attractive spring window with a back ground of ferns and greens.

Fred C. Weber is making a feature of all bulbous plants and reports a lively trade.

H. G. Berning is rushed this week and states that his trade is improving.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. is making a specialty of Spanish iris.

STOCK IN PLENTIFUL SUPPLY.

The past week has been quiet among the trade. This was to be expected, however, with Lent at hand and with no special occasions to stimulate trade. Social affairs have dwindled down to a low point and that is the worst feature. Weddings are not numerous at this time, although some large affairs are held occasionally. Florists are looking forward to more weddings in June as a number have been scheduled. Funerals have been rather numerous and several large ones were held. Corsages have been selling fairly well and this is one of the best features. Orders are about as numerous as usual, however, but the size of the orders have been reduced. There is a plentiful supply of flowers of all kinds and the quality is exceedingly good. All florists report a good demand for pot plants and this trade is expected to increase from this time on. Spring flowers are selling fairly well. They include tulips, jonquils, freesias and narcissi. The usual run of flowers such as roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas are in fair demand. Supplies are good and prices are unchanged from the previous week. Indications point to an excellent Easter trade and preparations are being made accordingly. Easter lilies will be in good supply of excellent quality.

NATIONAL FLOWER GROWERS' ASS'N

A meeting of members of the National Flower Growers' Association of the Ohio district was held March 3 for the purpose of arousing interest in the organization and to form a Columbus association. About 12 out of 18 flower growers in this city and immediate vicinity were present. In addition growers were present from Springfield, Lima, Alliance and Ironton. The purposes of the organization are to promote closer co-operation among commercial flower and plant growers; to guard individual and collective interests and foster mutual assistance; to improve methods and practices, averting market gluts, price fluctuations and other harmful conditions; to buy, sell or make any article used in the trade whenever such co-operative effort is advantageous; to secure uniform basis of credit and collections and to spread information among members; to take proper action against proposed laws or regulations which are believed to be detrimental to the industry and to work with the National Flower Growers' Association and under their general laws and regulations. Officers of the Ohio district of the national association are Carl Hagenberger, Cleveland, president; H. S. Brown, Cleveland, vice president, and George Bates, Cleveland, secretary. A meeting of growers here will be called soon to form an organization to affiliate both with the national and state associations. Much interest was manifest in the meeting and a local association seems assured.

GOOD DEMAND FOR STOCK.

Trade the past week has been good. All stock moves well and the demand still continues good. Roses are plentiful and the past week has seen a big drop in prices. Daffodils are plentiful and sell well. Pot plants of all kinds sell on sight, and the prospects for a good Easter sale is good; almost all of the growers have a fair supply to meet the demand. Easter lilies are good and in fair supply so that the store men will not have to go out of town for their supply this year. In former years a great many lilies were bought out of the city. This year there are some very good Formosum and Giganteum lilies that the local trade can pick from. Violets are going to be short for Easter, as some of the retailers are throwing their violets out at this time, but Boston, Mass., wholesalers will have a good supply for the local men to buy from.

J. A. Macrae of Smith street, is bringing in some very fine pot tulips, hyacinths and daffodils that sell well.

State Florists' Ass'n of Indiana.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held a meeting at the plant of W. Frank & Sons, Portland, March 1. Because of the limited time allotted between trains for the business session, the session was cut short. Luncheon was served at the Presbyterian church which was followed by an inspection of the Portland plant. During the business session it was decided to appoint a programme committee which would have charge of the programmes at future state meetings. A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, was named chairman of the committee. Many complaints were voiced against the continued high price of coal in the face of an over-supply and Wrenn Elder, Indianapolis, was named chairman of a special coal committee to investigate the situation.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. R. Vincent, Jr.

Mrs. Vincent, wife of R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., died March 8. Mrs. Vincent had been in feeble health for some time and will be greatly missed by a host of friends at the annual trade gatherings, having been one of the most regular in attendance for many years. She was a most amiable lady, greatly beloved by all who knew her. The numerous trade visitors to White Marsh will recall her ever generous hospitality. Mr. Vincent has the deepest sympathy of his many friends in this great loss.

Edward C. Dungan.

Edward C. Dungan, general manager of the Wm. Henry Maule Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and former president of the American Seed Trade Association, died March 4 under operation for prostate gland. Mr. Dungan had been in ill health a number of years and at times suffered greatly. His afflictions were borne with exemplary patience, but in the less trying days he labored incessantly to maintain his firm's business in the high position it occupies.

Mr. Dungan was born in Philadelphia in 1863 and entered the employ of Wm. Henry Maule as a boy. He soon gained the confidence of his employer and gradually assumed all the responsibilities of his work. Mr. Dungan and another well known seedsman made a seed trade venture on their own account at Newark, N. J., some years ago, but this arrangement was discontinued after a few months and Mr. Dungan returned to his former employer, taking over the entire management on the death of Mr. Maule soon after.

Mr. Dungan possessed a thoroughly practical knowledge of the seed trade and his counsel was much sought by a host of friends in the business. He was extremely modest and the trade found it no easy task to induce him to accept the presidency of the national seed trade association in 1919. He was a member of the Manufacturers, Rotary, Business Science, Poor Richard and Philadelphia Athletic clubs, and many trade organizations. He was one of the best liked men in the trade and will be sincerely mourned. Mrs. Dungan survives.

John Lewis Childs.

John Lewis Childs, well known mail order seedsman and gladiolus specialist of Floral Park, N. Y., died March 5, of heart failure on the New York Central Railroad's Twentieth Century train, between Albany and New York, returning from Los Angeles, Calif. On February 11, he passed through Chicago, enroute to Los Angeles, leaving on the Santa Fe Railroad's forenoon train, the Missionary. He then stated he had been unwell during the fall and early winter but had almost regained his normal health by a sojourn in Florida. He looked worn, as if from overwork, but was active, methodical and full of plans for future business. Returning to Chicago from Los Angeles, on the Santa Fe about 10 a. m., March 4, leaving on the Twentieth Century, our representative, an old friend, spent upwards of an hour with him at the LaSalle street station and his health had apparently greatly improved. He spoke at length of general and trade conditions in Los Angeles and discussed various political and mercantile matters with all his usual vigor, among other things expressing himself as emphatically opposed to the presence of the Japanese in California, his objections being social as well as economic.

Mr. Childs was born in Maine in 1856, and at the age of 17 went to work in a greenhouse establishment at Queens, N. Y. The following year he rented a few acres of land near the railroad, a mile and a half from Queens, and started business for himself as seedsman and florist. For five years it was uphill work, but perseverance won out. Subsquently, the land occupied was purchased, and from time to time more acreage was added. The railroad company built a station and at Mr. Child's request, it was called Floral Park. Greenhouses, storage houses and dwellings for employes followed in rapid succession. His mails became so large and important that the government established a post office at his place. Progress continued until Floral Park became a thriving village, built up mainly on this one industry. He early specialized in bulbous plants, on which he was well informed. At one time he had the most complete collection of garden lilies ever brought together in this country, but these were so persistent in running out that he was obliged to abandon the Long Island culture of most of them. He acquired the late E. V. Hallock's fine strain of gladioli and gave a wonderful impetus to the culture of this plant.

The soil at Floral Park having been worn out by a long period of intensive cultivation, some years ago the plantations of gladioli and other specialties were removed to a large tract of land about 35 miles from the home establishment. The new place, with its station, post office and warehouses has been named Flowerfield, this growing and shipping point being reserved for the heaviest products. The principal business and offices are continued at Floral Park, which is only 20 minuts from the center of Manhattan by direct train service. The catalogues are printed and mailed at these headquarters and it was here the Mayflower ran a highly successful career so many years, as an amateur gardening monthly, the paper being later sold to an Ohio concern. He also had a 10-acre seed growing branch at South Pasadena, Calif.

In his mail order business, Mr. Childs had a remarkable faculty in the selection of attractive common names for plants, many of which will be recalled by our readers as the cigar plant (Cuphea ignea), the Chinese lantern plant (Physalis Franchetii,) the black calla, Chinese wool plant, the wonder berry and many others, these names, well advertised, creating an extraordinary demand in most cases. Perhaps the best example of his ability in this direction was in his purchase from Frank H. Banning, Kinsman, O., of Gladiolus Reuben H. Warder, which he renamed America.

Besides the details of his great business and close personal attention to the wants of his customers, Mr. Childs found time to perform many public duties. He was a member of the state senate during 1894 and 1895, when that office was more important than that of congressman, New York state having more of the latter than of the former. He was a director in the Preferred Accident Insurance Company, of New York, and for a long time treasurer of that well known institution. He was a director of the National Agency Company of New York, the Queens and Suffolk Fire Insurance Company, and of the Bank of Jamaica, a member of the board of managers, also treasurer and trustee of the Union Free School at Floral Park. He was a member of the Society of American Florists, the American Seed Trade Association and many other trade organizations. He was greatly interested in wild birds and in means for their preservation and protection.

Charles R. Kimberlin.

Charles R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif., died March 4. For the past 15 years he had been associated with his brother, L. M. Kimberlin, and their two sons, under the above firm name. Previously both brothers were in the seed growing business with their father, the late J. M. Kimberlin. The deceased was born in Santa Clara, Calif., in 1865. Mrs. Kimberlin and one son survive.
